Start of Vast Lake Front Project.

Pictures and diagrams illustrating the Chicago plan commission's project for a great railway terminal on the lake front at Randolph street will be found in the rotogravure section of The Tribune tomorrow.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

The Chicago plan commission, through its chairman, James Simpson, presents today to the community and for the particular consideration of all citizens, officials and interests directly affected, a New Year's plan of downtown lake front development which, Mr. Simpson says, offers about $12,000,000 in work for the unemployed, solves an old and vexing problem and provides a stimulus to business generally in Chicago.

JAMES SIMPSON.

This suggestion, in brief, is the construction of a $26,000,000 union railway passenger terminal, fronting on Randolph street a short distance east of Michigan avenue, as a permanent home for all the 15 south side railroads.

Beginning of Development.

True to the spirit of the creator of the original Chicago plan, the elder Daniel Burnham, this new and revised feature has "the magic to stir men's blood." It is a big plan, the beginning only, according to Ernest R. Graham, architect and member of the plan commission, of a 25 year development along East Randolph street and the adjacent territory.

The coal piles, the wilderness of tracks and old freight sheds of that neglected 100 acres on the lake front, are to spring to stony attention. The sparks from the noisy old locomotives are to become still lights in the towers of a mighty concourse of American skyscrapers.

There is to be a new loop there, a new skyline of beauty and utility, connected with the old by elevated boulevards and by an underground structure of streets, shops and parking places which will dwarf similar efforts in New York and London. It will be a new city of air rights and subsurface rights, built to connect with the new Outer drive and the proposed extension of Wacker drive eastward.

Architect Explains Plans.

This dream has already been reduced to blue prints and architects' drawings and detailed cost sheets and rental basis in the offices of Mr. Graham. This white-haired, dynamic builder of many great structures, such as the Union station in Chicago, the Cleveland Terminal and the stations in Pittsburgh, Philadelphia and Washington, says of the first proposed step, the new union terminal:

"Financially, it is easy; economically, it is here. It presents economy of operation for the railroads without expenditure of any more money per car than at present. The basis is found in the 1,500,000 square feet of office space required by the roads, now spread all over Chicago."

For the new terminal building itself, the plans call for an area of two blocks, or 175,000 square feet. It would be a strong, simple stone structure rising from the Randolph street viaduct now being built. The plans call for a tower of 50 floors and a building larger than any office building in Chicago. With the expanding requirements of tenants there could be provided over 2,000,000 square feet of floor space, well within the requirements of the building ordinances.

A Stimulus to Business.

"The time is coming soon when we will be able to realize this and much more," said Mr. Simpson, in discussing the terminal plans.

"It offers the people of Chicago something that will be a long step toward normalcy, not only bettering the city's passenger terminal facilities, but adding to the comfort, convenience, appearance and business prosperity of Chicago. It will be effective in starting building construction, in stimulating business generally and in freeing a backward section of Chicago for normal developments."

Here are the concrete benefits which such a development would provide for the city, the railroads and all the in-

JAPANESE TAKE CHINCHOW; HOLD ALL MANCHURIA

Chinese Give Up City Without Struggle.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Jan. 2.—(Saturday.)—Dispatches from Mukden today said the Japanese army had definitely decided to enter Chinchow tomorrow morning. Japanese planes will drop leaflets assuring the populace that their lives and property will not be endangered.

BULLETIN.

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

TOKIO, Jan. 1.—Two Japanese newspaper men, members of the staff of the Tokio Asahi, were reported today to have been captured and killed by Chinese bandits swarming in the rear of the Japanese army advancing on Chinchow. The two men, who were employed in taking messages from correspondents with the troops back to transmission points, disappeared three days ago.

MUKDEN, Manchuria, Jan. 1.—The formal Japanese occupation of Chinchow, where only the remnants of the former Chinese régime in Manchuria are left, is expected to take place tomorrow or Sunday. Japanese cavalry patrols entered the suburbs of the city tonight while the main body of the Japanese column, advancing from Kowpangtze, halted on the north bank of the Taling river, 15 miles from Chinchow.

Already large bodies of the Japanese army, including infantry, artillery, cavalry and armored motor cars, have crossed the Taling, some by railway bridge, but the majority over ice which covers this broad, swift stream.

Chinese Offer No Resistance.

The Japanese army's advance from Kowpangtze to Chinchow was practically without opposition, Lieut. Gen. Jiro Tamon's small, fur clad and fur hooded soldiers marching steadily across the ice covered fields flecked with patches of snow.

Gen. Tamon himself, a small five foot, worried looking officer wearing gold rimmed spectacles, left Panshan by horseback and followed his division into Kowpangtze and beyond.

The advance on Chinchow was not carried out by Gen. Tamon's tired troops, which have advanced eighty miles from Yingkow in three and a half days, but by Maj. Gen. Kamura's brigade, which started from Hsinmin yesterday morning, advancing by motor trucks and trains. A small screen of cavalrymen protected the infantry's advance.

Japanese Force Totals 15,000.

Meanwhile, Gen. Tamon has been reorganizing and refitting his entire division. The total strength of the Japanese forces is estimated at 15,000 men, including infantry, cavalry, artillery, tanks, railway troops, and a medical corps. It is probably the best equipped military expedition since the world war.

Mukden today is alive with troops from a fresh brigade which arrived yesterday from Corea. This brigade brings the total strength of the command of Gen. Shigeru Honjo, Japanese commander in Manchuria, to the equivalent of seven infantry brigades plus stronger auxiliaries.

Authoritative estimates of the total Japanese strength in Manchuria tonight is close to 30,000 men. This force has practically occupied a territory equal to that in the United States east of the Mississippi, with a population of 30,000,000. This territory, with the occupation of Chinchow, will pass entirely under the rule of the mikado's army

Set Up New Régime.

TOKIO, Jan. 1.— (AP) —A Rengo [Japanese] news agency dispatch from Harbin today said Chang Chinchui, commander in chief of the special Harbin district, had proclaimed the independence of Heilungkiang province with himself as chairman of the provisional government. In a circular telegram, the report said, he announced his intention to coöperate closely with the new provincial governments at Mukden and Kirin.

Inaugurate New Government.

NANKING, China, Jan. 1.—(AP)—The new National government, headed by Lin Sen and made up largely of appointees from the Cantonese faction, was formally inaugurated today. It was the simplest of ceremonies and the customary New Year's military parade and official receptions were omitted.

RUNAWAY WIFE'S ROMANCE ENDS AS SUITOR IS SHOT

The romance of Albert R. Lembke, 23 years old, and Mrs. Viva Capodice, 26 years old, both of Bloomington, Ill., came to an untimely end yesterday morning when Lembke shot himself in the chest—accidentally, he said—in their room at the Atlantic hotel.

He was taken to St. Anthony's hospital and Mrs. Capodice to the Central police station. At the station the young woman told how she had been grasping at a rainbow of romance when she deserted her two little children to run away with Albert.

"We were going to Europe," she said. "I had been estranged from my husband for a year, and Albert was such a nice boy I just decided to take the trip."

At the hospital, when he became conscious, Lembke admitted that the trip to Europe was just a little lie that he had told to overcome the scruples of Mrs. Capodice.

During the evening Martin Capodice, husband of the young woman, went to visit her in her cell. Viva clung to him and wept and he forgave her and announced that they were reconciled. The romance of Viva and Martin is scheduled for a renewal as soon as the police are ready to let her go back to Bloomington.

CATHOLICS TOLD PRESENT NEED IS FOR TEMPERANCE

Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 1.—[Special.]—Asserting that the authorities had found that there is as much or more drunkenness now than there was before prohibition, Cardinal Dougherty, speaking today at a New Year's reception given for him by sixty societies, called on Catholics of the diocese for a revival of temperance and total abstinence societies.

"Unfortunately prohibition has not performed the miracles we expected. According to experts, such as judges and the police, there is as much or more drunkenness today than before the passage of the Volstead act.

"When before did we see young men carrying hip flasks of liquor to social occasions, and young women, many of them not yet of age, drinking cocktails and strong liquor, some of them to the point of intoxication?"

Welsh Draft Constitution to Become a Dominion

LONDON, Jan. 2 [Saturday]—(AP)—The Daily Mail said today that the Welsh Nationalist party had drafted a constitution for Wales which would make that principality a separate entity in the British commonwealth with full dominion status. The newspaper did not say what action was proposed to make the constitution effective.

850 Million in Foreign Bonds Default on Us

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 1.—Outstanding foreign bonds held in the United States on which interest or sinking fund payments, or both, are in default total more than $850,000,000, according to a compilation filed with the senate finance committee and released for publication today.

OTTO H. KAHN. [A. P. Photo.]

The list was supplied by Otto H. Kahn, partner of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., New York, who notified the committee that he had obtained it from the Institute of International Finance of New York. Mr. Kahn requested that the list "be used without responsibility on our part or on the part of the institute."

The record of defaulted bonds is composed entirely of issues by South American governments and their states and municipalities.

The South American countries whose federal bonds have been defaulted are Bolivia, Brazil, Chile, Colombia, Peru, and Uruguay.

More Defaults This Year.

The great majority of the defaults were shown to have occurred during 1931, while the latest default named in the list was that of the state of Sao Paulo, Brazil, with five outstanding issues totaling more than $70,000,000, on which the default date was given as Jan. 1, 1932.

This information, the first definite word concerning total foreign bond defaults to be put into a congressional record since the beginning of the deflation period, came in an interim of an exhaustive investigation into foreign bond issues in the United States being conducted by the finance committee by authority of a resolution proposed by Senator Hiram Johnson [Rep., Cal.].

Prior to adjournment for the holidays the finance committee took testimony from Charles E. Mitchell, president of the National City bank and the National City company; Thomas W. Lamont, of J. P. Morgan & Co., and Mr. Kahn, whose testimony was not completed and who will reappear for further discussion of the international credit situation when the committee reconvenes next Monday.

How Bond Houses Fared.

The committee also made public detailed tables showing the amount of foreign bonds issued by the houses for which the three witnesses heard so far acted as spokesmen.

The National City company lists, supplied by Mr. Mitchell, showed that the National City company had made a net profit of $13,392,502 through the issuance of foreign bonds through syndicates organized by itself and a net profit of $11,363,501 through participation in syndicates formed by others, or a total net profit of $24,756,003, exclusive of large deals in Canadian and Cuban bonds.

The tabulation furnished by Kuhn, Loeb & Co. showed that the house had issued $577,750,000 of foreign bonds through its own syndicates and had participated in the issuance of $580,430,000 of foreign bonds.

Latin-American issues played a large part in the financing done by syndicates managed by Kuhn, Loeb & Co., this type of bonds accounting for $205,000,000 worth of its business.

J. P. Morgan Report.

The house of J. P. Morgan & Co. reported that it had issued $1,807,587,000 in foreign bonds, making no differentiation between syndicates which it organized and those in which it participated, of which $438,280,100 had been retired by Dec. 15, leaving outstanding a total of $1,369,297,000.

Among its issues were six for Argentina totaling $159,800,000, and one for Chile of $24,000,000.

Dozen Women Held; Solve 17 Abductions

Thirty members of a kidnaping gang which has spread its activities all over the middle west during the last two years are in the custody of the state's attorney's investigators, it was learned last night.

From the ranks of these abductors have come five confessions involving seventeen kidnapings and demands for ransom.

Pat Roche, chief of the state's attorney's investigating staff, refused to give the names of those held or of the persons who had been held for ransom. He said, however, that twelve of the captives were women and that the whole crew was rounded up in raids in Chicago, Peoria, and St. Louis.

It has been known for some two weeks that Roche and his men have been devoting all their efforts to the stamping out of the kidnaping gangs, which have become a terror especially to men allied with the illegal alcohol racket and the gambling business.

Held in Downtown Hotel.

They have been concentrating their prisoners in suites at the Congress hotel. Early today the entire thirty were housed there under guard of detectives and questioning of them was going on steadily.

"We have enough evidence against these people now to warrant trial," Roche said, "but we are not going to announce their names and have a flock of habeas corpus writs filed in their behalf. There are still many threads of the investigation to be followed."

Among the men who have been seized by kidnaping gangs recently were John J. Lynch, head of the General News bureau, which furnishes racing news by wire, and James Hackett, Blue Island gambler. Lynch was released on a reported payment of $50,000 after his abductors had scaled down an original demand of $250,000. Hackett was reputed to have paid $75,000 for his freedom.

Some Other Recent Kidnapings.

Fred J. Blumer, a wealthy Monroe, Wis., brewer, and Frank Richley, also described as a brewer, living in Evanston, were also kidnaping victims during the last eight months. W. C. Flanigan of Gary, known as the czar of handbooks in the Indiana city, also was taken and released after he was reported to have paid heavily.

There were rumors that some or all of these had been called in to look at the suspects in custody, but this was not confirmed by Roche.

Some of those held, it was said, had been hangers-on at gambling places around Chicago and had aroused suspicion during the season of the big kidnapings by appearing with large rolls of currency.

Indirectly it was learned that the headquarters in Peoria and St. Louis kept in close touch with the leaders of the band here and that through elaborate coöperation it was found simple and easy to arrange for safe hiding places while negotiations for ransom payments were being carried on.

No one has been allowed access to the prisoners since they were taken to the Congress hotel.

IT'S NOT HIS LINE, BUT THE CAPTAIN DOES ALL HE CAN

Capt. Hugh. McCarthy of the Town Hall police station was called to the telephone last night.

"This is very, very important," came in nervous tones from the receiver. "This is Miss Julia Ward of 706 Wellington avenue. Where can I get a marriage license and somebody to read a marriage ceremony tonight?"

The captain explained that she would have to find an accommodating license clerk and suggested that perhaps it could be done in Waukegan.

Hardly had he hung up when a young man, breathless, dashed into the station.

"This is very, very important," he said. "My name is John Taylor and I am a wool grader from Canada stopping at the Wacker hotel. Where can I get a license and a justice of the peace tonight so I can marry a girl I gave a ring to three years ago."

"I suppose," replied the captain, "that you intend to marry Miss Julia Ward." The astonished Mr. Taylor nodded. "Then," continued the captain, "I would suggest that perhaps both of you had better go to Waukegan. And many happy returns of the day."

JARECKI RULING MAY RESULT IN REASSESSMENT

Governor Seeks to Speed Tax Cure.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

A reassessment of all of the property in Cook county for 1928, 1929 and 1930, with the consequent delay in the collection of taxes, appeared yesterday as a possible outcome of Judge Jarecki's decision holding the 1928 and 1929 taxes illegal and void.

E. J. SCHNACKENBERG.

But whatever plan is adopted to remedy the financial ills of the local governments, Gov. Emmerson said yesterday he desires constructive action taken promptly.

Should Act at Once.

"So far as the state administration or the legislature can aid," said the governor, "we should act at once. I judge offhand that the decision of Judge Jarecki has made the complicated situation even more critical, if that is possible. I have not had sufficient time to analyze his opinion and decide what I think it would be best to do. I am not only willing to go along with any constructive relief program but will aggressively aid it.

"I mean by that I will do anything in my power to help.

"I shall be in Springfield every day, and I hope that when the legislators return Tuesday they will work right along to a conclusion, rather than working a couple of days and then going home again. I hope that a plan will be adopted within two weeks."

Schnackenberg Tells Stand.

State Representative Schnackenberg, head of the legislative steering committee, said yesterday that he thinks the general assembly should order a reassessment of all property in Cook county for 1928, 1929 and 1930, with provision that those who have paid excess taxes may have credit on the payment of subsequent tax bills.

"The decision of Judge Jarecki," said Representative Schnackenberg, "makes the demand irresistible for revamping the assessing and reviewing machinery. It also makes more acute the critical condition of the local governments.

"The county's tax attorneys advise us that the only way out is for the state Supreme court to reverse the Jarecki decision or the legislature to order a reassessment for 1928, 1929 and 1930.

Assembly Should Act.

"My first view is this: Why shouldn't the legislature order the reassessment at once, without waiting to see what the state Supreme court does?

"Every local government will be paralyzed unless something is done, and may be strangled while something is being done. The cure for all the financial ailments is the payment of taxes. Real estate now pays too large a share. Its owners are dissatisfied. Many can't pay, some won't. I think that the 1930 taxes, except the state's portion, should be funded. A reassessment for 1928, 1929 and 1930 would put the taxpayers in a better frame of mind and encourage them to pay taxes regularly and promptly."

"Will your committee tomorrow morning consider Judge Jarecki's decision?" Schnackenberg was asked.

County Delegates to Meet.

"Certainly it will come up," he replied. "Primarily the committee of nine meets to ascertain what progress has been made on a plan to fund the 1930 taxes, and we will report to all of the legislators of Cook county at 11 o'clock. We will have to deal with Judge Jarecki's decision."

The members of the legislature from Cook county will have a busy half day this morning on the relief program pending in the general assembly.

First will come a session at 9 o'clock of the committee of five appointed to ascertain how far funding of the 1930 taxes is feasible.

This subcommittee will report to the steering committee of nine headed by Representative Schnackenberg at 9:30 o'clock.

At 10 o'clock the Democratic senators and representatives will meet in Mayor Cermak's office together with the central committeemen from each area. There is every indication that the pressure will be applied to get every Democrat in line for the program of D. F. Kelly, which calls for one assessor and two reviewers to be appointed by the governor and the president of the county board.

At 11 o'clock all of the Cook county legislators, both Republican and Democratic, will meet in the rooms of the county board for a final discussion and probable agreement on the plan to be enacted into law.

It was the opinion of the legislators whom it was possible to get on the phone yesterday that the death of Charles V. Barrett will not have any material effect upon the legislative program. He was a member of the Board of Review. The vacancy, until the election this fall, will be filled by Judge Jarecki, who said yesterday he will not consider selecting a successor until after the legislature acts.

Controller Sees Reassessment.

City Controller Szymczak issued a plea for cash on which to operate the city, in which he predicted frankly there will be a reassessment. He said that the reassessment would aid in the restoration of credit.

"We are at last on the road to a restoration of credit with the decision of Judge Jarecki out of the way," he said. "Now the legislature can and will act by providing two essentials:

"First—It will make reassessment unnecessary in the future, because that delays the collection of taxes. This will be accomplished to a large extent by the reorganization of the tax assessing machinery, which we advocated as early as last May.

"Second—It will order an immediate reassessment of all property, real and personal, for 1928, 1929 and 1930 taxes, to be executed by the new board of assessment and revision."

Makes Plea for Cash.

Then followed his plea for cash during the period when the reassessment is being made as follows:

"Those who have not paid their 1928 and 1929 taxes should do so at once in order not to compel the closing down of public offices essential to public welfare. If the taxpayers who have not paid 1928 and 1929 taxes will now pay what they consider fair we will be able to retire our outstanding current indebtedness. This will help restore credit to Chicago.

"Banks and investment houses, as well as large taxpayers, who have confidence in our municipal government, which confidence is being restored through a reduction in the cost of government and through the legislation about to be passed, should purchase refunding bonds and tax anticipation warrants.

"Revenues obtained through fees and licenses will provide a certain amount of cash if every citizen who must obtain a license or permit will make his purchase early in January."

How Long Will It Take?

How long it will take to make a reassessment for three years no one would predict yesterday. It was suggested by several, however, that it will take longer than was required to appraise all of the real estate, which was about a year and a half. Personal property must be found and ownership established before it can be valued for taxing purposes, while no search was necessary to find the real estate to appraise.

County Treasurer McDonough urged the pressing necessity yesterday of adopting some plan which will prevail upon the people to pay their taxes.

"The only solution of the financial difficulties of the local governments is the payment of taxes," said the treasurer. "It has been very difficult to get the people to pay their 1929 taxes and less than 69 per cent in amount have paid. Now that Judge Jarecki has decided that the 1928 and 1929 taxes are illegal and void, there will probably be more hesitancy on the part of the property owners to pay the 1930 taxes. From my viewpoint that is the immediate effect of importance of Judge Jarecki's decision, which his opinion clearly indicates he foresaw."

WOMAN BEHIND JARECKI RULING FEELS JUBILANT

Mrs. Lillian Cisar, 439 North Taylor avenue, Oak Park, whose protest of the taxes on her home resulted on Thursday in County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki declaring the 1928 and 1929 tax levies for Cook county void, was jubiliant yesterday. She is the wife of Edward F. Cisar, a draftsman, and the property, a story and a half stucco home, is in her name. The litigation was handled in Mrs. Cisar's behalf by the Oak Park Real Estate board.

"It seems that there is going to be some justice for the small home owner after all," she said. "My husband and I want to do our share in supporting local government, but the taxes on our home became confiscatory."

Mr. and Mrs. Cisar said they bought the home eight years ago for $9,800. Their 1927 tax bill was $219.15 on an assessed valuation of $3,440. Their 1928 tax bill jumped to $544.84 on an assessed valuation of $10,127. Their 1929 tax bill was $434.81 on a tax valuation of $7,920. If the tax valuations were based on 37 per cent of the market valuation in 1928, their home would be worth more than $27,000. Neither their 1928 nor 1929 taxes have been paid.

"If our home actually were worth $27,000 we would have been glad to pay the tax," said Mr. Cisar. "But we bought it during boom times in real estate and paid a little more than a third of that amount. We have been trying to sell it for the past two years for what we paid for it or even less, but the real estate offices won't even list it when they see our assessments."

JANITOR FREED AS U. S. DRINKS UP $40,000,000

Cost of "Eve" Liquor Figured by Reeves.

New Year's day meant release from jail for Boleslaw Lidikewicz, the "home brew janitor," penniless, out of a job, out of a home. It meant an awakening for the rest of the good folks of our country after a night in which an estimated $40,000,000 was spent for booze.

Lidikewicz had made a batch of home brew, the top price for which would have been $10 had he wished to sell it. Some of the beer he gave to a group of American Legion members for a party, for which offense Lidikewicz spent two months in jail, paid a fine of $100 and court costs of $21.80. His expenses while in jail, he said, were $80.

Millions Would Face Jail.

When Col. Ira L. Reeves learned what Lidikewicz' batch of home brew had cost him in liberty and money, the colonel sat down with pencil and paper and figured that 4,000,000 Americans would have to go to jail if every sale of $10 worth of New Year's eve firewater had cost the penalty that Lidikewicz paid for his.

Lidikewicz was born in Lithuania. After working 16 years in a machine shop here he was able to buy an apartment building at 3901 North Kimball avenue. Hard times came along and he lost his equity in the building and became its janitor, living in the basement. Yesterday he returned to that basement apartment to a celebration given him by the present occupant, Ben Verdune, and a welcoming party.

Last fall prohibition agents invaded his home without a warrant. C. L. Wiley, a business man, member of the Legion and a tenant of the building, had endeavored to save Lidikewicz by telling Federal Judge John P. Barnes: "He never made beer to sell, only for his own consumption and some for me for a Legion party." Lidikewicz was sentenced to 60 days and a $100 fine. Wiley was held to the grand jury as an accessory.

Calls Jail Bad Place.

"It's bad, putting people like me in jail with murderers and thieves," Lidikewicz said upon his return to what formerly was his home. "If the government wants to put beer makers in jail there ought to be a separate government jail. I heard so many stories about robberies. One fellow was taking up a collection in jail to pay his lawyer so he wouldn't get 20 years.

"Many people brought me food, and I thank them as well as those who tried to get me a pardon from the President. Still it cost me $80 for various things in jail and I came out broke. I don't know where I'm going to get a job or a home. My boy is living with his uncle. I don't know where I'm going or what I'm going to do, but I won't be a bootlegger."

Reeves Praises Lidikewicz.

"Lidikewicz is right," said Col. Reeves, a veteran of five wars, formerly president of a college and more recently federal prohibition administrator for the state of New Jersey. Now he is regional director of the Crusaders, an anti-prohibition organization.

"The real bootleggers go free and people like Lidikewicz go to jail. I have been in every state in this union and I know the drinking habits of all our people. I know the costs of liquor in each state, the kind and quantity drunk in each state. From my personal knowledge, I am able to say with some degree of certainty that $40,000,000 was spent for New Year's eve drinking."

Col. Reeves put the cost of intoxicants in Cook county for New Year's eve at $2,515,000. He said he took into consideration the fact that on the last day of each year the national drinking is about six or seven times the normal daily amount.

Cost Figured by States.

State by state, Col. Reeves sets forth the following figures as the amount spent in each in ringing out the old year:

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| Alabama | $1,110,000 | Nevada | 45,000 |
| Arizona | 250,000 | N. Hamp. | 125,000 |
| Arkansas | 900,000 | New Jersey | 1,500,000 |
| Calif. | 1,500,000 | New Mex. | 135,000 |
| Colorado | 300,000 | New York. | 5,725,000 |
| Conn. | 600,000 | N. Carolina | 750,000 |
| Delaware | 125,000 | N. Dakota | 150,000 |
| Dist. Col. | 500,000 | Ohio | 1,750,000 |
| Florida | 400,000 | Okla. | 600,000 |
| Georgia | 750,000 | Oregon | 250,000 |
| Idaho | 125,000 | Penn'ania. | 2,250,000 |
| Illinois | 4,225,000 | Rhode Isl. | 225,000 |
| Indiana | 900,000 | S. Carolina | 375,000 |
| Iowa | 675,000 | S. Dakota. | 225,000 |
| Kansas | 600,000 | Tennessee. | 625,000 |
| Kentucky | 875,000 | Texas | 2,000,000 |
| Louisiana. | 600,000 | Utah | 150,000 |
| Maine | 250,000 | Vermont | 75,000 |
| Maryland | 600,000 | Virginia | 600,000 |
| Mass. | 1,500,000 | Wash'n | 375,000 |
| Michigan | 1,375,000 | West Va. | 425,000 |
| Minn. | 600,000 | Wisconsin. | 800,000 |
| Mississippi. | 625,000 | Wyoming | 50,000 |
| Missouri | 800,000 | | |
| Montana | 225,000 | | |
| Nebraska | 350,000 | Total | $39,965,000 |

Col. Reeves said he took into consideration the fact that Florida drinks more per capita than Illinois, but the cost of liquor there is much cheaper. He said he has given careful consideration to the quality and quantity of liquor consumed in each state.

BODY TAKEN FROM LAKE.

The body of a man about 70 years old, believed to have been Michael Reynolds, 6834 Lafayette avenue, was taken from the lake at Michigan City yesterday. Identification was first made through Reynolds' name printed on a coat pocket. At his home it was said he had been missing since last Sunday.

THREE GOVERNMENTS ABANDON HOPE; WILL DEFAULT BONDS TODAY

Officials of the sanitary district, forest preserves, and the west parks district yesterday held out no hope that they will be able to obtain money today with which to pay bond principal and interest due and avoid defaults. The sanitary district needs to raise $1,519,965, the forest preserves $653,000, and the west parks $300,000.

"I have tried every place to raise the money, but cannot get it," said President Thomas J. Bowler of the sanitary district. "I haven't the slightest hope that the district can raise the money today to avoid the default."

President W. R. James of the west parks and Deputy Controller Michael J. O'Connor of the county also said that they believe they will not be able to raise money to pay off the bond obligations of the west parks and forest preserves today.

NEW YORK CITY WARNED TO END TAX INCREASES

Chicago Plight Cited by Realtor.

Montclair, N. Y., Jan. 1.—New York City should take heed of the financial "disaster" which has overtaken Chicago and thereby avoid the pitfalls which result from a policy of "spending without regard for the ability of the taxpayers to pay," Peter Grimm, former president of the New York Real Estate Securities exchange, declares in a statement issued today.

Mr. Grimm points out that while New York City has an indicated margin of 300 million dollars between the amount of taxes levied and the legally taxable property at present, the financial condition of the local government is "bad enough."

Mr. Grimm warned New Yorkers that a tax strike, such as that in Chicago, is not a possible legal procedure in New York, but gave it as his opinion that "there was no adequate explanation or excuse for the increased budget for 1932."

Chicago Decision Cited.

"The disastrous, not to say hopeless, financial plight of Chicago is dramatized by the decision of County Judge Jarecki in which he finds that the assessments levied for 1928 and 1929 were fraudulently unequal," Mr. Grimm says. "The effect of the decision is that county tax bills based on those assessments are thrown out and are therefore uncollectible. In short, on a most important point the taxpayers strike in Chicago is upheld in the courts.

"It is impossible for us to realize the desperate situation that the city of Chicago must be in, but if, indeed, we cannot grasp its meaning and its pitiful effect, we can grasp the lesson for our city for just as surely as disaster has overtaken Chicago, so will the time come in New York City, if we longer continue on the present course of spending without regard for the ability of the tax payers to pay.

Taxing Power Defined.

"One thing, however, must be clearly understood. Our city government is so differently constituted from that of Chicago, and the taxing power so clearly defined, and the responsibility for it placed in one source, that a tax strike is not a possible procedure legally. There may be other ways for a beridden New York taxpayer to seek relief, and the law clearly defines what they are, but he cannot start a strike. Any loose talk of that nature should cease.

"City taxes are quite definitely a first lien on real property, coming ahead of the first mortgage. Your property may be in trouble, but the city taxes must and will be paid. Whatever the conveyances may be and however the financial structure is reorganized, the government of our city differs from Chicago in this important respect: where Chicago has several local governing bodies, such as school board, park board, county board, sanitary boards, and the like, each with its independent power to tax, in New York City we have only one.

"New York City is saved for the time being by the wisdom of its charter fathers. May we not rely too much on that, but tighten our belts now against the future."

'VICTORY' DRIVE OF DEMOCRATS TO OPEN JAN. 14

Dinners in Chicago and 13 Other Cities.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

The Democratic national pre-convention campaign of 1932 is to be opened Jan. 14 with a set of "victory fund" dinners held simultaneously in 14 cities, it was announced yesterday by Robert F. Carr, Illinois chairman of the movement. The banquets will start the drive for a $1,500,000 fund to wipe out deficits and give the party a "flying start" and they are aimed to bring to the front business and professional men rather than the politicians.

The Illinois dinner is to be held at the Stevens hotel. More than 1,200 Democrats are expected to be present. The Illinois quota in the fund is $106,000. There is to be no solicitation at the dinner, the program being to raise the money by small contributions.

Al Smith in Boston.

At the Boston dinner Al Smith is to be chief speaker, according to the announced plans. At New York the speaker will be John W. Davis, Democratic candidate for President in 1924 and chairman of the general victory fund committee. At Baltimore Gov. A. C. Ritchie is to be a speaker. The Chicago program, which is not yet complete, includes Jouett Shouse, national executive chairman.

By means of a national radio hookup, participants in all the banquets are expected to hear the Smith and Davis addresses.

The plan for a $1,500,000 "victory fund" drive was announced last October by John J. Raskob, Democratic national chairman. The pre-convention needs were set forth as $400,000 to wipe out the 1928 deficit owed to Mr. Raskob, $600,000 to pay for national headquarters activities since 1928 and for their continuation up to the national convention, and $500,000 to create a "flying start" for the campaign.

Traylor in Conference.

Mr. Carr's announcement followed a conference attended by Melvin A. Traylor, president of the First National bank; Mr. Smith, county recorder, representing Mayor Cermak; William J. O'Connell, representing Senator James Hamilton Lewis; H. M. Peters, representing Mr. Raskob, and Robert J. Dunham, former vice president of Armour & Co., former Republican who is voluntarily helping in the Democratic campaign.

Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank is to have charge of the women's organization and Mayor Cermak is to be honorary chairman of the "Victory" dinner.

Mayor Cermak and a group of local chieftains will leave Thursday for Washington to urge the Democratic national committee to pick Chicago for the convention city, as the Republicans have already done. Edward N. Hurley, chairman of the non-partisan committee which seeks to bring both conventions to Chicago, will present the arguments. The Chicagoans will attend the Jackson Day banquet in Washington Jan. 8, and the committee meeting Jan. 9.

IT'S TAX DAY IN BRITAIN; MILLIONS SWELL TREASURY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 1.—England today swelled the coffers of the treasury with millions of dollars.

Three quarters of the year's income tax became payable on the first day of the year and it totalled an unusually heavy amount, since hundreds of thousands of persons paid taxes for the first time under the new law taxing lower incomes.

Records were established at every tax collector's office in London, where unending queues were lined up all day, besieging the clerks to relieve them of their money. The collectors' counters were piled high with treasury notes and checks, while sacks of mail arrived continuously in such bulk there was no time to deal with them.

ITALIAN LEADERS BLAME REDS FOR BOMB PACKAGES

Fascism Not the Only Target, They Believe.

The consensus among Italian-American leaders and students of Fascism here is that the shipment of high explosives to men identified with the Fascist movement is the work of a small group of communists using anti-Fascist sentiment as a blind for the work. They believe the bombs were sent by communists as a vague blow at American society in general, rather than against Fascism.

"It is ludicrous to believe the terroristic tactics were directed against Fascism," said Mario Lauro, Chicago attorney. "Practically all American citizens of Italian extraction are believers in Fascism on its record. Anti-Fascist terrorism directed against Americans could have no possible effect on Fascism in Italy."

Capable of Heavy Damage.

Mr. Lauto pointed to the character of the bombs discovered as proof of his contention the bombs were not intended solely for the men to whom they were addressed.

"Each bomb was filled with enough nitroglycerine to destroy a city block," he said. "Not only would they have destroyed the men to whom they were sent and the buildings in which they maintained their offices but, considering the location of these buildings, they would have done immense damage to a general populace."

Durante Suspects Reds.

Oscar Durante, publisher of L'Italia and vice president of the board of education, who received one of the bombs, said he had no idea as to the cause of the bomb sent to him nor as to the motive behind the terroristic movement.

"My paper has always been pro-Fascist," he said, "but we have always been fair to the other side. We believe in Fascism because under its rule Italy and Italians are better off than ever before. The bombs appear to be the work of communists."

Marco Adrogne, former president of the Italian Chamber of Commerce, said: "A majority of Chicago Italians believe in Fascism because they believe Italy is better under its rule. But their chief interest is in America. A blow against Italians in America is not a blow at Fascism in Italy. I believe the bombs were sent by the communist party with headquarters in Paterson, N. J."

FINLAND'S WETS PILE UP LEAD TO BURY DRY LAW

HELSINGFORS, Finland, Jan. 1.—(AP)—Tabulation of one-third of all the ballots cast in Finland's prohibition referendum today showed an increasing majority for repeal.

The count was 67,314 for continuing the present laws; 210,093 for repeal, and 3,274 for modification to permit light wines and beer.

The ultimate result is a foregone conclusion and popular speculation turned today to what course the government will take. It may call a special session of the legislature to consider changes in the law or it may leave the whole matter to the regular session beginning Feb. 1.

The objection to the latter course is that the diet, at the demand of one-third its membership [67 out of 200] must postpone debate on the issue to a later meeting. As the Socialists command 66 votes and might easily swing one more their way, they may decide on obstructionist tactics.

But the government is determined to settle this thing as quickly as possible, and if the Socialist bloc should delay the debate, the answer probably would be dissolution of the diet and a special election.

SEARCH EXPRESS HERE TO AVERT NEW BOMB PERIL

Police Are Vigilant After Missiles Are Sent to Two

All express packages reached Chicago yesterday were being inspected with unusual care, the inspectors being on the lookout for suspicious parcels which might contain bombs similar to the two received by prominent Italians here on Thursday, picked apparently as targets in a national anti-Fascist plot.

CAPT. SCHOEMAKER.

Bomb Exploded in Quarry.

The Castruccio bomb was exploded yesterday in the Bridewell quarry by Deputy Superintendent Peter I. Kielminski who, also detonated the one sent Oscar Durante, Italian-American editor and member of the board of education, on Thursday. Kielminski said the Castruccio bomb was even more powerful than the one sent Durante. It was believed to contain a flask of nitroglycerin. The explosion was heard over most sections of the west side.

Deputy Superintendent Kielminski took the Castruccio bomb to a spot in the middle of the quarry and attached a dynamite cap and a six foot fuse to it. He lighted it and ran several hundred feet away. The terrific explosion, he said, was of sufficient force to wreck a sizeable building.

Both Mr. Castruccio and Mr. Durante, the editor of L'Italia, daily Italian language newspaper, believed themselves the objects of a group of ignorant anarchists. The bombs sent them were believed similar to those which exploded in Easton, Pa., causing the deaths of three men. Similar ones were sent to Italian notables in Youngstown and Cleveland, O., and in Detroit.

Bombs Sent from New York.

The bombs sent to Mr. Castruccio and Mr. Durante were sent from New York. A third package, addressed from Chicago to "Tony Masillo," care of the Associated Press, 155 North Clark street, and which was turned over to postal authorities when the press service managers became suspicious of it, had not been opened last night. It had no return address. Unlike the others, which came by express, this was sent by parcel post.

It weighed only a few ounces and was wrapped in white paper, in the manner of a Christmas present; was about two inches thick, a foot long and eight inches wide. The press service has no "Tony Masillo" in its employ here and it was not believed that the package contained a bomb.

Chief Postal Inspector K. P. Aldrich assigned men to the bomb lookout yesterday, but his division, being only concerned with mails, will probably not take as great a part in the investigation as the department of justice, which investigates illegal interstate shipments.

The Railway Express agency had extra clerks inspecting packages yesterday. Much of this activity was centered in the money and jewelry department, where most of the small packages are cleared. No parcel of a nature to excite their suspicions had been found at the close of the day.

Suspected Bomb Found.

New York, Jan. 1.—[Special.]—Federal authorities here disclosed tonight that a package believed to contain a bomb had been found in the postoffice at New Haven, Conn. Their theory was that this supposed bomb was one of a number which have been mailed or sent by express to prominent Italians favorable to the Fascist régime.

PARIS TO SPEND $200,000,000 FOR A WATER SYSTEM

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, Jan. 1.—The municipal council passed a project yesterday by which Paris will get its water from the River Loire instead of from the Seine.

The program provides for the expenditure ultimately of $200,000,000, and will provide 1,000,000 cubic meters of water daily. Completion is planned in two stages, the first half to be finished about 1938.

The council voted much the same project in 1913, but the outbreak of the war forced its abandonment. Recently many complaints have been made that the water Paris is now drinking has a bad taste, because of the need to sterilize it generously with chlorine and permanganate.

Body of Bullet Victim Found in Woods on Farm

The body of an unidentified man, about 40 years old, was found yesterday in a wooded area on the farm of Herman Barlewort on Route 51, about a mile north of Frankfort, Ill. The man had been shot in the back of the head with a shotgun and had been dead about four days. The police believe the victim was walking in the woods with a companion who shot him accidentally and was afraid to report it, or that he was taken into the woods to be murdered. He was 5 feet 8 inches tall, weighed 175 pounds, wore a dark leather jacket and dark trousers.

CLERK IN HOTEL ROBBED.

HOOVER SHAKES FEWER HANDS IN NEW YEAR'S LINE

Decline Is Attributed to the Rain.

By GENEVIEVE FORBES HERRICK.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 1.—[Special.]—President Hoover today shook the smooth hand of diplomacy, the rough hand of democracy, at the historic New Year's reception at the White House.

The diplomatic hands, and these belonged to native officials as well as to foreign envoys, numbered 1,196 this morning, as against 1,392 last year. The democratic hands, proffered by the public this afternoon, totaled 1,906, as compared to the 4,627 of 1931. But White House attachés thought that was "pretty good considering the rain."

The pattern of this twofold reception, social descendant of the one given by John and Abigail Adams in 1800, was just about the same as usual. About the average number of foreign diplomats, or say 20 or 30, kissed Mrs. Hoover's hand. About the average number of bewildered babies—12, maybe 15—were carried by their President.

Number One Holds His Place.

And J. W. Hunefeld, the house painter who for many years has been number one man in the public line, stood for hours in a wet drizzle of rain, declined a warm breakfast in a White House office, and won his reward by again leading the line when the public reception started at 1 o'clock.

Suppose you go with me to the reception to celebrities. You go to the front door of the White House, present your credentials, hand your silk hat and stick to a servant, and walk past the marine band, in its coats of scarlet, pants of blue. Turn to the right and you are in the great state dining room.

Here you find Warren Delano Robbins, trouble shooter for the state department social crises, busy with a bundle of cards. He assigns you to your rank in the procession. Diplomats come first, each in order of service, then the Supreme court. That is what is known as international courtesy. If the party were at a foreign embassy, the Supreme court would get first. Then comes this branch of the government service, and that.

Line Enters Red Room.

At precisely 11 the line starts into the red room, which is to the left of the dining room. At the doorway between the red and blue rooms an usher halts you, rechecks what Mr. Robbins has done, and lets in each group, nation by nation, into the blue room, where the President and Mrs. Hoover, guarded by secret service men, are saying, "Happy New Year."

Pause at the door of this blue room and look on.

The first foreign delegation to enter is the Italian, led by Ambassador De Martino, who is dean of the diplomatic corps. He is presented to the President by a naval aid. He bows low, presents his wife, shakes hands with the Hoovers, and steps back a pace. Then he introduces, by name, each of his suite, and any of the wives who have come along. Japan brings its wives; China doesn't. Neither does Siam, Haiti, Egypt and several others.

When Ambassador De Martino is through with the introductions he steps back into line, leads his suite into the green room, out into the large east room, back again past the marine band and out the front door.

Brilliant Uniforms.

Next comes the Japanese, in dark uniforms with sunbursts of brilliants and wide sashes of pale blue silk. The Poles look gay in their suits of bright, bright blue, until you glimpse Sir Ronald Lindsay, the six feet four British ambassador in his court costume of blue and gold, with his white plumed cocked hat and his glittering decorations.

Brazil wears vivid green; Spain, no longer royal, walks in ordinary black. The Mexican diplomats, with black mustaches and black patented leather hip boots, are much regarded. But the Hungarian delegation gets even more attention. The minister, Count Laszlo Szechenyi, wears, you can see, a black patch over his right eye, and he is married, you can hear them whisper about you, to a Vanderbilt. Also, his military attaché carries a huge silver cutlass which is wondrous to behold out of a play.

Broad is the breast of Swedish Minister W. Bostrum, and it needs to be, for it is covered with dozens of medals. From beneath the skirts of his blue frock coat gleams a sword. Norway is distinguished for broad purple sashes, while the Danish minister has the brightest scarlet coat you ever saw. The Egyptians, with tall red fezes, bend low to kiss Mrs. Hoover's hand.

Now you see the Supreme court, led by Chief Justice Hughes, but with the venerable Mr. Justice Holmes absent because of the bad weather.

Eight heroes, all medal of honor men, come next. Two of them are colored, Master Sergeant Wanton and Private E. Bell, Vice Admiral Huse and Rear Admiral Moffett are in the distinguished group.

Next in line, the program reads, comes the congressional delegation, but you will see only five senators: Capper of Kansas, Dale and Austin of Vermont, Davis of Pennsylvania and Harris of Georgia.

"Army" Marches By.

The army marches briskly by, with Secretary of War Hurley at the president's side. Nobody of a rank less than a colonel rates a place in the march. Secretary of the Navy Adams reviews his men. Nobody less than a commander is allowed in the crowd.

The reception is over a few minutes after noon. The Hoovers go upstairs for a little lunch, and you come back to the blue room at 1 o'clock to see the public line. There are more secret service men this time; there are no introductions by name, and if anybody tried any hand kissing he would probably be ushered into the corridor. But the crowd has a gay good time, and as it loiters in the east room you hear the man saying to his wife:

"He said, 'I'm glad to see you.'"

And you hear the woman saying to her husband:

"She didn't just say, 'Happy New Year.' She said, 'A very happy New Year.'"

SNOW FALLS IN CITY ON FIRST EVENING OF NEW YEAR

Mercury to Fall

Snow started falling in Chicago last night, after a clammy day marked by drizzling rains. The temperature remained well above freezing, however, and most of the snow melted as it fell. Today's prediction was for clouded skies, and possibly more rain or snow. The temperature is expected to fall a little. No unusually cold weather prevailed anywhere in the United States east of the Rockies yesterday. Over the eastern half of the country temperatures were above normal.

Two Day New Year's County Auto Death Toll Reaches 24 Despite Safety Measures

Despite warnings of safety experts to motorists demanding caution in driving during the New Year's holiday period, fatalities in auto accidents in Cook county for two days reached a total of 24 last night. Twelve persons, including nine drowned when an auto plunged into a river in South Chicago, met death on Thursday, and the toll for the first day of 1932 was twelve more deaths.

Following the record breaking fatality list of 1,306 for 1931, the New Year's death toll was one of the most disastrous in the city's history. On Christmas eve, Christmas day, and the following week-end the mortalities totaled 26, and with 24 deaths already listed the New Year's week-end is expected to exceed that mark.

Youth Killed; Driver Flees.

Dudley W. A'Neals Jr., 23 years old, 6324 North Oakley avenue, was found in a dying condition at Western and Balmoral avenues early yesterday morning. Thought to have been the victim of a hit and run motorist, he was taken to the Swedish Covenant hospital, where he died of his injuries without regaining consciousness.

The father of the youth, head of the firm of A'Neals & Son, surveyors, said that his son had left home early in the evening to attend a neighborhood celebration. Presumably the victim was struck while returning home.

Youths Fail to Stop.

Valentine Schmidt, 50 years old, 2132 Belmont avenue, a cabinetmaker, was run down and fatally injured at Western and Belle Plaine avenues early yesterday morning by an automobile in which three youths were returning from a watch party celebration. They did not stop the car and made their escape. Witnesses took the injured man to the Martha Washington hospital, where he died within an hour.

A few minutes later the youths appeared at the North Damen avenue police station and surrendered. They are Earl Somach, 19 years old, 3941 North Oakley avenue, the driver; Richard Nannon, 19 years old, 3909 North Claremont avenue, and Matthew Boz, 20 years old, 3852 North Oakley avenue. They said that fright had caused them to flee, but they soon decided to admit their guilt. Police held them for the inquest.

Killed After Smashup.

Steve Novak, 35 years old, 9436 Champlain avenue, was instantly killed when he was struck by an automobile as he leaped from his own car a moment after it had collided with a third machine. The accident occurred at 95th street and Ingleside avenue. Police held John Piano, 6405 South Keating avenue, driver of the death car.

Other fatalities, not including three immediately after midnight yesterday, were:

Edward Gierschke, 69 years old, 850 West Washington boulevard. Died at the Belmont hospital from injuries sustained New Year's eve when he was run down near the home of his son at 5931 Elston avenue. The driver was Edward Potente, 1016 60th avenue, Kenosha, Wis.

Harold Michaelson, 52 years old, 1749 Hancock street. Died at the Lutheran Memorial hospital from injuries suffered when he was struck by an auto at Humboldt boulevard and Wabansia avenue. The driver was Albert Johnson, 17 North Mayfield avenue.

Dr. Daniel McIsaac, 40 years old, X-ray operator at the Rogers Park Community hospital, 6970 North Clark street. Died at St. Luke's hospital of injuries suffered when he was struck by an automobile at Jackson boulevard and Michigan avenue. The car was driven by Edward Murchison, 7142 Evans avenue.

Joseph Kelly, 48 years old, 210 East Walton place, a chauffeur. Died at the Passavant hospital from a skull fracture sustained earlier in the day when he was run down at Chicago avenue and Rush street. The driver was Edward H. Hopkinson, 542 South Gunderson avenue, Oak Park.

Miss Mildred Hendrix, 20 years old, 2727 West 163d street, Hessville, Ind. Died at St. Margaret's hospital, Hammond, from injuries sustained when the auto in which she was riding collided with another car at Sibley boulevard and Wentworth avenue, Calumet City.

Miss Blanche Pierce, 20 years old, 4931 West Washington boulevard. Died at the Garfield Park hospital from hurts suffered when she was struck at Madison street and Keeler avenue. The driver was Edward J. Bradley, 54 North Waller avenue.

DRY IS SHOCKED BY WHAT HE SEES IN THE PAPERS

This New Year Revelry Is Fiction, He Says.

Thomas Ryan, night desk man at the prohibition headquarters, was indignant yesterday as he perused newspaper accounts of the New Year's eve celebration.

"It says here," declared Mr. Ryan, pointing at the newspapers before him, "that the New Year celebration was noisy and hilarious. It says there was plenty of liquor and whoopee.

"I sat for twelve hours at this desk while 1931 merged into 1932. All over the city squads of our agents were roaming. They reported to me every hour. They visited the cabarets, the restaurants, every place where liquor might be expected to be consumed.

No Drinking, He Says.

"They reported that it was the quietest New Year's eve in history. There was no drinking anywhere. There weren't any crowds. In many places the orchestra players were the only ones present. In only one place, at 2530 Milwaukee avenue, did they see a violation of the law and they made two arrests.

"Those boys are keen observers. They worked tirelessly far into the morning. One zealous lad, a fine boy he is, too, called nine times in a half hour to report that everything was quiet in the same place."

Mr. Ryan sighed. He gave a little discourse on the trends of modern civilization.

What Police Records Show.

Police records yesterday indicated that some of the celebrants exceeded the limits of innocent fun. Among the incidents reported as an aftermath of the celebration were:

Donald Eddington, 23 years old, 630 Wellington avenue, died in the Lake View hospital shortly after he had fallen, striking his head against a kitchen sink, while attending a New Year's eve party in the apartment of Mrs. Jeanne Wall, 4717 Sheridan road. Drinks had been served at the party, the Town Hall police were informed.

Andrew Niwke, 933 Ashland avenue, Evanston, was found dead in bed yesterday morning of injuries he incurred in a fall down the stairs in his house after coming home from a party. Evanston police said Niwke was intoxicated.

Massillon, O., Jan. 1.—(AP)—Jacob S. Coxey of "Coxey's Army" fame was inaugurated as mayor of Massillon today, his first public office.

The "general" pledged his administration to uphold the bill of rights outlined in the constitution.

"I intend to place in the police station a placard," he said, quoting articles I. and IV. dealing with searches and seizures and right of free speech for the instruction of the police force.

"I am determined that the bill of rights shall be revived and that the rights and privileges taken from the people by liquor and other law enforcement agencies shall be restored."

CITY FINDS LESS SPENT AND WITH BETTER RESULTS

Department Reports Tell of Savings.

In the anual reports issued yesterday by city hall departments, Mayor Cermak showed reductions in expenditures under the sums spent by the former administration and an increase in efficiency through the elimination of unnecessary employés and the reorganization of activities within departments.

The city law department, comprising the corporation counsel, city attorney, city prosecutor and the attorney for the board of local improvements, was pointed to as one example. In this office the number of employes on April 9, 1931, was 239. This number was reduced after Mayor Cermak took office to 143, a reduction of 96.

Cut Department Spending.

The expenditures of the law department decreased also. During the first four months of the year $329,304 was spent out of the total appropriation of $845,080. From May 1 to Dec. 9, or a period of seven and one-half months, as compared to four months, the expenditures were $319,200. Similarly, where the former administration had spent $115,612 during the early part of the year for special counsel, the Cermak administration spent only $18,732.

Corporation Counsel Sexton also noted that he spent a great part of his time in the consideration of revenue laws of the state, the consolidation of local governments, home rule, issued the first complete revision of the Chicago code since 1922, worked on legislation affecting the development of Calumet harbor, issued 450 formal opinions to department heads and the council, and is defending the city in the transit suits, the gas cases, and the operation of one man street cars.

Judgment Amounts Decrease.

City Attorney Smietanka reported that the judgments against the city under Cermak averaged only $895 per case as compared to $1,122 per case in 1930 under the previous administration. City Prosecutor Rosinia prosecuted 112,733 cases for violations of the city code and caused fines totaling $298,279 to be levied against the defendants.

"In spite of the fact that the city has been unable to sell tax warrants to the banks," stated City Controller Szymczak, "this department has financed payrolls so that they have been paid promptly and has also advanced approximately $5,000,000 to the schools, public library, and municipal tuberculosis sanitarium for pay roll purposes."

License Receipts Increase.

In the office of City Controller Kaindl the receipts from general licenses and permits during 1931 amounted to $3,286,638, an increase over the $3,261,003 collected during 1930. City Clerk Brady showed an increase in vehicle tax collections from $5,249,744 in 1930 to $5,304,129 in 1931, despite business conditions.

A reorganization of the police department, which is not yet completed, has averted increased insurance rates on automobiles, according to Commissioner of Police Allman, and has resulted in 179 policemen being removed from special assignments and returned to patrol duty. The total arrests during 1931 were 142,863 as compared to 183,439 during 1930. The decrease was effected by eliminating unnecessary arrests.

In the fire department the number of alarms fell off from 27,335 in 1930 to 22,398 in 1931, and the number of fires from 21,267 in 1930 to 17,298 in 1931. The department also saved $500,000 out of its appropriation through the mayor's economy program.

Other Departments Active.

A brief summary of the accomplishments of other departments follows:

Department of Public Works—Installed 13,565 meters, pumped an average of 1,132,760,000 gallons of water per day, saved $481,206 in the bureau of streets under the appropriation, erected 660 traffic signals, saved $100,000 in the water bureau and made improvements at the airport.

Health department—Maintained the general death rate at the lowest level on record, about 10.4 per one thousand population, reduced the number of infant deaths, increased the number of examinations of school children for defects and saved $300,000 out of the appropriation.

829 Building Permits Issued.

Building department—Issued 829 permits for the construction of buildings at an estimated cost of $14,533,980, razed 727 old buildings, and saved $58,816.

Department of gas and electricity—Placed in service 9,121 street lights, displacing 4,300 gas lamps and 400 gasoline lamps.

Department of public welfare—Established a home for women with facilities for 150 women.

Civil service commission—Investigated the actions of 265 employés, discharged from the force 64 policemen after trial, held 72 examinations and examined 74,407 applicants for positions.

Board of local improvements—Eliminated a number of unnecessary employés, constructed 49 miles of pavement by special assessment and private contract and laid 27 miles of brick and tile pipe sewers.

WHAT GOOD WILL THIS LOOT BE TO ANY BANDIT?

The police were searching last night for three stuffed pheasants, four deer heads, seven calf skins, one small black stuffed bear, one deer skin, an elk head, two stuffed dogs, and one live police dog. This was the loot taken during New Year's eve from a taxidermist's shop at 723 Milwaukee avenue.

Frank Dombowsky, owner of the shop, placed his loss at $400. He could not imagine, Dombrowsky said, what the burglar would do with his haul.

The West Chicago avenue police admitted they were baffled, but announced two theories. One was that the buarglar was a student of zoölogy, and the other that he might have been a New Year's revelar.

MAY WED

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

New York, Jan. 1.—[Special.]—Elsie Janis may, after all, get married. The famous "bachelor girl" of the stage is quoted as having said she may soon become the bride of Gilbert Wilson, youthful Hollywood actor.

"Well, as it stands at the moment, my friendship with Mr. Wilson has progressed farther in the direction of matrimony than any other friendship I've ever had or been accused of having. It's quite probable that Mr. Wilson and I will be married within the next few weeks or months," Miss Janis said.

"Gilbert is a wonderful guy and not a 'big shot' in the ordinary sense of the word. However, I've spent most of my life in the company of the so-called 'big shots' and they all failed to interest me. So now I've picked out a regular fellow.

"So many newspaper stories have been printed in the past detailing what purported to be my plans to wed this man and that man that I doubt if any one will take this announcement seriously.

"But I'll tell you all about it in a couple of weeks."

WATERWAY MAY DO AWAY WITH LIFT BRIDGES

Engineer Hopes for Changes in Spans.

On the eve of his departure for New York, his new headquarters, Col. William C. Weeks of the United States engineers yesterday expressed the "unofficial" opinion that when the Illinois waterway and Calumet harbor projects are completed Chicago can dispense with its traffic menacing lift bridges.

COL. W. C. WEEKS.
[Acme Photo.]

This opinion was expressed in connection with the announcement that on Jan. 25 there will be a public hearing in the city council chambers on the proposal that fixed highway bridges with a clearance of 25 feet above the city datum be permitted across the Des Plaines river, the sanitary and ship canal, and the Illinois and Michigan canal at Justice Park.

Favor Fixed Bridges.

A board of army engineers has already passed upon a proposal for fixed bridges with a clearance of 25 feet across the Sag canal at Blue Island and the proposal for similar permission at Justice Park is expected to receive favorable action. Moveable bridges, in the opinion of engineers, are out of the question at Blue Island, since there are four railway bridges there and they would paralyze railway traffic.

The new railway bridges, which the government expects to build eventually, will have a clearance of 25 feet vertically, and 200 feet across the channel.

The fixed bridges were determined upon because of the engineers' belief that the Sag canal, which branches off from the sanitary and ship canal at Sag Junction, 12 miles this side of Lockport, is the only feasible link between the Mississippi, through the Illinois waterway, and the Calumet harbor, the destination of the barge cargoes because of the manufactories in that area. Barges would not be able to go out through the Chicago river and down the lake to Calumet harbor in stormy weather.

Works on Calumet Report.

A board of engineers is now at work preparing a report and recommendations as the result of a survey in the Calumet district. This report, soon to be submitted to the chief of engineers, will set forth the extent of improvements in the Calumet district which would be justified by their value to navigation.

If this project is carried, and Col. Weeks hopes that it will be, there will be a 200 foot channel, with a depth of 17½ feet, from the sanitary and ship canal at Sag Junction to Calumet harbor. Col. Weeks also predicted that the eleven slips between 22d street, on the south, and the west fork of the south branch of the Chicago river, would become transfer terminals. This would enable vessels from the lake to come through the Calumet harbor and Sag canal, instead of through the Chicago river, and exchange cargoes with the barges from the Mississippi.

Col. Weeks asserted that the possibility of fixed bridges for Chicago would require years for realization, but said that the present lift bridges could be replaced with fixed ones, providing a clearance of 25 feet instead of 16½, with no serious obstruction to navigation. The Illinois waterway is to be completed by Oct. 15, 1932, if the present plans of the war department are carried out, but the improvements in the Calumet district, if determined upon, will require two or three years.

Starting Point in a Vast Lake Front Project.

terests involved, as stated by Mr. Simpson:

"1. Of the estimated cost of this suggested new passenger terminal, nearly $12,000,000 will be spent for labor, thereby greatly relieving unemployment.

To Increase City Revenues.

"2. This station can be built without spending a dollar of public money and without adding a dollar to the taxes of the people of Chicago. On the contrary it will actually increase municipal revenues and thereby, perhaps, make it possible to reduce taxes somewhat. This increased city revenue will come through transforming a large and close-in district, which for years has been blighted because its natural development has been retarded by adjacent railroad occupancy, into one of the highest type of development, part and parcel of the loop itself.

"3. The proposed station will require a minimum of capital expenditure by the railroads. In fact it should mean the return to them of a considerable part of the capital outlay already made for existing terminal facilities.

"The Illinois Central is under contract with the City of Chicago to build a new station at Roosevelt road large enough to accommodate all the other roads. The Randolph street terminal will not cost any more than the Roosevelt road station; thus it will not increase the capital expenditure of this particular railroad.

"Further, the expenditure made by the Illinois Central in building this station will be offset in two ways; first by the rentals received from the other roads using the system; second, by increasing the value of the realty by making possible and bringing to early realization the development of air rights throughout the remainder of the Illinois Central's 85 acre area. Thus the suggested terminal should prove a splendid financial investment for the Illinois Central.

Help to Other Roads.

"A proper charge per car made for station use by other railroads should not only reduce present station costs for all the other roads, but the freeing of their present passenger terminal properties for other uses should far more than offset the cost of renting space in the Randolph station, either by a major reduction in their present capital outlay through the sale of their present station properties or through the rent received from the commercial use of such station areas.

"Thus it will be greatly to the financial advantage of all south side railroads to unite in the suggested Randolph terminal, in addition to the other benefits to come from newer and better station facilities, closer connection with the heart of the city, improved access, better passenger service and other well known advantages of consolidation and simplification, which always result in lower operating costs."

"4. The new station would not increase the annual tax of any railroad involved, but would decrease taxes for all roads except the Illinois Central. That road has a provision in its charter that its annual tax shall amount to 7 per cent of its gross revenue. The tax on a new station would be no greater than on its present depot. If the other roads build new terminals of their own, their tax on such station development would be increased just as was the case with the Union station on Canal street. If they use a station constructed on Illinois Central property, they pay no tax on their terminal. Therefore this saving in taxes means a substantial benefit to them.

Near to Shopping Areas.

"5. The Randolph street site is in intimate contact with the hotel and shopping districts, and actually more centrally located with respect to the heart of the business district than any of the terminals now occupied by the south side railroads. It has street access unequaled elsewhere. Uninterrupted traffic movement on the lake front superhighways, Sheridan road, and Outer drive along the south shore, is supplemented by widened La Salle street and South Park Way, while east and west access is possible by way of widened Wacker drive without the necessity of traversing crowded loop streets. Street car and elevated railroad transportation facilities are nearby, and will be made even more convenient by the underground passage suggested as part of the general scheme.

"6. There can be no denying the fact that the presence of the railroad stations in the area bounded by Roosevelt road, Van Buren street, State street, and the Chicago river has prevented the natural development of the entire southern portion of the loop district. Removing the several passenger stations, and restricting the freight areas to south of Roosevelt road would remove this blight and permit this district to grow and develop normally, to the tremendous benefit of the city as a whole and the gain of the property owners throughout the entire section.

Boon to Street Opening.

"7. This would have the further effect of making it easier and very much cheaper for the city to open Market, Franklin, Wells, La Salle, and Dearborn streets through this district and on through the railroad freight area south of Roosevelt road. North of Roosevelt road these streets should be opened at the normal street level, which is not only much less costly, but also much better from the standpoint of street traffic and adjacent building development.

"It should stimulate the opening of these streets through the area now absorbed by railroad occupancy, and nothing of greater benefit for that section of the city could possibly be done than removing the present railroad blight and giving the district adequate and uninterrupted access to the remainder of Chicago, both of which betterments will greatly stimulate high class building development all the way from the lake to the river and from the present southern boundary of the loop at least to Roosevelt road."

Eugene S. Taylor, manager of the Chicago plan commission, gives the following statement of the background of the terminal movement and the reasons for the proposed revision:

"In 1908 the plan commission of Chicago suggested a series of terminals along the west side of Canal street and the south side of Roosevelt road. The Chicago and North Western railroad and the Union station group of railroads have built new depots along Canal street. The group fronting on Roosevelt road, however, remains but a dream.

"The south side terminal situation is at a standstill, and it is apparent that it is folly to cling longer to a faint hope that sometime, somehow the suggested Roosevelt road terminal will become a reality. And until the terminal question is decided there is little prospect of getting streets opened through the south side railroad area.

Roads Oppose Change.

"During the Union station negotiations of 1914 the Chicago plan commission to the best of its ability endeavored to persuade the Union station roads to move their proposed new station back to Roosevelt road. The railroads would not agree to this location, primarily because they felt that Roosevelt road was so far from the business center that they would lose a great deal of their passenger business to their competititors.

"During the Illinois Central terminal negotiations of 1919, the city had in mind consolidating all the south side railroads in the proposed new Illinois Central depot on the lake front at Roosevelt road. For the last thirteen years the Illinois Central has been trying, without success, to induce the thirteen other roads now using the Dearborn, Van Buren, and Harrison street stations to come in with them.

Millions for Terminals.

"Two other factors of great importance have also had considerable bearing on the question of new terminal development. One is the enormous capital investment required. The Chicago and North Western depot cost $20,000,000; the Union station $75,000,000; and the estimated cost of the Roosevelt road Illinois Central depot, including electrification, etc., amounts to the total of $88,000,000. The other factor is the increased tax burden resulting from a new terminal. The Union station tax, it is understood, was increased by over a million dollars a year for the new station over the old one.

"From time to time during the last two decades various people have suggested the possibility of building a new passenger terminal at Randolph street, east of Michigan avenue, to house all 15 south side roads now using four south side depots. Until recently a number of these railroads did a very considerable suburban passenger business, and it was generally believed that the narrow right of way of the Illinois Central along Grant park was not sufficient to care for the suburban and through passenger business of these 15 railroads.

Suburban Traffic Reduced.

"Today, however, conditions are materially changed. No longer do the railroads do such a tremendous volume of suburban business. Even the volume of through passenger business had declined materially. Other changes in railroad operation have come about.

"Air rights development over railroad tracks has become a reality. The Outer drive along the south side lake front has been built and its connection with the Lake Shore drive on the north side is under construction. A widened Randolph street viaduct east of Michigan avenue has been designed and the cost of its construction has been financed. An easement has been given to the city for a wide Wacker drive east of Michigan avenue and other streets have been provided for in this district.

"Now, studies indicate, the narrowest portion of the Illinois Central right of way is more than ample to accommodate all the through passenger trains and all the suburban trains of the fifteen south side railroads, with sufficient additional capacity in reserve to care for all the future expansion that reasonably can be anticipated."

Many Plans Realized.

In the course of its twenty years' history many of the great plans of the commission and its founders have developed from the dream stage to actuality. The lake front development is one, Michigan boulevard is another. The river straightening is now completed and the outer drive is approaching completion. Wacker drive is an example of what happens when a goal is presented and the public consciousness reaches the decision that the time has come to reach that goal.

The Randolph street terminal and all its possible development in adjacent territory is the new goal now set up. Its backers have complete faith in it and see no justification for doubt that this new growth will be needed. They are looking beyond the present mood of the people.

"This is a gift to the people," said Mr. Graham. "It contemplates the greatest railroad center development ever known, greater even than the Park avenue and Grand Central development in New York."

Mr. Graham has figured the cost at $16,200,000 for the building and $10,000,000 valuation on the land, on a rental basis of $10 a square foot. Its bearing on electrification will be important, as it is hoped to have the trains pulled in and out by electric engines, as in New York. This would be subject to the requirements of each road, as it comes into the terminal system at different points. The nearest southern connection would be at 16th street.

The stimulation of business growth in the district is seen in the estimate of Mr. Graham that 200,000 persons a day would pass in and out of the station.

As an extension of the terminal facilities a great underground development is being planned, including an excavation that would take care of 4,000 parked cars.

Describes Proposed Building.

Something like this is in operation under Piccadilly Circus in London and at the subway entrances in New York. A description of the proposed station building is given by Alfred Shaw of the firm of Graham, Anderson, Probst & White, as follows:

"The terminal building would be an imposing structure. The area of the two blocks it would occupy is 175,000 square feet. The station facilities would be on one level—that of the mezzanine between the track level and the upper street level. This arrangement locates all the terminal facilities as close to the trains and platforms as possible.

"The concourse, which will be a room of 130 feet by 400 feet and almost 100 feet high, is located at the north end of the building. Opening from it would be ticket office, baggage checking, parcel checking, waiting rooms, restaurants and all the various conveniences and concessions which go along with a great terminal.

PROTEST CLOSING OF FIRE STATION ON GOOSE ISLAND

Business Men Cite Peril to Industries.

The industries located on Goose island yesterday protested to Mayor Cermak against the closing of the fire station at 1016 West Division street. The station, which is the only one on the island, was abandoned yesterday with three other stations by order of Acting Fire Commissioner Carmody.

In a petition sent to the mayor, M. F. Kent, executive secretary of the North Branch Industrial association, pointed out that the danger of a conflagration on the island is increased because the nearest fire company may be blocked from getting on the island by trains or open bridges.

Cites Fire Hazards.

"The fire hazards of the properties located on Goose Island," said Mr. Kent, "are greater than those of any other industrial district in the city, as these properties include grain elevators, storage warehouses, coal and lumber yards, furniture and other woodworking factories, paint and varnish works and the city garbage incinerator.

"These properties, with a value of many millions of dollars, are now in greater jeopardy in case of fire because the only approaches to the island are bridges. There is no entrance to the island from the north and at the south end the fire companies would be blocked by the supports of the new Ogden avenue improvement.

"That leaves only the two bridges in West Division street over which fire companies could reach the island. The fire company in North Halsted street might be temporarily blocked by railway trains or by an open bridge from reaching the island in time to extinguish fires that could spread into a conflagration, and the west approach might also be blocked. It is necessary to have a fire company housed on the island."

Another Protest Made.

A delegation headed by Congressman Sabath protested to the mayor against closing the fire station at 1156 West 22d street. The mayor stated to them that because of the necessity of reducing expenditures it will be necessary to abandon also some police stations and consolidate several police districts.

The four stations closed yesterday were engine 15 at 1156 West 22d street, engine 86 at 2414 Cuyler avenue, engine 90 at 1016 West Division street, and engine 105 at 2337 West Erie street. The men and officers were shifted to other companies.

9 Night Schools Eliminated for Sake of $350,000 Saving

Following the school board's order for a reduction in the number of night schools, Supt. William J. Bogan yesterday designated nine schools at which the evening sessions will be discontinued. The schools selected for the economy ax by Supt. Bogan with the assistance of Charles J. Lunak, assistant superintendent in charge of evening schools, are Bowen, Lindblom, and Medill High schools and the Andersen, Franklin, Jackson, Goethe, Stowe, and Jones Elementary schools. Elimination of evening classes in these schools will save an estimated $350,000 a year, according to Mr. Bogan.

Classes in 13 Schools.

Of the nine evening schools to be closed, two are located on the south side, two on the west side, four on the north and northwest sides, and one in the loop. Classes wil be continued in the remaining 13 schools which were opened to evening instruction in September.

Numbered among these are six accredited high schools, five opportunity high schools, and two elementary schools. The courses at the accredited schools lead to diplomas acceptable to universities and to state licensing examinations on the same basis as those given graduates of day high schools. The opportunity classes are designed for students who do not wish credit toward graduation. All include history and English for foreign language speaking persons.

Fifty Thousand in Night Schools.

Registration in the evening schools is in excess of 50,000 men, women, and children. About 9,000 are affected by the closing order, according to Dr. Lunak, and they are being directed to one or another of the 13 schools which are to continue in operation. Because of the inconvenience it will entail, a marked decrease in total attendance is anticipated, he said.

DANUBE NATIONS ACT TO CREATE CUSTOMS UNION

Drop Disputes in Effort to Whip Depression.

BY WILLIAM SHIRER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VIENNA, Jan. 1.—This was a dismal New Year's day. The blackest and most hopeless holiday these parts have seen since 1919 found central Europe's diplomats in a secret huddle in a desperate attempt to find a way out of the economic and political morass which involved the Danube valley and just about finished it.

A few, not many, watched the old year out to the cracking of champagne bottles and music. And as usual a few—old Hungarian men and women—tried to commit suicide as they always do each New Year's eve.

But Vienna, Prague and Budapest private conversations went on which may soon end in the birth or rebirth of the idea which went west with the fall of the Hapsburgs. That is the Danube confederation—economic this time to be sure—not political. In the minds of most of central Europe's statesmen, it looms as the only hope left. If it fails, then chaos is sure, they say.

The idea that central European nations, each suspicious and jealous, and in the case of Czecho-Slovakia and Jugo-Slavia, armed to the teeth, would have to drop their differences and form at least a customs union has been growing for years. A few weeks ago, after the emergency currency laws completely isolated these nations from one another because the currency of one was not good in the other, secret negotiations began. The germ of the Danube valley customs union sprouted.

Since last Saturday when Eduard Benes, Czech foreign minister and bitter enemy of a Danube confederation, publicly offered Czecho-Slovakia's coöperation for some system of central European economic union, the ball has been rolling very fast up and down the Danube.

His Surrender Important.

The surrender of Benes is important in itself. He is a personal foe of Count Stephen Bethlen, resigned prime minister of Hungary, who reciprocates the feeling, and of Hungary, which he suspects of trying to restore the Hapsburgs, whom he loathes. Benes long held out against a rapproachment among the Danube states. Dispatches tonight said that Benes' sudden change was inspired by France, which is now definitely seeking to build up a Danube customs union to which Paris would act as overseer.

France already oversees the little entente and by reason of recent loans to Vienna and Budapest expects little difficulty in bringing Austria and Hungary into the fold.

Negotiations, it is learned, have been going on at Prague for the last ten days between Benes ard Count Gratz, former Hungarian minister of commerce, in behalf of Hungary. Gratz admitted today that the conversations mostly were concerned with a Danubian economic union. Negotiations will be continued next week at Budapest between Hungarian experts and Dr. Friedman, Czech delegate.

Benes' proposal calls for a central European economic planning scheme which would make the Danube valley practically an economic unit. He even stipulates the fusion of banks as necessary to the working of the project.

STUTTERER ON STAND LIVENS UP MINE TRIAL

Mount Sterling, Ky., Jan. 1.—[Special.]—Witness after witness took the stand in the Hightower murder trial today to tell of incendiary speeches made by Hightower and others to the striking miners of Harlan county.

William Hightower, 77 years old, defendant, is president of the mine union. The state accuses him of conspiracy with W. B. Jones, union secretary and others to bring about the armed uprising of miners at Evarts, Ky., last May that resulted in the killing of Deputy Jim Daniels and three others.

The star witness of the day was Butler Sanders, a stuttering miner, who created much merriment in the court room by his answers. Sanders said he was a member of the United Mine Workers and the National Mine Workers, that he attended many meetings. He saw Hightower there, heard him say "we won't have the black mountain thugs to contend with much longer. We are going to get rid of them."

When asked on cross-examination what he thought of such statements the witness replied: "Well, I didn't think they would do it. I just thought they were airing their heads."

40 EXECUTIONERS TO SHOOT 2 MEN IN BACK AT DAWN

CALTANISSETTA, Sicily, Jan. 1.—(AP)—Rather than start the new year with bloodshed, authorities here today postponed execution of two men for murder, but they will be tied in chairs and shot in the back at dawn tomorrow.

The executions will be the first for common crime in Italy in 41 years. They will be carried out simultaneously by a double firing squad of 40 men on a hillside near the local penitentiary, probably in public view. The 40 executioners arrived from Rome today especially for the occasion. They will fire one volley, half of them aiming at one of the murderers, half at the other.

The condemned men will be notified shortly before dawn that their appeal for royal clemency has been denied and the prison chaplain then will offer them the last rites of the church. The sentence will be the first to be carried out since the penal code was revised six months ago to restore capital punishment after 41 years.

HINDENBURG ASKS WORLD TO UNITE IN FIGHT ON PANIC

Gives Foreign Envoys New Year Greeting.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Jan. 1.—"All governments must coöperate sympathetically to end the depression. They must take into account the inexorable realities and thus bring about the recovery of trade and finances in the world."

This is what President von Hindenburg told the diplomatic corps accredited to Berlin when its members called upon him for the traditional exchange of New Year's wishes at the executive mansion this noon. Papal Nuncio Msgr. Orsenigo, heading the diplomats, spoke of the "scourge of unemployment" and the hardships the nation suffered last year, but in which he said he saw the warning of Providence.

Seize Several in Radio "Plot."

BERLIN, Jan. 1.—(AP)—Several suspects were arrested today by political police in their search for persons who interfered with a radio address of President Von Hindenburg last night.

The president was interrupted by a voice on the air saying: "Hello, hello, the sign of the red front is over Germany."

The police said their investigations had involved communist technicians in the workers' district of Neukoelln, who were alleged to have attached a microphone to a cable leading to a German radio station.

Except for a momentary silence the interruption was unheard in Berlin, but indignant reports which poured in here said it was plainly heard in the border provinces. The broadcast to foreign countries, however, was not affected.

Fascists and Reds Riot.

DANZIG, Jan. 1.—(AP)—A group of 20 Fascist followers of Adolf Hitler invaded a communist New Year's party in the fashionable suburb of Zoppot today. One person was killed and several wounded in the brawl which followed. Thirteen persons were arrested. The Hitler followers said they were fired upon first by the communists.

EUROPE MAY DROP PLAN TO REOPEN DEBTS QUESTION

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 1.—All European powers have now accepted Great Britain's suggestion for a reparations conference at Lausanne, Switzerland, but the date for the conference may be changed to Jan. 20 instead of Jan. 18 to satisfy the French.

As soon as the date is agreed upon the Swiss government will issue invitations. Sir Frederick Leith-Ross, British treasury expert, will return to France tomorrow to continue his discussions with the French treasury experts.

France and Britain have almost reached an agreement to confine the Lausanne meeting to reparations, leaving out war debts because of the opposition of the United States senate to further reduction of debts.

MEXICO FORBIDS CHURCH SERVICES ON NEW YEAR DAY

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 1.—(AP)—Mexico's capital lacked New Year masses in its Catholic churches today as the religious situation reached an impasse.

Church services throughout the federal district (Mexico City) were suspended by government order in churches where the priests had not yet complied with the new law limiting the clergy to one for every 50,000 inhabitants, a total of 25 for the district, and calling for their registration.

Archbishop Pascual Diaz, on the other hand, had ordered the priests not to comply with the new law. As a consequence, no masses were said, although the churches remained open.

The government also has ordered that nothing be taken from the churches as they and the property in them belong to the government.

CLASH ON NAVY BUILDING BILLS APPEARS LIKELY

Hoover Reported Against Parity Measures.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 1.—[Special.]—A clash between President Hoover and congress over naval legislation loomed tonight as the navy department concluded its studies of the Vinson 800 million dollar warship authorization program and prepared to submit a report to the house naval committee chairman.

While no official announcement has been forthcoming from the White House, officials and congressmen in a position to know state that President Hoover has included new warship authorization bills in the class of legislation which he believes congress should not approve this year. One high official said the President will refuse to approve either the Vinson plan or the Hale bill, both of which are designed to give the United States parity with Great Britain within ten years.

Vinson Wants Action.

As both Representative Carl A. Vinson [Dem., Ga.] and Senator Frederick Hale [Rep., Me.], respective chairmen of the house and senate naval committees are committed to programs calling for pushing new warship legislation to a vote during this session of congress, a conflict seems unavoidable. Chairman Vinson in particular has asserted his intention of forcing the house to go on record on the question of rehabilitating the fleet by building the ships allowed by the London treaty.

Behind the President in any efforts to stave off new warship legislation will be the full strength of the pacifist and peace organizations which helped to kill the Britten cruiser and aircraft carrier bill last year. These organizations already are charging that passage of any type of warship authorization bill would be in direct conflict with the one year warship construction truce effected by the league of nations, this winter.

Parity Will Be Issue.

At issue will be the question of whether the United States intends to build up to the tonnage levels permitted by the London naval treaty. Great Britain and Japan today are virtually up to their allotted quotas but the United States, due to neglect of naval building since ratification of the Washington and London treaties, is far in arrears.

FECHET SOUNDS FAREWELL NOTE OF AIR WARNING

Fears for U. S. as He Retires as Chief.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 1.—[Special.]—The people of the United States are living in a "fool's paradise" from which they may be rudely awakened unless immediate steps are taken to build up the country's aerial defenses, it was declared today by Maj. Gen. James E. Fechet, whose retirement as chief of the army corps became effective at midnight last night.

MAJ. GEN. J. E. FECHET. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

He was leaving the service to become head of the Washington bureau of an areonautical publication, said Maj. Gen. Fechet, in order to acquaint the country with facts which he could not reveal as ranking officer of the air corps.

"I have come to the end of my military career," said Maj. Gen Fechet. "I go in sorrow at the state of our armed forces, in sadness at the attitude of my country toward its defenders and because of the false sense of security my people seem to feel.

"I want my farewell act to be this word of warning. We are the most hated nation in the world; we house more than our share of the world's treasure. That treasure is now practically unprotected. Unless we do a hasty about face, unless there is immediately a national consciousness of impending trouble with ample preparation to meet it, our fool's paradise will soon be lost."

Gen. Fechet's return to civil life marks the close of a career of thirty-three years in the army, during which he rose from the ranks to leadership of the army air corps. He has been succeeded as chief of the corps by army's first pilot, who also rose from the ranks.

Gandhi Packs His Loin Cloths; Prepares to Go to Prison

BULLETIN.

BOMBAY, Jan. 2.—(AP)—Last minute efforts by a group of peacemakers were begun at noon today to bring Mahatma Gandhi and Viceroy Lord Willingdon together and prevent a crisis which has been threatening for two days. The peacemakers included Sir Tej Bahadar Sapru, who last August prevailed upon Gandhi to reconsider his decision not to attend the London round table conference.

BOMBAY, India, Jan. 1.—(AP)—Mahatma Gandhi tonight issued one more warning to his people to be ready to resume the civil disobedience campaign, and packed up his collection of loin cloths and spinning wheels in preparation for another term in jail. He is expected here to be arrested within 24 hours.

The Congress party working committee meanwhile addressed an appeal to merchants to abandon their trade in foreign cloth and coöperate with the congress, at the same time asking all Indians to make only the very minimum use of the government railroads, postoffices, and other bureaus.

The mahatma issued a statement of his own "on the eve of the new ordeal to which India has been summoned," inviting all free peoples to study the progress of the civil disobedience campaign as a possible "effective moral equivalent for war."

His impending imprisonment or deportation—the viceroy made it clear yesterday that the government will deal harshly with leaders of any subversive movement—failed to disturb the little man's poise.

"If I go to jail it will be a satisfaction to know that I am getting free board from the state," he said. "I am used to prison and if I go there again it will be a marvelous opportunity for quiet reflection, meditation, spinning, and reading."

India's business men, however, were apprehensive about the consequences of a new boycott which might ruin the country's trade, and still hoped that a compromise would be effected.

Among the things which Gandhi packed today were his Bible, Ramsay MacDonald's "Wanderings and Excursions," and Sir Samuel Hoare's "The Fourth Seal." The two British statesmen gave him copies of their books while he was in London at the round table conference.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

THE RECONSTRUCTION CORPORATION.

The President's recommendation to congress to set up a Reconstruction Finance corporation has been followed by the introduction of a bill for that purpose and a series of hearings at which prominent financiers have given their blessing to the project. The bill is undergoing amendment, but its broad outlines seem to be well established.

The treasury is to subscribe half a billion dollars to the corporation. The corporation will be managed by a board which will consist of the secretary or perhaps the undersecretary of the treasury, the governor of the federal reserve board, the farm loan commissioner and two citizens to be appointed by the President with the advice and consent of the senate. The board, in turn, is empowered to borrow up to a billion and a half dollars from the investing public. It is to do so by selling bonds or other evidences of indebtedness and these bonds are to be guaranteed by the United States government. They will be tax exempt and probably will be discountable at the reserve banks.

The corporation is to be both doctor and undertaker. It is to take over the slow and frozen loans of banks, insurance companies and building and loan societies and nurse them along if possible. In time it is believed that most of the slow paper will liquidate itself. Some of it will not and the corporation will then take whatever loss is to be taken. It may, perhaps, perform much the same sort of service in liquidating the assets of banks already deceased. So far as the railroads are concerned, it is to act as a temporary fiscal agent at a time when private banks are hesitating to assist in financing and refinancing.

In general, the corporation is intended to perform much the same service for which the bankers' pool was organized, but the Reconstruction corporation may be able to play a more effective rôle because of its larger resources and because the money which it will have at its disposal will not be lent from bank funds and to that extent will not impair the liquidity of the stronger banks in the interest of the weaker ones.

The advantages of the plan are on the surface. The disadvantages are less apparent, but it would be a mistake not to point them out.

The half billion dollars of capital must come from the taxpayers. The corporation may lose none of it or only a part of it; or it may lose the half billion and more besides. Whatever its losses may be, the taxpayers must bear them all. That there will be losses may be regarded as certain from the nature of the assets which the corporation is to take over. At best the loans will be made against doubtful security and at worst the security will be desperate.

Obviously the question of management will be of utmost importance. The management of this corporation will be essentially political. Three of the board of five will be government men and the other two will be appointed by a politician subject to the consent of other politicians.

The friends of the measure regard it as a means of restoring confidence and halting the insanity of liquidation which has depressed the prices of all securities and of virtually all commodities except gold. They see in it a means of distributing the losses of deflation over the general public where they will do less damage than if borne by individuals and individual financial institutions. Phrased so, the mission of the corporation will seem to be wholly beneficent.

But it can be said with equal justification that the corporation is intended merely to take over bad debts and make the taxpayers carry the loss. Under the high sounding title of reconstruction, the already overburdened and innocent taxpayers may be obliged to shoulder the consequences of the errors of judgment of others. The danger of political management is that the high purposes of the corporation will be overlooked and instead political favorites will be rescued from their bad debts while those without political influence will find themselves unable to obtain relief even though they offer far better security than anything the political favorites present.

Viewed in this light, the Reconstruction corporation may be regarded as a logical accompaniment of other financial measures put forward by the present administration. Just as the proposal to re-create the war debts commission amounted, in effect, to a proposed transfer of debts to the American taxpayer; just as the farm board was a means of passing on the losses of the farmers and farm land speculators to the taxpayers, so the Reconstruction corporation may be a means of transferring losses from banks, insurance companies and what not to the taxpayers.

It may be possible in some fashion to safeguard the Reconstruction corporation against abuse. And, again, it may not. It is significant that in the public hearings on the bill there has been little discussion of safeguards and much discussion of spreading the benefits around. If any witness testified on behalf of the taxpayers his evidence has not been widely heralded.

MR. BAKER TELLS US.

Mr. Newton Baker's address at the memorial to Woodrow Wilson was naturally and properly in praise of the subject of the memorial. It also included an exhortation to his countrymen to restore so far as possible the Wilson policies, and especially to associate ourselves still more intimately with the league and in due time become a member of that institution.

This was a logical and appropriate feature of the memorial, but has a special and practical significance in view of Mr. Baker's prominence as a leading candidate for the presidency.

Mr. Baker, we think, is deserving of praise for this public reassertion of his advocacy of league membership, to say nothing of his indorsement of Wilson's conduct of our foreign affairs. Our people have been wanting in a wise concern for that conduct, though they are more interested today than yesterday, and in any case have a right, which conscientious leaders will respect, to know what they may be letting themselves in for. Mr. Baker has given them fair warning. If the nation wants to walk into the center of European politics Mr. Baker will be their shepherd. If they are eager to sign the blank check of league membership, Mr. Baker has his fountain pen ready for that congenial office.

We ourselves are not enthusiastic over such a prospect. But if Mr. Baker and his party are headed that way the voters ought to know it in time to make their own decision. They can then have such satisfaction as a self-governing people may perhaps be presumed to derive from knowing where they are going and why.

ABOUNDING IN GOOD DEEDS.

An ordinance requiring theaters to provide seats which automatically fold up when the occupants arise has been offered as an amendment to the building code. Such a requirement was made in an amendment passed by the council last year, but was withdrawn before it became effective. The change is sought, it is said, for the convenience, comfort, and safety of theater patrons. Seats which do not fold up are said to be obstructions to passage in and out of the theaters.

Years ago in the legislature there was a statesman who never has been equaled for fertility and imagination in matters of this sort. In one session he brought down thirty-nine bills, each more admirable than the other. The bills brought down trainloads of citizens in the subsequent weeks. Each bill was surcharged with apparent public interest and the genius who devised them had gone into theretofore unexplored fields of curative legislation. All any observer could say of any of the bills was that it was a peach. The statesman had a rare sense of humor and he did not mind mixing the light with the grave. One bill provided for fire escapes on the county jail. He liked occasionally to be jovial and with the breaks that came his way there was no reason why he should not be gay when he was in the mood. His motto was a good deed every day.

NAVY PUNISHMENTS.

Secretary Adams of the navy rules that a boy who swipes a piece of pie from the galley is not to be regarded as a thief within the meaning of the regulations. He had before him for review the action of courts martial which had found sailors guilty of offenses which he considered petty and trivial, but which would discharge the offenders from the service with serious stains on their reputations. In consequence he has expressed the desire of the department that commanders shall not bring to summary court martial cases where it is evident that the accused "is not a thief at heart" and asks that a sharp distinction be drawn "between theft and petty pilfering committed in the nature of boyish pranks."

The government's regard for its property is precise and comprehensive. Some of the rarest humor of military imagination has been invoked to make the accounting system work, but the theory is that some one is accountable for everything and that a proper account can be given for everything. In the main it's probably the only way to protect an inventory, but Mr. Adams' modifications may temper the system with suitable mitigations. A dishonorable discharge is an overweight penalty for snitching a snack of lunch. Boys always have lifted pie and the usual punishment is to turn them over to the cook when they are caught. The navy no doubt has competent cooks.

Editorial of the Day

1912 OR 1926?

[The Boone, Ia., News-Republican.]

Political writers are fain to point out the deadly parallelism between the campaigns of 1912 and 1932. A Republican President in 1912 stood for a tariff imposed by "men who knew just what they wanted." A terrible scandal followed, and the Republican party was reduced to the electoral support of Vermont and Utah.

The News-Republican believes, however, that a closer parallel accrues as between 1920 and 1932. While the Hoover congress did indeed pass an unpalatable tariff bill, the minds of the people are not so much on that as on the apparent lack of interest on the part of the administration in the welfare of this country as compared with the welfare of Europe.

In 1920 the people rebuked an administration which had spent its time almost exclusively in trying to cure the ills of foreign countries, while no attention was paid to the troubles of the United States. By an overwhelming majority the people came back to Harding and normalcy on the platform that it was time to forget internationalism and put our mind on our own well being.

For the last two years this administration seems to have been able to think of nothing but in terms of Europe. Without the semblance of legal sanction Mr. Hoover declared a moratorium on European debts. He usurped the power of congress, which will perhaps confirm the moratorium just to save his face. As a matter of pride congress will think we can't afford to have the executive branch making promises to other countries which will not be fulfilled.

But the end has come. When Mr. Hoover proposed a new debt funding commission to scale the war debts down and perhaps cancel them, congress balked. We spent $25,000,000,000 of our own in the European war and the people are not of a mind to throw the $11,000,000,000 borrowed by Europe along with it. The truth of the matter is that the people advocating debt cancellation are the ones who have lent too much money to Europe in exchange for doubtful bonds. Why should people who didn't gamble in these bonds be taxed to death to make them good?

Our own country is sadly in need of reconstruction and financial rehabilitation. Why not elect a President who has some thought about the troubles of the United States? Why should we elect a man to spend all of his time trying to devise ways and means, at our expense, of putting foreign nations on their feet?

DEMENTIA.

A CORRESPONDENT asked for an article on dementia. Her especial interest is in the dementia of elderly people, as it affects their will-making powers.

No other law is so simple as that which relates to ability to write a legal will. In brief, it is that a will is legal if it is shown that the testator knew what he had to give and to whom he wanted to give it, and if he knew what he was doing when he made the will. The legal principle involved is that the valuables being willed are the property of the individual willing them, and he has the right to give them, after his death, to whomever he pleases, just as he has the right to give them during life. Of course, some whiskers have grown on this principle, just as they have grown elsewhere, but, relatively speaking, they are few in number. Questions of justice are not often involved in wills, nor does consideration of testamentary capacity go below the surface.

If the matter of testamentary capacity were comprehensively considered it would be found that few men who draw wills are capable of evaluating motives and doing full justice at the time the will was written.

We refer to failure of brain power, when it passes a certain point, as dementia. If it develops in elderly people, as the result of the wear of life, we call it senile dementia. There is a form of mental disturbance which develops in people who are not old enough to be senile, and who are not senile in their eyes, joints, muscles, and other organs but who are senile mentally. It is called presenile dementia. There is the dementia of still earlier years, that goes by the name of dementia precox. Toward the end of long continued insanity of any kind, dementia is prone to develop as a phase, or even part of the main brain disease. There is a form of dementia which develops in the course of arteriosclerosis of the brain. Two U. S. cabinet officers, Secretaries Blaine and Sherman, had that.

One of the first symptoms of senile dementia is an inability to call the names of people well known to the person. So far is this in advance of other symptoms that most people pass away from natural causes before any other symptom appears. Another before-the-dawn symptom is a failure of memory as to recent events and contacts. Symptoms which come later are: loss of inventiveness, originality and interest, and listlessness. Then come emotionalism, inability to fathom motives, and decadence of judgment. The person in this stage is quite capable of making a legal will but entirely incapable of making a just one. He has neither the memory, the emotional stability, the ability to weigh values, to fathom motives, nor to understand personalities that are required for well balanced decisions.

Then comes the stage of dropping to sleep and mental heaviness which is largely responsible for the name dementia. From the will making standpoint, people in this stage are borderline. Some of the wills they write are legal. Some are not.

Finally, the stage of dementia, or mindlessness, is reached—the stage of sans everything.

OZENA.

H. W. writes:

1. What are the causes of ozena?
2. How can a person know if he has ozena?
3. Could adenoids cause this disease?
4. What is the cure?

REPLY.

1. There is not enough secretion to keep the nose clean. In consequence scabs form and decay. Why this is I do not know.
2. The odor reveals the disease. As a rule the sufferer is told by some friend that something is wrong. Examination by a physician establishes the diagnosis. Many cases of halitosis are due to ozena.
3. I don't think so.
4. There are many cures. None is wholly satisfactory. Among them are: injecting paraffin under the nose membrane; injecting powder sugar into the nose; applying iodine in glycerin into the nose, and the treatment given in the following letter, which

J. P. H. writes: A number of years ago a Chicago doctor recommended to a friend of mine who was troubled with ozena a preparation of guaiacol and iodine put up in capsule form. This treatment has the effect of causing a thin, salty secretion which cleanses the nose. It has to be continued for some time, but it seems to be harmless, unless the long continued use of iodine is contraindicated.

REPLY TO J. P. H.

I have submitted your letter to some nose specialists. They have tried guaiacol and iodine internally in this trouble, but without uniform success.

OBNOXIOUS ODORS.

Chicago, Dec. 29.—[Friend of the People.]—Several weeks ago I complained at the city hall of a terrible stench coming up the elevator shaft into my hotel from the basement below, and as yet nothing has been done to eliminate this insanitary and unhealthy condition. This is a sea food house occupying the street floor and the hotel is above. Can you advise whom I must I see to eliminate this? R. A.

You are advised that, due to a former complaint, the following notice was served on both the owner and agent: "Provide adequate covered metal receptacles for garbage in cellar. Clean and disinfect all cellar drains. Properly trap all sinks where fish are cleaned. Abate odor nuisance, caused by foul odors from clogged drains in cellar entering living rooms above." This matter will be followed up until compliance with the foregoing orders has been obtained.

DEPORTATION.

Chicago, Dec. 29.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. If the United States deports a Chinese man because he has no papers, could he ever reënter the United States? 2. If so, how could he go about it? 3. If he had property or business here, would the U. S. claim it? C. B.

1. Presumably, the basis of the deportation would be a basis for subsequent exclusion.
2. Take the matter up with the immigration office.
3. No.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

AND HERE IT IS a new year—and the Chicago subway not yet begun; and Mr. A. Capone still outside of Leavenworth; and the teachers still not paid; and the tax squabble yet unscrambled; and the Democrats no nearer with an outstanding candidate for the nomination; and the bootleggers still bootlegging; and Old Man Depression in his same old hole behind the corner; and our favorite Wall street stocks still making nose dives to new lows, and the Japs and the Chinese are still battling in Manchuria [what Chinese are left in Manchuria, if any]. HOWEVER, the Pollyanna lads who usually jump up and down at the beginning of each and every year and tell what a geewhizzer it's going to be for health, wealth and happiness are not saying much this time. So it may turn out a perfectly good year after all.

A broken heart—ridiculous!
How very quaint of me!

And right as right could be.

A charming person you appear—
A pleasant one to know—
But then, you see, I loved you, dear,
So very long ago.

"IF!"—That fatal "if" again. Sec. Lamont says the U. S. A. would be a year along on its way back to prosperity IF it wasn't for Europe. And Europe says it would be on its way back to prosperity if it wasn't for Uncle Shylock hanging on for repayment of the war debts. It's always some other fellow that's to blame. Or of late it's two other fellows.

"GANDHI Cancels Truce with British"—Headline. Oh, Mr. Gandhi, don't you think that little 1932 is starting off with a considerable handicap anyhow without you jumping on his back? There's a time for everything, Mr. Gandhi, and it isn't that we're against you, but really at this moment, Mr. Gandhi, it seems rather inopportune to twist the poor old lion's tail. It's pretty sore anyhow and the lion may be a little peevish.

Tha Duke Discovers There's One Born Every Minit.

Dick: I juss gotta tell you about a hot one that happened up at tha Bakrak love nest. I call it nest cause theirs 2 eggs in it and she's both of em. We gotta pesty neighbor whose pet yen is borrowing, if it isn't a cup of sugar its our vacuum cleaner, if it isn't tha cleaner its our sherbet cups, it woodn' surprise me a bit if some day she asks for tha kitchen stove. I've told tha B. an C. nine diffrunt times to turn her down cause last Holoween when I tries to borrow her piano and 6 chairs an her bridge table an lamp, tha huzzy has got tha nerve to turn me down telling me she's also throwing a party, when I know she aint. Ennyway, yesterday morning I'm eatin breakfast in tha dining room cause there varnishing tha kitchen floor an I hear a rap at tha back door, tha Mama opens it and theres Mrs. Lendme wantin to know if she can use our sewing machine, right away tha Mama asks if hers is broke an heres where I get an earful of a story that gave me more joy than Volstead cood if he broke his right leg an left arm. Seems about a month ago a man comes to her flat an represents himself as a service man from a certain company saying that tha firm is reconditioning all machines free of charge, the only expense is a one buck picking up an bringing back charge. Tha guy tells her it takes about 3 days an now it appears she cant locate tha man or tha company. She tells tha Mama that tha address on tha card is 2260 East Madison St. When I hears this I figger if shes gonna get tha machine back she'll hafta swim out fer it cause that number wood be about 2 knots this side of South Haven. From what I gathered there was also a phone number on tha card an when Mrs. Lendme calls up tha operator tells her its tha Home for feeble minded. Naturally tha Mama wants to be polite an asks a lotta more questions an finally tells tha pest that she's set tha day aside for a poor seamstress whose out of work an whose gonna come in an do a lotta fixing on tha curtains. I happen to know that its a dam lie but I cood of kissed tha Mama fer being smart once in her life. A cupple months ago tha B. an C. tells me that every time she gets nickles in change she puts them in a glass jar in tha pantry an she's betting by tha time the stores start there white sales, she'll have enough to buy a swell doyly for the living room table. Well, while she's up in front making tha beds I sneak in tha pantry an lift 2 bits out of tha jar. There was a funny looking card in tha jar and I natcherally take a squint and heres what it reads. "Dec. 6th. Received of Mrs. Duke Bakrak one sewing machine to be serviced, also $1.00 del. charge."

WHAT HE NEEDS IS A GOOD DENTIST

A Lesson in Finance

The following table shows the selling prices of some leading stocks for the boom period just after the war, the post-war slump, and the present depression. While some present prices apparently are below those of the post-war slump period, actually they are higher if stock split-ups and dividends are taken into account. Thus, it is somewhat difficult to make a true comparison.

For instance, in the case of General Electric, there have been two four-for-one split-ups since 1920 and, in addition, a distribution of one share of Electric Bond and Share for each share of General Electric held prior to one of the split-ups. Therefore, provided the holder of an original General Electric share in 1920 had not sold it, he would be the possessor of shares having a valuation of some $211 based on a present price of around $25.

Sears-Roebuck paid a 40 per cent stock dividend in 1920 and in 1926 split its stock four for one, making the value of a share some 5 3-5 times the present price when based on the stock of December, 1920. Then United States Steel paid a 40 per cent stock dividend in 1927. Among others to split up their stock were American Tobacco, Corn Products, and Swift & Co.

This table illustrates graphically the fate that has befallen railroad shares as a result of the troubles of the carriers in the last few years. Utility shares listed here show the strength of this department:

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

30 YEARS AGO TODAY

JANUARY 2, 1902.

CHICAGO.—Bankers of this city in interviews expressed confidence in the business situation for the New Year. Some believe that 1902 will surpass the huge record set in 1901 for prosperity. Among those who took an optimistic view of the coming year were John J. Mitchell, James B. Forgan, E. D. Hulburt, James H. Eckels, John C. King and Edward S. Lacey.

ST. LOUIS.—Joe Bernstein of New York defeated Tommy White of Chicago in fifteen rounds, the limit, under auspices of the West End Physical Culture club.

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

JANUARY 2, 1916.

LONDON.—The liner Persia, belonging to the Peninsular and Oriental company [British], was torpedoed and sunk in the Mediterranean sea. The loss of life is not definitely known, but it is feared it may possibly reach 200 or more. When the liner left London for Bombay it carried 230 passengers and the crew numbered more than 200. Three Americans are known to have been passengers and early accounts do not place them among the survivors. If early reports are borne out the loss of life through the sinking of the Persia will exceed that of any submarine disaster of the war excepting the Lusitania, when 1,157 persons lost their lives, including 115 Americans. It is not known whether the Persia was sunk without warning.

SALONIKI.—[By John T. McCutcheon.]—Mildred Farwell, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE correspondent, is still detained at Monastir, Serbia, by the Bulgarians. She is well and safe, but the Bulgarian authorities will not permit her to communicate with friends here.

POOR OLD DAD.

Chicago, Dec. 26.—I am wondering how many other wives have passed through Christmas with a heartache, not because they were forgotten by Santa but because he seemed to think their hard working husbands were not interested in Christmas.

Just how can any one get a thrill of joy from opening a Christmas parcel which contains a present for each member of the family except the one who is always first to share her burdens? I cannot.

If people are unable to send a present for each, why not send to the children only, or send something for the house? Otherwise let their wishes be expressed by a greeting card addressed to both. Anything but an utter disregard for the one who pays all Christmas bills and does many a kind act in between. RECIPIENT OF MANY GIFTS.

ON THE EVE OF GRADUATION.

Chicago, Dec. 22.—Supt. Bogan's idea for closing the schools is bad enough without closing them on Jan. 4. Almost every senior high and junior high school has planned a graduation program. In our school the students have been practicing for it since November. Many children have spent money that they could use for food for graduation pins, pictures, suits, etc. [These things mean something after you work for them for three years.] Many families have had to scrimp because of that. If the schools close on Jan. 4 all the plans for graduation and everything will be suspended indefinitely and maybe forever. If the schools close on Feb. 1 all delay and wasting of the parents' money can be avoided. The regular school semester ends on Jan. 29, and when the schools started again they would start out on a new semester. BURT MOYER.

THE LAST LAUGH.

Chicago, Dec. 29.—We may laugh at the tongue-twister names of Chinese generals, and we may sympathize with their futile efforts to ward off the invaders; but the time will soon come when in our trade relations with China, which grew by leaps and bounds every year, we may arrive at cross-purposes with Japan's commercial interests in which she claims special monopoly. And then because of our shortsighted foreign policy and of our unpreparedness due to our folly we may laugh loud, and last. E. D. I.

MORE ABOUT COL. HAMILTON.

Chicago, Dec. 28.—The record of Col. William Stephens Hamilton, which has been the subject of recent interesting correspondence in your columns, would not be complete without some reference to his brief career as a newspaper publisher. In the summer or fall of 1837 he became the owner of the Miners' Free Press, at Mineral Point, Wis., in succession to M. D. Holbrook, who had founded the paper a few months earlier. The Free Press failed early in the following year, and Hamilton in March, 1838, sold the press and equipment to the Galena [Ill.] Democrat.

Other items about Hamilton's career in the middle west which I have not seen mentioned: In 1828, under a government contract, he personally conducted a herd of several hundred head of cattle from Illinois by way of Chicago to the military post at Fort Howard, near Green Bay, Wis. As a resident of the mineral region in Iowa county, Wis., when that part of the country was still a part of Michigan territory, he was president of the seventh legislative council of Michigan territory, which met in 1836 at Green Bay. A contemporary of Hamilton in the early days of Wisconsin, George Hyer, wrote of him: "He was a lawyer by profession, but not by practice, being more at home in a miner's cabin or with his dog and gun on a hunting expedition. He was a small, coarse featured, indifferent looking man, extremely slovenly and careless in his appearance and manners, possessing but little in person or behavior denoting his illustrious parentage." ALBERT H. ALLEN.

THE GREAT STRUGGLE.

Chicago, Dec. 27.—THE TRIBUNE has fought and won many a glorious battle for the people but none of them compare in importance with their present one for the reduction of governmental overhead. The government can no more endure with an overhead out of all proportion to its income than can a small private business.

THE TRIBUNE'S fight against the prohibition law, and for the abolishment of all unnecessary bureaus, is the very crux upon which returning prosperity depends. It means radical action, but it can be done if the people realize its vital need, and follow THE TRIBUNE'S lead by compelling their law-making representatives to act. Just thinking about it does no good. B.

The Bride's Boat

By Coralie Stanton and Heath Hosken

SYNOPSIS.

Kit Lenoure, receptionist in a London family hotel, accepts the offer of a post in the Grand Africa hotel, Soydoret, Kenya. Theo Sable had gone there two years before, when Kit had broken her engagement to him. But Kit still wanted him more than anything in the world. She sails on the "Bride's Boat." Jess North, her cabin mate, is going out to be married. Lal Crowhurst, the biggest landowner about Soydoret and a most attractive bachelor, is on the boat. He is attentive to Kit. Soydoret proves to be a paradise with many serpents and terrible powers of demoralization to weak natures. Jess is married to Noel Graham, who manages Crowhurst's coffee plantations. Kit adapts herself to her new surroundings. Theo Sable, who has taken up big game hunting, arrives in Soydoret. Kit and Theo are overjoyed to have found each other again. But there are unexplainable changes in Theo that Kit can't understand. Ariel Grieve, the widow, who, scandal has it, owns Lal Crowhurst, also has her tentacles secretly around Theo. A dance and entertainment, to wind up the season, is given at the hotel. Next morning Ariel Grieve is found dead from an overdose of a sleeping drug. She left a letter, obviously written to a man she was in love with and who had let her down. Every one suspects Crowhurst. Theo is accused of cheating in a card game. He declares his innocence, but Kit alone believes him. He leaves next day on a hunting trip. Jess Graham calls on Crowhurst, and tells him that she overheard Ariel Grieve threaten to kill herself when Theo Sable told her of his engagement to Kit. Jess gains a promotion for her husband by promising not to reveal what she had heard. Theo returns. He admits his guilt.

INSTALLMENT XLII.

ANOTHER CONFESSION.

Of course, everybody in the township knew that Theo Sable had come back. His return was too sensational to ignore. An extraordinary thing happened. No one could account for it. Nobody heard any authoritative statement, but it got about that there had been some mistake about the card room incident and that it was to be forgotten, expunged from the slate of events. Concerning Theo Sable, during his short stay, Soydoret society was to return to "as you were."

"The Man in the Moon, of course!" people said to each other in confidence.

"I am so relieved!" sighed Jess Graham to one of her intimates. "You see, I am so very fond of Kit Lenoure, and she is so devoted to Mr. Sable. I wouldn't be surprised if it wasn't Mr. Crowhurst's doing, as you say. He has always been so kind to Kit." But in her heart she was raging. It was another proof that he was in love with Kit. That was the only fly in her ointment. Noel was installed in his new post, she in her new house. She had a luxurious car, with a native chauffeur. She was redecorating and refurnishing—at Crowhurst's expense. She was brimming over with importance. But she hated the thought that Crowhurst was in love with Kit. She would have liked him hopelessly in love with herself. That would have completed her astounding success.

Mrs. Dunbar asked Kit to bring Theo to tea. They went, and to their surprise, there was quite a party, people dropping in and out, after the Soydoret fashion.

Crowhurst was there, and she came across him alone, and he led her out on to the veranda at the back of the house. She did not notice that Theo was talking to Mr. Dunbar at the other end.

"I want to thank you so much for getting that cable over the wireless so quickly about Bill," she said. She was nervous. Each kindness he showed her made her more so. Her feelings were so confused. The old disturbance of his presence was mixed with simple human gratitude. And there was the fear of herself and of him—and of life. She had always known there was something big about him. Today, as he looked down at her with such kindness in his eyes, he was a mystery too big for her to solve.

"I'm only too glad your brother is doing so well," he said. "We'll keep you posted until there's no more need to be anxious."

Words came to her without her will.

"And—about Theo! I know it was your doing. It is so generous. I am so ashamed. I feel I must speak the truth to you."

"Don't talk about it," he said quickly, embarrassed. "It was better for everybody. I did no more than the others. We were all of the same mind."

"He won't forget, Mr. Crowhurst. It will make all the difference in his life—in our lives."

"I am glad. There must be heaps of good in him. Because you . . ." He broke off, as if speech had become difficult.

There were one or two people chatting in the center of the veranda, but not near. From the other end, Theo, who was so tall, could see Kit and her companion over their heads. His dark blue eyes rested on them, as he answered the D. C.'s questions about the excavations and their life in camp.

"As long as you are happy," added Crowhurst in a low voice, "everything is all right."

Kit looked up. There were tears in her eyes. She was in the grip of one of those tremendous emotions that cannot be hidden. Her whole being expressed it.

And in Crowhurst's eyes, which were dull and dark, was what no one had ever seen there before—renunciation.

Silently they passed back into the house.

Theo Sable's bright, boyish laugh rang out, as he described a comic incident of camp life at Lake Rudolf.

. . . . . .

Again, that night, Theo came up to Kit's sitting room. It was late. The hotel was very quiet. Kit was sitting, her hands in her lap, with only the firelight. She was sitting by the window, looking out through the mosquito netting, at the rain.

"Kit," said Theo, "I've got something else to tell you. I've tried not to, but now I know I must. It's about Crowhurst. Kit, you believe, like all the rest of them, that Mrs. Grieve wrote that letter that was found after her death, to Crowhurst?"

"O, Theo, why drag that up again!" she protested, shocked beyond measure.

"Because I must. It wasn't written to Crowhurst. It was written to me. At least, I feel almost sure it was . . ."

She cried out in horror. She could not see his face. He stood with his back to her, as he told her the pitiful story of Ariel Grieve's passion for him. His words were simple. There was nothing but kindness for the dead woman in them, nothing but self reproach for himself. He took far more blame than was really due to him, considering he had been a man with body and nervous system racked to pieces and a conscience sick unto death.

"She was the friend I told you about the other day, Kit, who nursed me and pulled me through. She found me wandering about ouside Nairobi, as she drove by in her car. I had met her a few times, when mother and I came to Nairobi, but not for ages. She had a bungalow that was absolutely hidden away in a maze of grounds, and she kept me there without anybody knowing. Her husband had built it. He must have been a queer, eccentric man. She was very unhappy with him. He died soon after he came back from India—not long after I had gone away. That's all. And the night of the dance here—I couldn't help telling her that you and I were going to be married. And that—upset her." How inadequate those words! So hopeless to find the right ones that Theo said no more.

Kit sat motionless, taking it in with difficulty.

"I couldn't let you go on thinking that about Crowhurst," Theo broke in impetuously. "I've been up to Moon Fields and had it out with him. I had to tell him. And I was right. The letter must have been written to me . . . I asked Crowhurst as man to man, and he told me that he was going to marry Mrs. Grieve. They had fixed it all up. They were going to England, and they were not going to tell anybody here until they had sailed. I've told you, Kit, because I know he never would." His voice broke. "I think he's the finest, biggest man I've ever met!"

"He could have said—that he was going to marry her!" Kit murmured.

"Of course he could! But he's not that kind!"

"Theo—will you go now?" she whispered. "No—I'm not feeling badly about you. You couldn't help it. It's not that—I think I can understand. She was like that. But—everything is so sad about it—and I am so tired!"

"Good night, London Angel," the young man said. He came to her side and put his arms lightly round her shoulders, and kissed her forehead with gentle tenderness. "Dear—dear London Angel, good night!"

By Mae Tinée.

Good morning!

"Over the hill to the poorhouse"—went the doddering old mother of silent picture days in the person of Mary Carr, and now, thither she's bound in a talkie, with Mae Marsh shouldering the sorrow and inciting the tears.

As of yore the film is sad and sentimental, and, in its way, quite an argument in favor of birth control. If only one of a batch of children is going to care enough for his mother in her old age to see that she keeps out of the poorhouse, why have a batch? Of course, on the other hand, the one a lady DOESN'T have might have been her aid and prop while the lone offspring may prove a demon in her home. I don't know. . . . Figure it out for yourselves.

Anyhow, in this "Over The Hill" as in the former one, you go along with dear Mother Shelby as she rears her brood single-handed. True, there is a Pa Shelby, but he has a perpetual crick in his back that keeps him from working. Ma has all the responsibility. Her heart and sides ache for her as she mends and irons and bakes and washes, smiling sadly and gallantly the while, and later, when she wends her sorrowful way from house to house of the children who don't want her, wondering sadly when Johnnie her favorite will return from Alaska to his poor old mother. But your great kick comes in the last reel when Isaac, the Uriah Heep of the brood meets his just deserts at the hands of the unexpectedly returned Johnnie. That's a great moment, for from the start your hatred for Isaac—a goshawful looking specimen!—has been almost more than you could bear.

Mae Marsh, of whom we said in the days of D. W. Griffith that she had "the saddest face in films," retains the wistful expression and slim fragility that won her such sympathy in "Birth of a Nation." She doesn't stress her agonies too strongly—as did Mary Carr—and is, as always, a clever pantomimist. When she talks, well, that's when you remember what somebody said about silence being golden. She never "gets" you as did Helen Hayes in "The Sin of Madelon Claudet."

Other members of the cast perform adequately and the director handled the old heart-breaker as a man who knows how to make an audience suffer.

I'll be curious to see how "Over The Hill" comes out at the box office. Have we grown too sophisticated for such as it, or, are we, after all, just three mfnute eggs at heart?

KIND: Western—from Zane Grey's story.

QUALITY: Good.

ACTING: All the story needs.

PHOTOGRAPHY: JUST GREAT! The story was filmed in the Grand canyon country of Arizona and the scenic shots are rarely beautiful.

DIRECTION: All right.

STORY: Same old story. It's been filmed a number of times before.

AUDIENCE APPEAL: A great deal for those who like action, scenery, and a yarn where right licks might and a maiden all forlorn finds heaven in the arms of a "regular" guy in chaps.

Lawrence Tibbett, Opera Baritone and Movie Star, Weds

New York, Jan. 1. — [Special.] — Lawrence Tibbett, baritone of the Metropolitan Opera company, whose singing of love songs in romantic rôles has been a feature of his stardom in recent years in the motion pictures, and Mrs. Jennie Marston Burgard, daughter of Edgar L. Marston, retired banker of this city and Los Angeles, were married this afternoon at the home of the bride's brother, Hunter S. Marston.

The ceremony was performed by Supreme Court Justice Norman S. Dike in the presence of relatives of the bride and Mr. Tibbett and a few friends. There were no attendants. The bride wore a gown of sapphire blue velvet with a hat to match.

Efforts were made to keep the marriage as quiet as possible. Their romance, disclosed two days ago, was a surprise to many of their friends in the social and operatic world.

This is the bride's third marriage. She was married first in 1917 to Robert J. Adams, son of the chewing gum manufacturer, whom she divorced in Reno in December, 1919. In 1922 she married John Clark Burgard in San Francisco. Three weeks ago she obtained a divorce from Mr. Burgard at Las Vegas. She has three sons, who are at present in California with Mr. Burgard.

Mr. Tibbett was divorced last September in Reno by his first wife, Mrs. Grace Mackay Tibbett, whom he married when he was unknown to operatic and motion picture fans. Mrs. Tibbett, his first wife, has been in New York since Nov. 1 staying at the Hotel St. Moritz. On Dec. 22 she was joined here by her twin sons, Lawrence Tibbett Jr. and Richard Mackay Tibbett II., who came from their mother's home in Beverly Hills, Cal., to spend the Christmas holidays jointly with their mother and father, under the divorce agreement.

Mr. Tibbett has been residing at the Waldorf-Astoria, where it is presumed he and his bride will live.

Stock Presents New Year's Eve Set to Music

New and Timely Piece Is Exhilarating.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

It chanced that Mr. Stock was able to get hold of a new piece of music of uncommon timeliness for this season, and so he played it on this week's pair of symphony concerts. It is called "New Year's Eve in New York" and is by Werner Janssen of that port.

Its title describes it fully. It is a musical representation of the midnight celebration, composed for full orchestra with the addition of three saxophones, a banjo, and a full line of traps, woodblock, klaxon, castanets, siren, rattles, and drums of various kinds. Crowds of people mill up and down in the music. There are tunes of many sorts, some familiar: "Auld Lang Syne" breaks out in inebriate intervals, jazz takes up the strain.

It is a rather exhilarating sort of piece. Mr. Janssen knows his orchestra, realizing that the saxophone has not much place in it except when played alone, because its tone gets lost in the other instruments. Even when Mr. Stock placed his jazz band directly in front under the conductor's stand it meant little except in its own unaccompanied section. But generally there was plenty of rhythm and sometimes plenty of rowdy, unabashed noise.

Mr. Janssen thus puts in his plea that jazz rhythms have a legitimate place in extended compositions. His argument would have been entirely good if he had been able to write a jazz tune that stuck to the ear, as some of the small tunes of radio and dance bands have a habit of doing.

Another new bit went into the program when Ralph Dobbs, winner of Mr. Stock's recent audition for young pianists, played a concerto by Pantscho Wladigeroff. Mr. Dobbs is a pianist of marked ability, with a well trained pair of hands, plenty of poise and composure, and a musical mind that would seem to think for itself.

The Wladigeroff concerto does not deserve quite so favorable a verdict. It is full of melodies, but melodies that twist themselves out into different modes and scales without any particular justification for so doing. One gets an impression that it is difficult to play without being cast so that its difficulties get full credit with the hearer, and that musically it is a trifle naïve. At the same time Mr. Dobbs' brilliant performance made a pronounced hit with the audience.

The rest of the program was better known. Handel's "Fire Music" was the first. Mr. Stock played the whole suite instead of merely the announced overture, and, like much of Handel's music, it turned out to be a set of adorable tunes in the ancient manner. There were also Wetzler's Symphonic Dance from his opera, "The Basque Venus," and Debussy's Two Nocturnes, and a great performance from first number to last.

PHOTOGRAPHS SHOW SEX IS DETERMINED BY BATTLE OF CELLS

New Orleans, Jan. 1.—(AP)—A key to control of sex in the discovery that a battle between sexes starts in the original egg is one New Year's present to the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

This discovery was described by Dr. Emil Witschi of the University of Iowa.

The battle begins the moment the new life starts in the embryo, the outer covering of which tries to become female, while the inner portion demands to be male.

One or the other wins and that first battle settles whether that individual shall be male or female. Dr. Witschi showed its progress in photographs of frog embryos.

Usually, he explained, the cards are stacked before even this beginning, so that one or the other is doomed to a futile struggle. The "cards" in this game of life are the sex chromosomes contributed from the parents of the young animal.

But the stacking is not invariably sufficient. Dr. Witschi's pictures revealed that environment may come to the aid of one or the other disputant and decide the contest. He showed low temperatures changing a male frog into female and high temperatures changing a female into a male.

In low temperatures the outer covering, the female side, called the cortex, grows faster than the inner male portion, named the medulla.

The annual $1,000 prize for an outstanding discovery was awarded tonight by the American Association for the Advancement of Science to Dr. Carl Caskey Speidel of the University of Virginia.

He is the first scientist to make a nerve grow so that all its secrets are visible from its "birth" to maturity.

Dr. Speidel cleared up the doubt about how a nerve grows. Some scientists had held that it developed like a "chain," others that it grew from a single tiny cell.

Under Dr. Speidel's "dark field" microscope living nerves seen in the transparent tail of a tadpole proved to be cells instead of a chain.

This tiny "cell" is shaped like a cone and travels along spinning a tenuous thread behind it like a spider.

Relief Fund Report Tells How Charity Aids Needy Families

The Joint Emergency Relief fund in the first of a series of public reports showing just where the $10,461,553 charity fund is being dispersed, reported yesterday that in November alone $10,071 was distributed through 34 Chicago settlements and neighborhood houses to be used in family relief. This relief item is a small one among the many handled by the joint fund. In December total disbursements had reached approximately $6,000,000.

In the offices of the fund a confidential card index is kept of all relief cases. While actual names and addresses are kept secret that card file presents a series of human interest stories of significance to all persons who have subscribed to the charity drive.

Typical cases have been selected at random to illustrate the work done.

Clothing was collected for nine children to enable them to attend their father's funeral. On the day he was buried the mother was in a hospital, bills paid by the fund, to give birth to a child—a baby that lived only a few minutes. The family is now being cared for by the relief agencies.

One of the staff of the settlement got a music scholarship for the little girl and another is paying her expenses. Her meals are furnished by the settlement house.

Mrs. C., a widow and a cripple, has saved $6,000 by working as a seamstress. She lost her life savings through a swindler. The settlement house aided her through a long illness and she is now placed in an old folks home.

A skilled mechanic has been out of work for two years. His wife did laundry work and mending to support their two children, until her health failed. A settlement is giving them food until one or the other is again able to work.

In addition to the work being done by the neighborhood settlement house hundreds of families are being given temporary relief while they wait their turn for permanent help.

In all the money donated by the joint fund it represents only a small part of the money expended by the 34 settlement houses. It was only a small part of what was needed to permit them to keep self-respect, the spirit of neighborliness and hope alive in hundreds of families.

Students Are Urged to Demand Delegate to Arms Cut Parley

Buffalo, N. Y., Jan. 1.—(AP)—Ralph Harlow, formerly Y. M. C. A. secretary in the Near East and now a professor in Smith college, Northampton, Mass., today asked members of the student volunteer movement, meeting here, to urge the appointment by President Hoover of a student "to represent student life and thought" at the conference on disarmament at Geneva next month.

"You are the ones that are going to be asked to lay down your lives," he said. "They will not think you too young or immature to go over the top in the first line of battle.

"If you can make war, ought you not to have a right to stop war?"

The delegates voted on his proposal but the results of the balloting were not to be announced before tomorrow. The plan, as proposed by Harlow, would call for each of the 3,000 delegates to return to his college and send a telegram to President Hoover urging him to appoint a student representative to the Geneva conference.

Women Rally to Benefit for Hungry Pupils

'East Lynne' Performance to Provide 7,000 Lunches

It will be a gala afternoon at the Cort theater next Thursday, Jan. 7. When the curtain rises on "East Lynne" several hundred clubwomen, parent-teacher association members and others will be on hand to cheer the hero, hiss the villain, and enjoy to the full the performance by Uncle Billy's Show Boat company.

For Uncle Billy's Show Boat company has donated its services that afternoon to the Hungry School Children's fund of THE TRIBUNE. With the proceeds of the ticket sales for this performance the fund will be able to provide 7,000 meals for undernourished school children.

The tickets will go on sale this morning in the Tribune Public Service offices—1 South Dearborn street, 1101 East 63d street, and 4152 West Madison street—and in the lobby of Tribune Tower and the Cort theater box office. The prices are 50 and 75 cents and $1.

From every side of the city women with the interests of children at heart are volunteering their support of the "East Lynne" benefit. They want to do everything in their power to keep the children of Chicago well nourished, and also they want to see "East Lynne."

"East Lynne" is a play that has tourned the United States since 1863, a melodrama that has become known to nearly every country town at one time or another since the first performance in New York at Tripler's hall.

The fact that Uncle Billy's Show Boat company is a Mississippi and Ohio river show boat cast that came to Chicago a few weeks ago after tying the river boat fast to the dock a Cincinnati, has added a particular charm to the present production.

So parties are being organized and reservations made. Among the chairmen of these parties are Mrs. Edith L. Collin, 3312 West 64th street, president of the Hubbard school's Parent-Teacher association; Mrs. John F. Stehle, 7725 Jeffery avenue, president of the Bowen High school Parent-Teachers; Mrs. J. V. Duffin, 8140 South Michigan avenue, president of the Hookway school Parent-Teachers; Mrs. Arthur Guillaudeu, 6536 South Campbell avenue, president of the Marquette school Parent-Teachers, and many others.

Gifts are welcomed daily to the Hungry School Children's fund. Yesterday's contributions put the fund over the $30,000 mark. The donations received were:

$200—James H. Breasted, University of Chicago.
$5—M. R. Jackson, E. H. Springer.
$3—Henry Fitts.
$2.25—Leader Store employes, 1537 W. Chicago avenue.
$2—Peters Machinery company.
$1—Ruth Knox.
10 cents—F. W. Virden.

|---|---|
| Total | $ 228.35 |
| Previously acknowledged | 29,972.08 |
| Grand total | $30,200.43 |

Record of Wilson Illness Destroyed by Order of Will

Philadelphia, Jan. 1.—(AP)—The will of Dr. Francis X. Dercum, noted neurologist, ordered destroyed the private case records of his patients, including those of President Woodrow Wilson. Dr. Dercum, who died last April, had among his patients many notable persons. He considered the records so confidential that no one, not even other physicians, ever saw them. He was among specialists called into consultation during President Wilson's last illness. Dr. Dercum's will became public today. His widow, Mrs. Elizabeth Comly Dercum, had the provision for destruction of the private records carried out. Dr. Dercum was president of the American Philosophical society, founded by Benjamin Franklin. He died suddenly as he was about to open the 204th annual meeting of the society here.

Beauty Is the Sum Total of Every Day Attention and Care

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

I do think that there is a good deal of hooey printed about movie stars and stage women and the things they do for their looks. Of course, their jobs do call for a high order of personal upkeep. They have to give themselves care. They do, too, if they're interested in keeping before foot or Kleig lights.

But what I mean is that they haven't any magic potions that you and I can't avail ourselves of equally well. True, they may have more to spend on clothes, on coiffure upkeep, on the accessories. But for complexion upkeep, let's say, their beautifying measures are yours and mine equally.

They have the upper hand on us in that to begin with they are more or less hand-picked for their looks. Their complexions, their hair, teeth, silhouette and so on, are of a high average. But I've been talking recently to a half dozen of these professionals of stage and screen and the chief thing I get out of it is that all of this care has to be a consistent, daily thing to be of value. We nonprofessionals probably lack the impetus behind their competitive jobs. We don't have to be screened for all to see the "day-off" look. We don't have to walk a stage plank and be put under the same microscopic analysis. All of which goes to prove that a job in which looks count is about the best thing that can happen to a woman. The more they count, the more consistent care she is bound to give herself.

The great fault with most of us humans is that we sort of reserve our beautifying efforts for an "occasion." A wedding, a bridge party, a reception, and date. In the interim between dates, the temptation is to lie down on the woman's job of keeping up, every day.

Goodness only knows that the urge is there, no matter what the occupation, but we do not recognize it, often. With the business woman, the professional, the home body or whatever you are, the job calls for just as much of the decorative art as you can employ.

What most of us need is a system, as well as the pressure above named. It's that day to day, evening after evening few minutes that totals up the score—not the occasional burst of glory.

Vivid Details for the Sober Daytime Ensemble

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—The time when brilliant color splashed all over the map of styles is past. It isn't smart to wear a vivid coat and dark dress, nor a brilliant dress with a sober wrap during the practical hours of the day when people generally are on business bent. It is, however, extremely chic to place vivid details on sober ensembles that are suitable to the most utilitarian occasions. Almost any ensemble is improved by such an addition cleverly applied.

The bright hat is one of the favorite means of adding a dash of color. A scarf is also used by some fashionable women to this end. The smartest way, according to the Paris dressmakers, is to make the bright details of your ensemble part of it. Wear a red belt with your dark blue dress. Put vivid green lower sleeves into your frock of somber brown. Apply a bit of orange to your black outfit.

The Jeanne Lanvin ensemble in our sketch is one of the dark winter ensembles seen around Paris that are made gay by a flash of vivid color. This ensemble has a coat of darkest green diagonal woolen with big muff sleeves and shawl collar of brown astrakhan. The coat is flared near the bottom by set in plaits at the sides of the front.

The dress is dark brown crêpe marocain, matching the fur on the coat, and bright Chinese lacquer red crêpe marocain makes the lower sleeve and the triangular tabs on the puffed upper sleeve.

A triangle of red crêpe is placed in a flap down over the self-material belt. The skirt is made of wide bands cut like chevrons and fitted into each other down the center front and back. The hat is bright red felt trimmed with a red velvet ribbon bow.

How to Order Clotilde Patterns.

Write your name and address plainly on dotted lines, giving number and size of such patterns as you want. Inclose 10 cents in stamps or coin [coin preferred; wrap it carefully], for each number, and address your order to Clotilde Patterns, CHICAGO TRIBUNE, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central station, New York City.

Note—Clotilde patterns are made in New York exclusively for THE CHICAGO DAILY TRIBUNE. They are perfect in fit, up to date in style, and the easiest of all patterns to use.

NEW YORK SOCIETY

Mr. and Mrs. William Howard Taft II. gave a luncheon at the Pierre for Mr. and Mrs. Walbridge S. Taft and Mrs. James H. Stark.

Thomas B. Wanamaker Jr. is at the St. Moritz.

Mr. and Mrs. Victor Emanuel are arriving on the Europa and will be at the Waldorf-Astoria for the remainder of the winter.

Mrs. William H. Dougherty is at the Savoy-Plaza for the remainder of the winter.

Treat the Children Like People and See How They Respond!

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

A mother in a recent letter says among other things:

"Why don't more parents treat their children as people instead of expecting them to give unquestioning obedience just because they are children? I think it's so nice to explain things. I have often punished my boys [when I've been overtired] and after I rested and thought I was perhaps a little unjust I apologized to them—and they were the better for it."

If there were more quick, generous apologies like this from parents to children, we'd have less of the strained relationship between parents and children that causes so much trouble. Goodness knows, we parents are unjust and quick tempered often enough when the origin often lies in our own nerves or personal worries; we should be ready to say, "I'm sorry." By that I don't mean agonizing over every impatient word—but when we have been seriously unfair, apologizing for it. This tends, too, to make them ready to admit a fault.

When you sit down and think about it, we really expect more from our children than we do from grownups. For instance, when one grown person says something unpleasant or tactless to another grown person, he is tactily permitted to retort in kind, or at least to say what he thinks of it. But let a child respond to a rude or thoughtless remark frankly—and he is "answering back."

We expect great social control of children. Since we expect it, let us treat them with at least as much tact as we would give to our contemporaries, who need it less. In other words, as the mother in the letter suggests, let us treat our children as people. When we have been definitely unjust or unfair, let us admit it generously and freely. And as she says "they will be the better for it."

Bright Sayings of the Children

Mama—Junior do you know anything of daddy's whereabouts? Junior—No, but I bet they are down cellar where he puts just everything.

Phyllis Ferry Starts 1932 with Her Debut

THE last debutante of the season, although she is one of the first of this year, is Miss Phyllis Carter Ferry, daughter of the Montague Ferrys of Winnetka and granddaughter of Mrs. Abby Farwell Ferry of Lake Forest. Miss Ferry will be presented at a tea this afternoon at the Fortnightly.

This attractive young member of one of Chicago's oldest and most prominent families will be assisted by a bevy of young girls, including Miss Peggy Glidden, Miss Welythan Harmon, Miss Eleanor Rogers, Miss Jeannette Hill, Miss Margaret Hamill, Miss Adelaide Atkin, Miss Annie Warren Mason, Miss Margaret Chapman, Miss Elinor Farwell, and Miss Virginia Miller.

Also assisting will be a large group of older women, among them being Mrs. John V. Farwell, Mrs. Ralph I. Farwell, Mrs. Arthur L. Farwell, Mrs. Frank F. Ferry, Mrs. Frank J. Loesch, Mrs. George Roberts, Mrs. Paul S. Moyer, Mrs. Charles S. Dewey, Mrs. Wallace D. Rumsey, Mrs. Alexander F. Stevenson, Miss Cornelia Lunt, Mrs. William Vaughn Moody, Mrs. Roswell B. Mason, and Mrs. Frank T. Crawford.

Miss Ferry attended Vassar and now is a student at the University of Chicago. Her great-grandparents were Mr. and Mrs. John V. Farwell, prominently identified with the social and club life of the city.

Miss Mason and Miss Miller Make Debuts on New Year's.

Among the largest of the many teas and receptions given yesterday were two which served to introduce formally to society two Winnetka misses, Miss Annie Warren Mason and Miss Virginia Miller.

Miss Mason received with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Roswell B. Mason, and her grandfather, James A. Warren, at the Indian Hill club at a teadance from 4 to 7 o'clock. The attractive deb, who returns to her studies at Smith very soon after a vacation chockful of gayety and good times, wore a charming frock of French blue velvet and carried an old fashioned bouquet of mixed flowers. Her mother wore black velvet. Assisting were a group of Winnetka "debbies," including the Misses Phyllis Ferry, Mary Cushman, Helen Wolcott, Adelaide Atkin, Mary Ellen Prindiville, Margaret Hamill, Chloe Watson, Peggy Glidden, Welythan Harmon, Marion Calkins, and Dorothy Gerhard, and Louise Ruffner of Highland Park.

The other Winnetka girl who made her formal bow to society on New Year's day, also a student at Smith, is Miss Virginia Miller. She was introduced at a tea given by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry E. Miller, at their residence, 670 Walden road, from 4 to 7 o'clock. Miss Miller wore coral lace and Mrs. Miller was in dark green velvet. Assisting were Miss Dorothy Lewis of Philadelphia, who is the Millers' house guest, Miss Evelyn Bouscaren, Miss Lucy Stone, Miss Barbara Bell, Miss Ferry, and Miss Harmon.

Friends to Give Parties for Hortense Henry and Fiance.

Prenuptial parties for Miss Hortense Henry and Gorden Kelley, who are to be married on Jan. 16 at St. Chrysostom's church, will get under way next Friday with the dinner that Mr. and Mrs. James Addington and Donald McLennan Jr. are to give for them at the Casino before the Twelfth Night ball.

The following evening Mr. and Mrs. Russell Kelley and Mr. and Mrs. Phelps Kelley will be hosts at a large dinner dance at the Saddle and Cycle. On Sunday Dustin Grannis is to have a Juncheon party for the prospective bride and groom in Lake Forest, and on Monday Mrs. Wallace F. Kirk is to give a dinner. Miss Geraldine Swift will give a small dinner-dance on Tuesday evening at the residence of her parents, the Gustavus F. Swifts. Mr. Kelley is to have his bachelor dinner on Wednesday and on Thursday evening the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Huntington D. Henry, will give the bridal dinner at their residence.

Miss Henry and Mr. Kelley are to have 24 attendants at their wedding which will be followed by a reception at the Casino. The bride's younger sister, Miss Annie May Henry, will be her maid of honor, and the bridesmaids will include her cousin, Geraldine Swift; Beatrice Kirk, Caroline Smith, Constance Hasler, Josephine Dennehy, Mrs. W. Irving Osborne Jr. [Elsa Armour], Mrs. Herbert McLaughlin [Corrine Brewer], and Mrs. Walter Field McLallen, all of whom assisted at Miss Henry's debut in the fall of 1930; Miss Rosamond Moore of New York, and Miss Dorothy Laws of Memphis, Tenn.

Russell Kelley is to serve his brother as best man and the ushers will be John Simpson, A. Watson Armour III., John E. Baker Jr., James Heyworth, Frederic McLaughlin II., James R. Addington, Dustin Grannis, Donald F. McLennan Jr., and Ezra J. Warner Jr., Frederick H. Rawson Jr., and Phelps Kelley.

Holiday Festivities for Sub-Debs Continue.

Holiday festivities for the sub-deb set are not quite over yet. This evening Mr. and Mrs. Joseph T. Bowen Jr. are to give a dance at their Lake Forest residence for their daughter, Gwendolyn, who is home from Farmington for the Christmas vacation. Before the dance Mr. and Mrs. Alfred E. Hamill will give a dinner for their daughter, Clarice, who will return to Miss Walker's school at Simsbury, Conn., on Jan. 11, and Mr. and Mrs. Milton M. Morse will be hosts at a similar affair for their daughters, Priscilla, who is a Farmington student, and Barbara, who goes to Ferry Hall.

Miss Patricia Schmidt and Macauley Carter will be married at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon at the residence of the bride's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mr. Owen A. West, at 232 East Walton place. Only the immediate families will be present at the ceremony and the tea which will follow. Warren Gillette Carter of Washington, D. C., will be his brother's best man. Miss Schmidt will be unattended. The bride and groom will leave tonight for a fortnight of winter sports at Lucerne-in-Quebec. After their return they will reside at 210 East Pearson street.

Official Contract

By Charles True Adams

(International bridge authority; author of "Official Contract at Sight.")

A man I once knew was in Europe when the big stock market crash of 1929 came off. He had large loans at the bank. The bankers frantically attempted to get in touch with him by cable. They could get no word to him. Fearing that his margin would soon be wiped out, the bankers sold. A considerable profit remained for my friend. Ever since, the man has been known among his acquaintances as a financial genius and a wonderful market prophet. As his attorney, however, I am in a position to know that he was very cross with his bankers for selling him out. It took several months and a long declining market to convince him that all was for the best.

At contract bridge many players claim uncanny foresight to explain bidding which otherwise would be entirely beyond justification, but happened to result in a most successful score. In yesterday's play-a-problem North and South finally arrived at a bid of four spades. They held between them 4½ high card tricks. Game is seldom assured when the bidding partnership does not hold at least 5 high card tricks. This was the hand:

NORTH
♠—J,10,6
♥—K,8
♦—A,Q,7,4,3

| WEST (Dealer) | EAST |
|---|---|
| ♠—A,4,3 | ♠—8,7 |
| ♥—A,4,3,2 | ♥—Q,J,10,9 |
| ♦—K,J,10 | ♦—9,5,2 |
| ♣—Q,J,5 | ♣—10,9,8,3 |

SOUTH
♠—K,Q,9,5,2
♥—7,6,5
♣—A,6,2

West opened the bidding with one no-trump. North overcalled with two diamonds. East passed. South bid two spades. West passed. So far the bidding was both excellent and conservative. North, not holding adequate support for the spade bid, switched to two no-trumps. East passed. South does not wish to play the hand at no-trumps. He is also anxious to show his partner that he holds five spades, which would allow him to be supported with only three in partner's hand. So South now bid three spades, a bid which shows the distribution of his hand quite accurately, but is hardly justified by his strength holding. West again passed.

North's spade holding is now sufficient trump support. He has, in addition, three supporting tricks for his partner's spade bid. North is not justified in thinking that South had more than 2½ high card tricks. If South had made an original one spade bid, North, assuming adequate support, could not have raised more than once. How, then, could North have felt justified in going to four spades?

After the hand had been played the only explanation North could give was that West had bid no-trumps and he, therefore, felt that any finesse South might make through West's hand would succeed. Criticize as we may, the fact remains that North and South made four and an extra trick.

West opened the ♣ Q, dummy played the 4, East the 8, and South the A. South now led the ♦ 8 and finessed the Q in dummy. Dummy then led the ♦ A, followed by the ♦ 3, which South took with the ♠ 2. South now led the ♠ K, which was taken by West with the A. West returned the ♣ J, which dummy took with the K, and dummy returned the ♠ J and followed with the ♠ 10. Dummy next led the ♦ 7 and the ♦ 4, both of which had been made good. Now dummy led the ♣ 7, which South trumped with the ♠ Q. South led back the ♥ 7, which was taken by dummy's K. Dummy was then forced to lead the ♥ 8, which was taken by West with the A.

PLAY-A-PROBLEM: SOLITAIRE OR PARTNERS

Play this hand tonight at your bridge game. Keep a record of the bid and play in the spaces provided. Numbers in the bidding squares are for successive rounds. Check your results with tomorrow's answer.

To play "Solitaire": Record the bids you think each hand would make in the bidding squares. After the final declaration has been made start the play, leading from the hand at declarer's left. As you play each card cross it off of the diagram and record it in the proper square, as S. 3, H. K, etc. In the last column indicate the hand which won the round and lead from that hand on the next round.

A Little Blarney Is Relished by Every Wife, You Husbands!

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"But, of course, a woman never looks attractive to her own husband. I might just as well be dowdy."

The above extract is from a disheartened wife. From a woman married to a tongue-tied mate. So, I'm paging you husbands to inquire if this might not be your own good woman wailing . . . Are you sure it isn't your wife? How long since you've paid her a compliment on her appearance? If she is dowdy, have you had a hand in the downward progression?

This woman who writes tells me people say she has good taste in clothes, that she always looks smart. Husband seems the only one who never notices.

Gosh, if you men only knew the value of a few kind words in a woman's life you'd get home a few minutes earlier evenings to deliver them! You are so utterly and painfully DUMB! You wonder why the woman doesn't come across with something encouraging to you. You wonder why she doesn't think you're the grandest ever. You wonder why she doesn't beam on you as Jim's wife beams.

But you forget that a woman requires bolstering, too. You forget she is just as avid of appreciation as you are, that a flattering word or two will set her up just as one sets you up.

Well, women are humane beings, too. They need that "shot" of praise. We all need it, every last man and woman of us, or we automatically go dowdy inside. We're none of us so cocksure of ourselves that we can sail along, head high, without a kindly word, an endearing one. And women are putty in your hands, you men, if you only knew it. That is, if you praise the dears as you mold them.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., Jan. 1.—[Special.] — President and Mrs. Hoover dined with only the members of their small household this evening after the strenuous New Year's day reception. Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Hoover Jr. went to New York on the midnight train last evening and will join the chief executive and first lady in a few days before starting west with their two children, Peggy Ann and Peter.

Mrs. McCormick-Goodhart, widow of Frederick E. McCormick-Goodhart of England, was hostess at a ball this evening given in her home, Langley park near Riverdale, Md., for her granddaughter, Miss Patricia McCormick-Goodhart, debutante daughter of F. Hamilton McCormick-Goodhart formerly of Chicago, now living in Washington.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter R. Tuckerman announced the engagement of their second daughter, Elsie, to Benjamin H. C. Biays Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Biays of Baltimore and Cumberland, Md., at a dinner party which they gave last evening at the National Women's Country club of which Mrs. Tuckerman is president.

Food Talk

It isn't as sweepingly true as it used to be, but it is still a significant fact that a nation's taste in foods is guided by the availability of foodstuffs. For that reason our pioneer ancestors, even though they came from long lines of cheese lovers, had little chance to indulge or to develop their taste for cheese. Then as things quieted down a little along the frontier, the manufacture of cheese started and moved westward. First made in New York, cheese is now manufactured in this country chiefly in southern and central Wisconsin. Seventy per cent of our domestic cheese comes from that state, Naw York state produces 14 per cent, and Oregon 2.5 per cent. The rest of the annual output of a bit under half a billion pounds a year is shared by other states whose contribution in per cent is not large but is still something in pounds.

As a nation we only eat 4.14 pounds per capita of cheese a year. I choose to think that it is because we are such a young country, and that we will eat more as we grow older.

It isn't expensive, yet it is the most highly concentrated source of highest quality protein known. From 20 to more than 30 per cent of its weight is tissue forming food. Besides that, it contains a large portion of calcium, phosphorus, and vitamin A.

And, exploding an old superstition about the digestibility of cheese, it has been found that 90 to 99 per cent of the total weight is digested.

If you are tired of the standard kinds of cheese, try these: Gorgonzola, Edam, Gouda, Neufchatel. Gorgonzola is an Italian cheese. It reminds one of Roquefort, but it is a little drier, a little more spicy. Edam is a yellow Dutch cheese, mild and hard. The big thing about it is that it is made in red balls, and when you buy one you cut off the top and scoop out the cheese. The cheese may be brought to the table that way, with pieces scooped off and left in the cavity. Gouda is the same proposition, but it is made in the south of Holland.

GINGERBREAD.

8 tablespoons butter
½ cup sugar.
1 egg.
½ cup sour milk.
½ cup molasses.
1¾ cups flour [sift once and measure].
½ teaspoon ginger.
1 teaspoon cinnamon.
1 teaspoon soda.

Cream the butter and sugar. Add the well beaten egg. Add the molasses. Sift together dry ingredients and add to first mixture alternately with sour milk. Pour into well buttered shallow pan and bake 30 or 40 minutes at 350 degrees Fahrenheit.

You can't chisel in love

COLLECT

by LOIS BULL

author of BROADWAY VIRGIN

She's a wow at chiseling. But how about love? She knows how to collect money, clothes and jewelry. But to collect an honest-to-goodness love is a different game.

This is the story of a wise little tiger with red hair and brains, a tender heart and sharp claws. She climbs to the top in the rackets and fights for love against an underworld stranglehold.

McFee Writes Thriller About Love and Death

Calling His Book "The Harbor Master."

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"The Harbor Master," by William McFee. [Doubleday-Doran.] Published today.

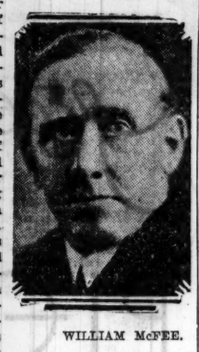
THERE is something rich, full, mysterious, thrilling about William McFee's story of the events which led up to the death of the harbor master of Puerto Balboa and Mrs. Fraley. It is the richness, the fullness, the mystery of life and love in their thrilling duel with each other. The story is savored with sapience, with an intellectual cynicism. It is told in the words of a sophisticated chief engineer of a liner who has sailed most of the fabled seven seas and whose chartings of the human heart are the synthetic result of a cold, seeing eye and a warm, understanding heart. The real hero of "The Harbor Master" is in the man who tells the story.



WILLIAM McFEE.

It is because that man is the kind of person he is, that the technique which the author has chosen seems—to me at least—not entirely happy. The chief—Mr. Spenlove—arrives in the harbor of Puerto Balboa to meet the news that there is a revolution brewing, no one will be allowed in the interior, and that the harbor master and his wife are both dead. Under other circumstances those bits of news would not have made much difference to any one on the cruise, nor to the chief engineer of the ship sheltering vacationists.

But to Mr. Spenlove they meant the end of the two people who had been almost all there was of life to him. That he should tell some one their story was probably the inevitable yearning for a catharsis of the spirit which often drives humans to confide in a stranger. What seems incongruous to me is that a man of Mr. Spenlove's psychology should have told his story not to a stranger but to a whole deckful of casual listeners whose only possible interest in it could have been that of sheer curiosity.

That Mr. Spenlove should have sat up most of the night regaling them with a romantic tale and should return to them the next day with the details of the death of his two most intimate friends seems so out of character that it lessens a little the tremendous force of the book. Except for that disability, "The Harbor Master" is tremendous. Mr. Spenlove's story has a force, a reality, a strong fisted but tender understanding of human creatures that grips you like that skinny hand of the ancient mariner. As futile it is to try to escape this modern mariner's tale as it was his! William McFee proves himself again, as he did in "Casuals of the Sea," a gifted novelist.

"The Harbor Master" is a story of love and its iron hand on the heart—the love of three men for one woman, and how destiny bled them, of how repose and comfort in love were forever made impossible for all of them by their contact with an emotion so powerful as to make everything else seem commonplace, an emotion as elemental as the stormy seas and the spiritual upheaval of mankind out of which it was born. From a torpedoed French passenger ship in the Ægean sea, on its way to Salonika during the war, the heroine literally fell into the arms of Captain Fraley.

Mr. McFee makes you realize that to his main character—the narrator, Mr. Spenlove—there was something miraculous about that meeting (just as there is in any first meeting of great lovers), and that, to him at least, whatever she came to mean to other men, Mrs. Fraley always was a creature from some other sphere. It is Mr. Spenlove's love for Francine which is the real story of the book, although, as he tells it, the love of Francine and Captain Fraley is the theme of his narrative.

With thrills of circumstance "The Harbor Master" is a-tingle. It could have been merely a novel of adventure if the author had chosen to utilize his material in that fashion, for it has events crowded with excitement, leaking from cabarets in Salonika to dives in Alexandria, from night clubs in New York to the beaches of Costaragua combed by gamblers. There is murder, lust, theft, deceit.

But it is with the knotted skein of emotional life that the author deals rather than with the circumstances which tied those knots. "The Harbor Master" is a psychological thriller. And that, my friends, is one of the rarest of accomplishments in the writing of novels, to be able to make an emotional adventure of the most intense order as convincing and as inevitable as the physical adventures which produced it, keeping a delicate balance between the facts and the fancies. The fancies of love—as Mr. Spenlove observes—are often so much more real than any facts!

"The Harbor Master" will be, unless I am greatly mistaken, the book of the month—perhaps the book of the spring—to many readers, as it is the month's choice of the Literary Guild.

Arnold Bennett Subject of New Life by His Widow

BY FRANK SWINNERTON.

LONDON.—[Special Correspondence.]—It was inevitable that an early life of Arnold Bennett should appear; and it is interesting to note that the first biography is to be the work of Mrs. Arnold Bennett herself.

ARNOLD BENNETT.

Mrs. Bennett is a Frenchwoman, who made Arnold Bennett's acquaintance in Paris nearly quarter of a century ago. She was at that time a girl with theatrical ambitions, and Bennett was living in Paris as a part of his plan for an ordered life. The book will be in no sense a formal biography, but a loyal and intimate pen-portrait. It has no relation at all to the work published, without the concurrence of Arnold Bennett, about ten years ago, but has been freshly written as a tribute to a remarkable man. But it is not one long hymn of praise.

On the contrary, Madame Bennett endeavors to present her husband as a human figure; and although some may question the accuracy of her portrait the book will be found a really interesting contribution to the public's knowledge of the author who in England was more personally beloved than any other.

Another remarkable volume of personal reminiscence is the "Everyman Remembers" of Ernest Rhys, editor of Everyman's Library. I have noted this book before; but I have now read it, and am sure that it will make friends wherever it goes. Mr. Rhys has a beautiful touch, and he has met many men and women of distinction in the course of a long life of varied experience. I think the book will be one of the successes of the season.

A book of Peter Arno's drawings has just been published in London—the first knowledge English people have had of this artist's work. The book has a preface by Ben Travers, who besides being the author of a number of humorous novels, the last one being "The Cuckoo in the Nest."

TODAY Cadillac presents its Greatest Achievement

FOUR COMPLETELY NEW LINES OF MOTOR CARS

LASALLE PRICES FROM $2395
CADILLAC PRICES FROM $2795
f. o. b. Detroit
Five wire wheels standard at no extra cost

Today, Cadillac-LaSalle dealers throughout America invite your inspection of four completely new lines of automobiles—a LaSalle V-8, a Cadillac V-8, a Cadillac V-12 and a Cadillac V-16. " " Although the Cadillac Motor Car Company has been responsible for many of the automotive industry's major developments, and has long been recognized as a basic source of motor car progress, nothing that this organization has ever accomplished could compare in importance or significance with the introduction of these four distinguished new cars. In their obvious fidelity to the highest ideals of conception and construction; in their wholly new and original Fisher and Fleetwood styling; and in the rich luxury of their over-all performance and comfort—they establish standards which no other Cadillac-built automobiles have ever approached. " " In fact, in all those scores of vital elements which make a motor car more useful, as well as more desirable, they go entirely beyond any conceptions the world has thus far had reason to anticipate. Yet—due to the savings which are made possible by the greatest manufacturing program in Cadillac history—all four lines of these distinguished new cars are offered at unusually attractive prices. " " The Cadillac Motor Car Company joins with your local dealer in a cordial invitation to see and drive these new creations. " " Whatever your preference as to size, model, or degree of luxuriousness, you are certain to find a car exactly suited to your requirements. In all, there are sixty-eight body types by Fisher and Fleetwood, with color combinations and interior options to suit the most fastidious preference. Furthermore, each line of cars offers two wheelbases—ranging from 130 inches for certain models of the La Salle, to 149 inches for the V-16 Fleetwood bodies. " " Your Cadillac-La Salle dealer is holding "open house" today. Go see his special exhibition. And go with high anticipations—for Cadillac firmly believes that in these four new cars it has achieved a very real and fundamental advancement in the development of land transportation.

Penalties—Thompson [major], Abel, Boucher.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Nine thousand of the howlingest hockey bugs you ever heard in your life saw the Blackhawks defeat the New York Americans, 3 to 2, at the Chicago Stadium last night.

The reason for the howling and other manifestations, in addition to possible folks with hangovers who fetched their horns, was found in the fact that the Hawks, in acquiring the victory, on numerable occasions furnished evidence that four Hawks can play better than six. The big thrillers of the night came during stretches when the Chicagoans were two men short because of penalties.

In three instances the penalties were deliberately suffered to stave off scores and in every instance the inspired fight of the shorthanded Chicagoans gave the customers what seemed the best money's worth of the season.

Present Brilliant Defense.

Unlike the case in most games, the scores that didn't count and the near scores gave the folks their greatest happiness, if wild yelping and hollering can be taken as an indication.

Anyhow, the Hawks' defense in periods of greatest adversity was nothing short of brilliant.

Gottselig's goal in the third period broke a 2 to 2 tie. The Hawks took the lead on Abel's goal early in the first period, but the Americans went ahead, 2 to 1, in the second period. Vic Ripley's shot tied it up again shortly before the period ended.

The first period was one of the best of the year from the standpoint of thrills for the customers. The excitement started with Abel's goal in 2:35 when the Americans were two hands short because of tripping penalties assessed against Ayres and Dutton.

Taffy's Goal Brings Cheers.

Big Taffy's rushes down the ice always evoke great applause, though his scoring record for last year and up till last night this year, did not include a goal and only one assist. But they like to see the large fellow glide. Imagine the great cheering that went up when Taffy not only made one of his headlong rushes down the right boards, but braced and shot goal No. 1 right past Goalie Worters.

Taffy's great act really was enough for one period, but it was just a warmer-up for the drama that ensued after the session had passed the halfway point.

March went to the penalty box to join Wentworth, who had been on the hot seat 30 seconds. That made it six New Yorkers and four Chicagoans, and the visitors moved up for the usual concerted attack. The rubber was slammed in the Hawk net, but the officials had blown their whistles, calling for a penalty on Thompson.

Americans Go Into Lead.

The score was 2 to 2 at the end of the second period, but during most of the session the Hawks and their partisans lived through great mental anguish because Himes had made the count 1 to 1 in 3:15 and Fillmore had given the New Yorkers a 2 to 1 edge in 5:10.

All three of the goals in the period were neatly executed. The Americans' first tally was the result of McVeigh's picking up the puck on the blue line. Rabbit waited momentarily until Himes skated into position and then he let fly a shot which would have gone past the cage, but Himes saw it coming and batted it out of the air into the net.

Less than two minutes later Himes passed to Fillmore in front of the cage, and as Gardiner flopped on the seat of his shorts Fillmore lifted the rubber for American goal No. 2.

For a long time prospects didn't seem very good for a Hawk tying marker. Then Ripley started skating down the ice. As he crossed the blue line the rubber started spinning for no reason at all. Vic paused to flatten it and as he peeped about him he perceived that no one was seeking to molest him. Right then Vic had a big idea. He dug in his spurs, went right to the brink of the cage, and then slapped home the tying goal.

Gottselig gave the Hawks a 3 to 2 lead in a beautifully executed play in 2:05 of the final period.

The game was delayed while the officials and players argued as to whether McInenly's shot went through the nets instead of across the front of the cage. After consulting the goal umpire the game was resumed and Thompson given a major penalty for tripping McInenly as he shot. Before Thompson's penalty time had expired Abel drew a two minute penalty for tripping, leaving the Hawks two men short.

Abel had no sooner returned to the ice than Boucher drew a penalty, leaving the Americans with a two man advantage for another two minutes.

THE GUMPS—HONK! HONK!

DO YOU RECALL HOW THE GREAT CONSOLIDATION INCREASED THE VALUE OF THE STOCK TWENTY-FIVE TIMES?
DO YOU REMEMBER IT WAS WORTH $250,000. WHEN TOM WAS CALLED IN BY HIS BANKERS TO MAKE GOOD ON HIS NOTES—
DO YOU REMEMBER HOW BIM GUMP DROVE THE STOCK DOWN TO NOTHING?
DO YOU REMEMBER HOW ANDY STORMED BECAUSE HE HAD NOT SOLD?
DO YOU REMEMBER HOW HE THOUGHT IT A GOOD JOKE TO GIVE MIN THE WORTHLESS STOCK?
TOM IS NOW BACK IN CONTROL- THE STOCK IS A BETTER ASSET NOW THAN EVER BEFORE MIN HAS IT TUCKED AWAY IN HER SAFETY VAULT- FAR FROM THE REACH OF ANDY—
WELL- MIN- I UNDERSTAND THE FACTORY IS DOING PRETTY WELL- I SAW TOM CARR GOING DOWN THE STREET TODAY IN A BRAND NEW MACHINE- THE PRETTIEST CAR I EVER SAW-WELL- WHAT ABOUT THE FACTORY?
OH NOTHING- BUT YOU KNOW WE HAVE A PRETTY GOOD INTEREST IN THAT- AND I WAS JUST THINKING- OUR STOCK IS WORTH $250,000.00- NOW WHY DON'T YOU LET ME HANDLE THAT- START ME OUT ON THE ROAD TO SUCCESS- ANYWAY YOU KNOW IT BELONGS TO US- I GAVE IT TO YOU—
GAVE IT TO ME- CERTAINLY YOU GAVE IT TO ME— I STILL HAVE IT- AND INTEND TO KEEP IT-
AND SAY- IF YOU INTEND TO START ON THE PATH WAY TO SUCCESS- BE SURE YOU HAVE PLENTY OF GAS BEFORE YOU START- AND DON'T TRY TO DO IT IN A BORROWED CAR- AND TAKE A SPARE TIRE WITH YOU- DON'T BREAK DOWN ALONG THE WAY SIDE AND ASK SOMEONE WHO IS REALLY GETTING THERE FOR A RIDE- WHEN YOU GET ON THAT ROAD DON'T BE A HITCH HIKER!

In the WAKE of the NEWS

EARLIER CHICAGO.

DEAR WAKE: The old 3 story building at the northwest corner of Wells and Kinzie, housing a short order and sweets parlor, stands alone in the block. It was once the site of "Little Henry's," where out-of-town merchants and farmers dropped in during their visits to Chicago on the way to and from trains across the street.

As a boy attending business college, a commuter, it was my custom to stop at "Little Henry's" for ginger ale and some lunch, and it was some lunch. There I saw the farmers and merchants taking a few glasses of Old Heidelberg or Old Meadvill or perhaps Old Hennessy—anything they got was old except the lunch. On leaving, they invariably took along a pint or a quart as they made a final mad dash for their trains.

Dave N. Malloy.

A book entitled "Illinois in 1837," published by A. Augustus Mitchell of Philadelphia, contains:

"In Dr. Beck's Gazeteer, published in 1823, Chicago is described as a village of 10 or 12 houses and 60 or 70 inhabitants. In 1832 it contained 5 small stores and 250 inhabitants. Now, in 1837, the population amounts to 8,000, with 120 stores. Of the stores, 20 sell by wholesale. It also has 12 public houses, 3 newspapers, nearly 50 lawyers, and upward of 30 physicians.

"The merchandise imported into Chicago in 1836 amounted in weight to 28,000 tons and in value to upward of $3,000,000. There arrived in port 456 vessels, including 40 steamboats, 10 ships and barges; the rest brigs, schooners, and sloops. During the last winter, 127 teams, loaded with merchandise for the country, were counted in the street on one day."

"Oosterbaan, best pass receiver of his day, was surrounded by four opponents on Minnesota's 5 yard line. From midfield, the ball was pitched high into the air similar to the high fly of baseball in the general direction of Oosterbaan. The ball started to drop over the goal line on the exact spot where the four Minnesota men were grouped around Oosterbaan.

"Then, a blue jerseyed figure was seen to leap with outstretched hands just a fraction of a second ahead of the leaps of the four gold colored jerseys. They all came down together, but Oosterbaan had just completed a forward pass during which he had demonstrated remarkable timing and jumping ability, the like of which had never been witnessed before. A touchdown and the Michigan adherents went into ecstasies."

Duluth, Minn., Jan. 1.—(AP)—Chicago's Shamrocks closed their season at Duluth tonight by defeating the Hornets, 6 to 3 in a rough and exciting American League hockey contest.

Duluth got the first score of the game in the first period, but the Shamrocks tallied twice later in the same session. The Hornets evened the score in the middle of the second period, but the Chicagoans came back to score twice before the session closed. A fist fight between Bergl and Burns marked the period.

PLA-MORS BLANK TULSA

Kansas City, Mo., Jan. 1.—(AP)—The Kansas City Pla-Mors blanked Tulsa, 6 to 0, tonight to sweep a two-game series.

Individual effort accounted for a large portion of Kansas City's margin, five tallies being made on solo thrusts. Campbell, center, scored two in the second frame. Less than a minute after his first tally, McCormick counted when his shot at right angle to the cage caromed off McCusker's stick.

Johnny McKinnon opened the scoring early in the first period by dashing through two Tulsa defense men and drawing McCusker out of position.

The Pla-Mors counted twice in the last period, once on Goodman's shot and on Mulvihill's conversion of Wilson's pass.

DICKEY, FORMER HARVARD CREW CAPTAIN, DIES

Bedford Hills, N. Y., Jan. 1.—[Special.]—Laurence W. Dickey, 26, of New York, former captain of the Harvard crew, died in a hospital at Mount Kisco this morning of injuries received when his car overturned at midnight.

Mr. Dickey was the son of the late Charles D. Dickey, member of the banking firm of Brown Bros. & Co., of New York and Philadelphia. Under the terms of his father's will, he was to have received the income from $771,426 upon attaining the age of 25.

Tribune Ski Meet Is Postponed One Week to Jan. 10

THE TRIBUNE'S second annual ski meet, which was planned for tomorrow, has been postponed a week to Sunday, Jan. 10. The meet will be held at that time at Riis park, Fullerton and Meade avenues, weather permitting. All contestants who have entered, of course, are eligible for the tournament a week from Sunday.

The officials of the meet yesterday decided it was advisable to announce the postponement. Even if there should be snow today, the Riis park field probably would be unsatisfactory unless the temperature went far below freezing. Postponement also will give the 130 boys, who have entered the meet, an opportunity to practice, which so far this winter, has been denied them.

Complete list of officials and contestants will be printed next week.

MAIER DEFEATS ROSENBLOOM IN 10 ROUND BOUT

Milwaukee, Wis., Jan. 1.—(AP)—Maxie Rosenbloom, former light heavyweight champion of the world, met his master here today when Dave Maier, Milwaukee, defeated him decisively in a ten round bout.

Rosenbloom won only one of the ten rounds, the fourth, and held Maier even on only two, the first and sixth.

EAST CONQUERS WEST AND MUD FOR CHARITY, 6-0

San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 1.—(AP)—Crashing over a touchdown in the closing minutes of the first period and showing a decided superiority on both offense and defense, throughout the contest, East conquered West 6 to 0 today in a gridiron struggle played for charity.

Some 50,000 fans filled Kezar stadium almost to capacity at the start of the game, but a steady downpour after the first quarter rained half the crowd out.

Players Skid in Mud.

Meanwhile some of the outstanding football stars of the country slipped and slid through mud inches deep. With the field comparatively dry during the opening period, the Easterners took advantage of two poor punts by the Westerners to put the ball into play 27 yards from the goal. Steady smashes at the line, with the East's powerful forward wall opening up huge holes, enabled Reb Russell of Northwestern and Jim Purvis of Purdue, starting full back and right half respectively, to carry the ball to the one yard line.

Then Russell was twice held for no gain on plunges at center, but Purvis slipped through tackle for the touchdown. Morton of Dartmouth, who started at the East quarter back position, failed to convert the extra point on a drop kick. From the time the score was made until the end East was on the offensive.

This Is Why East Won.

The East gained a total of 138 yards from scrimmage to 10 yards for the West. East made eight first downs and West one—from a penalty. The Easterners tried two passes and completed none, while the Westerners took

Morton, Marshall Battle to Tourney Final; Meet Tonight

It will be power against speed tonight when the high school basketball championship of Chicagoland is settled at the University of Chicago fieldhouse. The teams in the finals will be Morton High of Cicero and Marshall High of the City league, which last night won their semi-final games of the Stagg pre-season tournament.

Marshall's team of systematic dervishes whirled with startling celerity across the fieldhouse floor to defeat Hyde Park, 25 to 14. The sturdy Morton five fought down the towering Bob Gruenig of Crane and then proceeded to overpower the rest of the Tech team, 25 to 15.

Tonight at 9:15 Morton will pit its brawn against the agility of Marshall and a big silver basketball will go in recognition of the superior style of play. The championship game will begin immediately after the finish of the Carnegie Tech-University of Chicago varsity contest. Hyde Park and Crane will strive for third place honors in a game at 7 o'clock.

Kopecky Stops Gruenig.

It took an all-suburban football guard to stop big Bob Gruenig, Crane scoring star, in last night's opening contest. Morton had that man in Capt. Irwin Kopecky, who had been saved out of Morton's easy game with Lindblom the night before. Kopecky enveloped Gruenig like a cloud and at the close of the game the lanky Tech star had nothing more to show for his evening's labor than a trio of free throws. Gruenig is the key of the Crane attack and as he goes, so goes Crane. Last night Kopecky wouldn't let Gruenig go.

In upsetting Gruenig and his team of city champion mates, Morton showed a form reminiscent of that which won the national championship for the Cicero five in the Stagg meet of 1927. A rugged defense and fighting floor game which had players sprawled all over the floor was coupled with more than ordinary skill in ball handling, shooting, and the execution of plays.

After three scoreless minutes Morton jumped into the lead on a long basket by Wilbert Kokes, and thereafter never was headed. Irvin Earl contributed a rebound shot and a free throw, while Roseman counted for Crane from midfloor to give Morton a 5 to 2 lead at the quarter. Kopecky found time from his guarding assignment to poke in two baskets and a free throw in the next session and Morton led at the half, 10 to 6.

In the third period baskets by Fendrych and Kokes and a pair of quick ones by Chuck Hermanek ran the count up to 18 to 7. Sorkin of Crane, who had been rolling long tries around the hoop all evening, then connected for three in a row but the flurry ended when Morton began more deliberate tactics and added another goal and three free throws to its total.

Shots Impossible to Stop.

The Marshall-Hyde Park contest was a matter of a good big team against a better little team. Marshall's men, all of a size—a small size at that—put on a demonstration of clever ball handling, spot passing and uncanny ability to come up out of mixups with the ball that has been approached during the meet only by its own previous performances.

Smart dribbling enabled the Marshall five to control the ball during most of the game. Starting with a deliberate attack, the west siders shot through to find frequent holes in the hitherto impenetrable Hyde Park defense. When the Hyde Park defense was functioning, Marshall opened up with trick shots from off balance that were impossible to stop.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pasadena, Cal., Jan. 1.—A Tulane eleven that was good enough to score 16 first downs to Southern California's 7 and to gain 312 yards from scrimmage against Southern California's 212 was not good enough to win today's Rose Bowl football game, which attracted a crowd of more than 80,000. The score was Southern California, 21; Tulane, 12.

The victory carried with it the national college football championship of 1931, and Coach Howard Jones was presented with an automobile at the conclusion of the game, which went to him with the donor's nomination as coach of the year's football champions.

Tulane missed a possible third touchdown in the final quarter when Capt. Williamson of Southern California intercepted a short pass on his six yard line. The Green Wave's hard play was matched by the Trojans, who carried the power on offense and smartness against the air attack to control the play through most of the game.

First Period Scoreless.

Pools of water, from the rain of the last eleven days, surrounded the playing field, but the turf on the gridiron was fast and firm when the huge tarpaulin was removed before the game. A warm sun smiled on the players. The temperature at the bottom of the big bowl was in the sixties.

The first period was scoreless, but Southern California waited only six minutes of the second quarter to begin its scoring onslaught. The Trojans marched 68 yards in five plays after Orvill Mohler, alternate quarter back, entered the play, sending Gaius Shaver to full back for the Trojans in place of Jim Musick, who suffered a broken nose in the Notre Dame game.

Mohler started it by returning a punt 20 yards to his own 35 yard line. He threw a lateral pass to Shaver for seven yards, then tallied seven yards around right end to the Trojan 49 yard line. Shaver followed this with a 23 yard pass to Half Back G. Clark. On the next play Shaver ran left end to the six yard line.

Sparling Crashes Over.

Ray Sparling, left end, then took the ball on the Trojans' famous touchdown play, a simple enough looking reverse in which left end steps into the back field, left half takes his vacated flank, and the quarter back feeds the ball to the end on a reverse. Sparling was preceded to the Tulane left end by massed interference and scored standing up. After Johnny Baker booted the placement, the half ended, 7 to 0.

Ernie Pinckert scored the next Trojan touchdown after a march of 59 yards in five plays. His second score came within two minutes of the first, both being on the identical play, a reverse which shot him between Tulane's right guard and right tackle. Pinckert placed the ball behind the goal line at the same spot each time, in the extreme northwest corner of the field.

In Pinckert's first touchdown march Shaver started it by lugging Felts' punt 16 yards to his own 41 yard line, and then racing around right end for 11 yards more. Musick hit the line for four yards, and Shaver then ripped through left tackle, spinning two men to one side on a 16 yard gain. Pinckert next took the ball on his own 29 yard line for the reverse play that spelled touchdown. Baker place kicked the point.

Pinckert Duplicates Run.

In four more plays Pinckert scored again. He recovered Zimmerman's fumble of the kickoff return on the 29 yard line. After Shaver had made five yards on two line thrusts he fed the ball to Pinckert for his 24 yard run to the third and final Trojan touchdown.

Pinckert's performance seemed to arouse Harry Glover, 165 pound Tulane half back. Glover returned the kickoff 15 yards to his own 25 yard line. Six plays later the march which Glover started, netted Tulane its first touchdown and set the southern part of the grand stand wild.

Zimmerman went around end for

ILLINOIS WHIPS CORNELL, 44-23; RESERVE STARS

George Fencl, Sub for Kamp, Leads Team.

Champaign, Ill., Jan. 1.—[Special.]—George Fencl, all around athlete from Cicero, substituting for Capt. Babe Kamp, led the University of Illinois to victory over Cornell university's basketball team today, 44 to 23.

The Illini started fast and led, 19 to 9, at the half. Lipinski scored the easterner's two baskets during the first period, and made three free throws.

Bennett Leads Scoring.

Cas Bennett went to the front for the Illini in the second half, in which he scored four baskets and a free throw. This, coupled with five free throws in the first half, gave him a total of 13 points for high scoring honors. Fencl sank five baskets and played a brilliant floor game.

The Illini machine was disturbed during the first half when Hellmich, center, went out on personal fouls. He was succeeded first by Bartholomew and then by Moore.

Cornell Better in Second Half.

In the second half, Cornell's short pass attack was more effective, with Hatkoff scoring three goals and Wickel and Capt. Zahn one each.

LOYOLA MEETS BRADLEY

Loyola university's basketball team will seek its eighth consecutive victory of the season tonight when it meets Bradley Polytechnic institute of Peoria at the Loyola gymnasium.

Bradley lost a 23 to 17 decision to Loyola at Peoria several weeks ago. In its other games this season Bradley has defeated Iowa and lost to Northwestern and Chicago.

The Ramblers have recovered from the strain of their 21 to 19 victory over Butler at Indianapolis on Tuesday. It was the first time this season that Loyola has really been pushed and Coach Sachs was compelled to play his starting lineup the entire game.

Davis, Bradley center, led the Peordan's offense against Loyola in their first meeting with ten points on three goals and four free throws. He also starred on the defense, holding Joe Wagner to one goal and one free throw. Esterdahl scored the only other goal for Bradley. In that game Loyola lost the services of Bob Schuhmann early in the game on a disqualifying foul and Wagner went out at the half on four personals. Dick Butzen led the Loyola offense with three goals and a free throw. Probable lineup:

| LOYOLA. | | BRADLEY. |
|---|---|---|
| Schuhmann | F. | Stephens |
| Hogan | F. | Sauer |
| Wagner | C. | Davis |
| Cavanaugh | G. | Mason |
| Butzen | G. | Esterdahl |

RANGERS DEFEAT FALCONS IN 3D PERIOD, 3 TO 0

New York, Jan. 1.—(AP)—Held scoreless for two periods of a hard fought National Hockey league game, the New York Rangers came through in the third tonight to defeat the Detroit Falcons, 3 to 0.

The score did not indicate the comparative strength of the teams as the second Ranger goal came after a faceoff deep in Detroit territory with Reg Noble, Falcon defense ace, in the penalty box, and the third was the result of a breakaway from Detroit's closing attack.

A single goal, on a brilliant pass, Murray Murdoch to Cecil Dillon, decided the game. Bill Cook scored the second counter on passes from his brother Bun and Frank Boucher, and Vic Desjardins poked in the third after Alex Connell had made a fine stop of a try by Butch Keeling. Despite the hard, close play, only five penalties were called.

SEMI-FINALISTS AT PONTIAC PLAY THIS MORNING

Pontiac, Ill., Jan. 1.—[Special.]—Johnston City, Springfield, Benton, and Fairbury will appear in the semifinals of Pontiac Township High school's sixth annual invitational tournament tomorrow morning. In today's games Johnston City defeated Odell, 36 to 14; Benton defeated Harrison Tech of Chicago, 32 to 16; Springfield beat Dwight, 33 to 19, and Fairbury won from Seneca, 33 to 19.

MONTANA FIVE SIXTH VICTIM OF BUTLER, 28-17

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 1.—[Special]—Winter weather and the basketball champions of the Rocky mountains came here together tonight, but, like the cold, the scoring offensive of the Montana State was much belated and Butler university won, 28 to 17. It was Butler's sixth victory in seven starts.

OKLAHOMA PASS DEFEATS HAWAII ELEVEN, 7 TO 0

HONOLULU, H. I., Jan. 1.—(AP)—The University of Oklahoma defeated the University of Hawaii, 7 to 0, here today in a New Year's football game. A 26 yard pass to a substitute, Cherry, who went into the game in the last minute of the third period, and his 34 yard run to Hawaii's 1 yard line, paved the way for Oklahoma's victory. Masaad, full back, carried the ball through center for a touchdown on the next play.

MOON MULLINS—THE FALL GUY.

Trojans Beat Tulane, 21-12, for Grid Title

10 yards. After two line plays made little progress, Zimmerman passed to Haynes, Tulane end, for a 12 yard gain. Dawson then hit center for three yards to U. S. C.'s 49 yard line. On the next play Glover cut away from his interference and was bumped no less than ten times by Trojan tacklers as he dodged, straight armed, side stepped and fought his way 33 yards to the Trojan 16 yard line. Glover seemed in the clear when Johnny Baker, Trojan guard, overtook him.

Tulane Passes to Score.

Two line plays had made only four yards so Zimmerman tossed a pass to Haynes, who took it on the one yard line and dropped across the goal. Tulane's march to the touchdown covered 75 yards in 10 plays. Zimmerman's attempted placement was blocked and the third quarter ended with Southern California ahead, 21 to 6.

Tulane threatened early in the fourth quarter when Mohler's lateral pass to Shaver hit the ground and was recovered by Zimmerman on the Southern California 30 yard line. Zimmerman passed to Glover on the 16 yard line, and Zimmerman zipped through right tackle for six more. On the next play he threw a pass intended for Haynes, but Williamson, intercepted it.

From the 46 yard line, Tulane came right back three minutes later in another march that succeeded. Mohler fumbled and Dalrymple, Tulane captain, recovered. Dalrymple then caught Zimmerman's pass for an 11 yard gain and Payne made it first down on the 24 yard line. Zimmerman's next pass was batted upward by a Trojan and Dalrymple caught it on the four yard line. Glover ran around his own left end to score a touchdown on the next play.

Neither team threatened after that. Of its share in the gate receipts Southern California is pledged to donate $50,000 to charity. The gate receipts are expected to total between $250,000 and $280,000.

ROCKFORD RING TEAM DEFEATED AT SHEBOYGAN

Sheboygan, Wis., Jan. 1.—[Special.]—Sammy Mandell's amateur boxing team from Rockford, Ill., including several Golden Gloves and Central A. A. U. champions, won two of five bouts from a Wisconsin team at the Eagles club here today.

Curley Harris, Rockford welterweight, stopped Joe Cieslak of Milwaukee in one round. A terrific right smash to the jaw sent Cieslak reeling to the canvas, where he was counted out as he tried to raise himself on the ropes. Other results:

Charles Negoe, Chicago, beat Jim Hagner, Rockford [3].
Tony Bruno, Milwaukee, knocked out Kid Bruno, Rockford [2].

NEWS FROM THE RACE TRACKS

TROPICAL PARK RESULTS.

FIRST RACE—Purse $1,000, maiden 2 year olds, about 2 furlongs:

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| *Dusky Dame, 113 [Elston] | 20.40 | 10.80 | 4.60 |
| Chuck B, 116 [Cleiland] | | 7.60 | 8.60 |
| †Be Silent, 113 [Smock] | | | 6.30 |

Dusky Dame settled down shortly after the break and was ridden out at end to stall off Chuck B. The latter closed with determination and stood punishment gamely. Be Silent outbroke her field but could not keep pace with leaders. Biz Leaguer, a bit fractious at barrier, was interfered with when start came. Iredell broke free and clear, but ran poorly. Bonnie Lillian was slow to get going.

Time: 21 2-5. Bonnie Lillian, Jean Brown, *Hildur Rock, Biz Leaguer, ‡Princess Val, †Frankie Mae, Toy Town, ‡Bright Monk, Iredell, and Flying Queen ran.

SECOND RACE—Purse $1,000, claiming, 4 year olds and up, 5½ furlongs:

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| Play Furious, 111 [Horn] | 53.10 | 16.20 | 5.40 |
| Captain's Girl, 101 [Mills] | | 14.30 | 4.10 |
| Mortime, 111 [Decamillas] | | | 2.50 |

Play Furious raced out in the middle of the track all the way, responded full of courage when put to a drive and wearing Captain's Girl down got up in the last strides. Captain's Girl, a keen factor from the break, hung after passing the tiring pacemaker in the stretch. Mortime went to the front soon after the break and showed his usual early speed, but quit in the last furlong. Gay Pal raced in behind horses most of the way.

Time: 1:09 4-5. Sir Barley, Deerfield, Chattahoochee, and Gay Pal ran.

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| Gibby's Choice, 114 [Clnd.] | 3.10 | 2.90 | 2.10 |
| Marx Parker, 101 [South] | | 5.80 | 3.90 |
| Bounder, 109 [Arthur] | | | 2.50 |

Gibby's Choice slipped through next to the rail and easily disposed of the tiring Margaret Parker in the last furlong. Margaret Parker showed lots of speed from the break, but collapsed when the winner challenged. Bounder was a contender from the break, but lost ground at top of home stretch.

FOURTH RACE—Purse $1,000, claiming, 3 year olds and up, 7 furlongs:

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| Bird of Prey, 118 [McKch.] | 18.00 | 7.10 | 4.90 |
| Fair Billows, 99 [Stout] | | 21.90 | 6.00 |
| Laftar, 113 [Horn] | | | 6.00 |

Bird of Prey, breaking rapidly, moved up and joined Shasta Lover in the run down the back stretch, shook Laftar off rounding turn where he opened up a long lead. Fair Billows held others safe in final drive. Laftar wore down the tiring Tantalizing. Laftar broke slowly and appeared to be laboring all the way.

Time, 1:30. Shasta Lover, Deserve, Tantalizing, Meek, and Blue Cloud ran.

FIFTH RACE—Purse $2,000 added, New Year's handicap, 3 year olds and up, 1 1/16 miles:

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| Arras, 103 [Mills] | 5.60 | 2.80 | Out |
| Calf Roper, 116 [Chiavetta] | | 3.00 | Out |
| Rio Flyin Wilnie, 114 [Gini] | | | Out |

Arras was rated off the pace for half a mile where he moved up. He had something in reserve when Calf Roper challenged rounding the far turn. Calf Roper, outrun in early stages, made a determined effort, rounding the turn into home stretch but the leader always held him safe. Rip Van Winkle raced with his ears pinned back and appeared unable to untrack himself. Bay Angon quit when put to a drive.

Time, 1:48 2-5. Bay Angon, and Sky Way ran.

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| Bozo, 109 [Mills] | 4.00 | 2.70 | 2.90 |
| Nose Gay, 102 [Fields] | | 10.70 | 4.30 |
| Frances St. L., 101 [Mtzy.] | | | 3.20 |

Bozo was rated in front to the top of home stretch and had enough in reserve to stall off Nose Gay. Later moved up with a determined challenge rounding first turn but tired. Frances St. L., tiring badly in the last furlong, was driving to the limit to stand off Cabildo. Later was permitted to drop out of it in the first quarter and can do better.

Time, 2:07 3-5. Judge Caverly, Cabildo, Top Hattie, Observation, and Sky Hawk ran.

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| Coady, 108 [Arthur] | 4.40 | 2.50 | 2.10 |
| Sand Fiddler, 108 [Mtzy] | | 2.80 | 2.40 |
| Chancellor 113 [Mills] | | | 2.20 |

Coady was allowed to draw clear entering the stretch but was ridden out when Sand Fiddler challenged. Later was under trouble going to first turn and finished strongly. Chancellor showed good speed for six furlongs but tired. Dress Ship showed flash of early speed.

WAR ON SPARROW, PURPLE MARTIN'S FOE, CONTINUES

Joliet Bird Fan Describes Effective Trap.

BY BOB BECKER.

Although the purple martins are not due in Chicagoland until late March or April, a number of bird fans refuse to let the martin versus English sparrow battle quiet down.

Here is George R. Hill of Joliet, Ill., delivering another broadside against the pestiferous sparrow and telling about a trap that he uses to catch them around his home so that the martins will have a chance to occupy a nesting box. His arguments regarding the martin-sparrow situation are:

"I am interested in reducing the numbers of that pest, the English sparrow, which is one of the greatest enemies that the purple martin has. The latter is a very useful and interesting bird. Its main diet is insects and especially mosquitoes.

Boy Makes Trap.

"I have a sparrow trap which a boy in the manual training class in the public school made for me, and anyone handy with a hammer and saw can make one. The trap is 12 inches high, 18 inches wide and 36 inches long, with two compartments. It takes four pieces 2x2, 36 inches long; six pieces 2x2, 12 inches long, and six pieces 2x2, 18 inches long, soft pine for the frame work. Half inch poultry netting or woven wire is used to enclose the trap, small staples are used to fasten the wire to the frame work. One end is left open with three converging wire sides to an opening about 1½ inches by 5 inches on the ground. The entrance to the trap should not have the wire floor.

"The center partition and entrance to the second chamber is either conical or with four converging sides to a 2 inch round opening with wire prongs pointing in about an inch long. A small wire door is provided so that you can put your arm inside and catch the sparrows and remove them.

Appeals to Bird Fans.

"If all bird fans would get busy and wage a war against sparrows where they are too numerous for the good of desirable song birds we could attract more worthwhile species around our homes.

"I have a 16 room martin house on my property and every year they come to nest but the sparrows usually succeed in driving them away."

This sparrow trap is a new model to us although the biological survey recommends a double chamber wire trap somewhat similar to the above. Please send us a drawing of your trap, Mr. Hill, as we would like to see it.

HENRI COCHET MAY TURN PRO THIS WINTER

New York, Jan. 1.—[Special.]—Henri Cochet, first ranking tennis player of the world, may turn professional this winter, it was state today by Jack Curley, tennis and wrestling promoter, upon receipt of a cablegram from Jeff Dickson, prominent European promoter.

Dickson, according to Curley, cabled from Paris requesting a match between the winner of the tournament beginning in Madison Square Garden next Monday, in which Bill Tilden is by far the favorite, and a "French player whose name is as prominent as that of Tilden."

As neither Borotra nor Lacoste would dream of turning pro, it is believed that Dickson has Cochet in mind.

Young Geno Whips Short; Wins All Eight Rounds

La Salle, Ill., Jan. 1.—[Special.]—Young Geno of La Salle won every round of an eight round boat here today and took the decision over Wayne Short of Minneapolis, Minn. They fought at 125½ pounds. Jackie Stewart, 126, Louisville, Ky., knocked out Babe Keller, Toledo, Ohio, 128, in the first round. Other results:

Bobbie Allen, Chicago, 122, beat Sonny Lloyd, Davenport, Ia., 125 [5.]

Yale Scores 8 to 0 Victory Over Army Hockey Team

Lake Placid, N. Y., Jan. 1.—(AP)—Fast play and a firm defense today gave Yale an 8 to 0 victory over Army in the third and final game of a hockey series here. It was Yale's third win.

Levinsky Makes New Resolution: to Whip Uzcudun

King Levinsky, who will start the new year by meeting Paulino Uzcudun, Jan. 15, at the Chicago Stadium, has made some resolutions; he intends to lengthen his swings and put more power back of them. The King began training for Uzcudun yesterday.

Levinsky plans a change in training methods and may employ wrestlers. The idea is that Uzcudun likes to get in close and maul and push.

Uzcudun is known as the roughest of the heavyweight fighters. He likes to punch and he ever is ready to absorb two or three blows to drive one home himself. The Basque is going to provide a test for the King's hitting ability. He has stood up under Sharkey's punches and Schmeling's best, while most of the lesser lights are down in his record as victims.

They sent the King against such dancing masters as Slattery and Loughran and he beat them. He met Carnera and the decision that went to Primo was unpopular.

to the air five times and failed each time.

The East was penalized a total of 20 yards to 25 yards for the West. Twelve Eastern punts, with Morton, Hinkle, and Somers doing the booting, averaged 36 yards, while Hufford, Mason, Kleckner, and Johnson averaged 35 yards on a total of fourteen kicks.

Individual ground gainers for the East were: Purvis, 21 yards; Morton, 14; Russell, 33; McEver, 12; Murphy, 1; Hinkle, 54; Homers, 3. For the West Davis gained 3 yards, Mason lost 1 yard, Hufford gained 4, Johnson gained 4. The one time Toscani (St. Mary's) carried the ball he advanced 3 yards, but the East was penalized on the play.

Nusslein Battles Tilden Jan. 12 on Stadium Court

A new contender for international professional tennis honors will appear at the Chicago Stadium when Hans Nusslein, German star, plays the first match of a world's professional championship series against Bill Tilden. The match, three sets out of five, will be played on the night of Jan. 12.

Before Tilden, who dominated the amateur tennis world for a decade, turned professional last year, it was Karel Kozeluh of Czecho-Slovakia who furnished the continental competition in the professional field. In the last year, however, Nusslein has forged rapidly ahead until a victory over Kozeluh last fall put him in the front rank of the challengers for the Tilden title.

Nusslein will land in New York Monday, just in time to compete in a tournament at Madison Square Garden. Following that meet he will join Tilden's troupe for a tour of the country and a series of matches for the world's title. Chicago is the first stop.

Albert Burke, Irish star and former champion of France; Roman Najuch, doubles partner of Nusslein and second ranking professional star in Germany, and Emmet Pare, former Chicago youth, also will appear on the program here on the 12th.

PERCY WILLIAMS CONFIDENT HE'LL WIN IN OLYMPICS

Vancouver, B. C., Jan. 1.—(AP)—Wherever discussion begins these days of Canadian chances in the next Olympics one question is always heard: "What of Williams?"

In 1928 Percy Williams, then an unknown Canadian schoolboy, went to Amsterdam and won the 100 and 200 meter dashes for the Maple Leaf team. He returned to continue his fine running and remain undefeated until 1930, when he pulled a ligament in a race against Eddie Tolan and George Simpson in Vancouver, and finished a poor third.

He injured the leg again in winning the 100 meter dash at the British Empire games, where he was only 1-5 of a second back of Tolan's universal mark, and he has not run a good race since.

Many are inclined to believe he is through as an Olympic competitor, but Percy himself believes he will regain his old form. He believes his leg is sound again and that when the starters are called to the line in Los Angeles for the 100 and the 200 he will be on the line and the favorite.

ISELIN, YACHT RACER WHO WON ALWAYS, DEAD

Defended Cup for a Generation.

New York, Jan. 1.—[Special.]—Charles Oliver Iselin, a member of one of the wealthiest families of this country and a yachtsman who three times defended the America's cup, died early this morning at Wolver Hollow, his country home at Glenhead, L. I., after an illness of almost three years. He was 78 years old.

Mr. Iselin was born in New York City, the son of Adrian Iselin, founder of the banking firm of A. Iselin & Co., and the grandson of Adrian Iselin, Swiss capitalist whose importing firm founded the family fortune in America. For many years he was a member of his father's firm and the holder of many directorates, but he retired from business some years ago because of ill health.

He was one of the best known amateur yachtsmen in the country. He was literally brought up on the water, as he came of a famous yachting family and he could sail a boat as soon as he could swim. He was sailing master and part owner of the Vigilant, Defender and Reliance, and manager and part owner of the Columbia in races in which these famous sloops successfully defended the America's cup.

Mr. Iselin married twice and was the father of five children. His first wife, Miss Fannie Garner, died in 1892, and he married Miss Hope Goddard of Providence, R. I., in 1894.

The five children, all of whom survive him are C. Oliver Iselin Jr., Adrian Iselin II., Eleanora, Countess Ferdinand Colloredo-Mannsfeld, Mrs. Philip W. Livermore, and Miss Edith Hope Iselin.

THREE SHOT BY BANDIT GANG AT ROADHOUSE

Two men and a woman were slightly wounded yesterday when a gang of shotgun bandits fired through a door of the East Prairie club, a roadhouse at Tessville. The injured, all of whom were wounded in the legs by pellets from a shotgun, are Tom Peterson, 22 years old, 1338 Argyle street; Mrs. J. P. Hauch, 29 years old, 1748 Lawrence avenue, and Edward Mikkelsen, 26 years old, 2706 North Troy street.

The bandits applied for admission at the club about 2 a. m. The doorman refused to allow them to enter, and they then fired through the door. They then fled.

Half an hour later an automobile containing several men was sighted on Harms road, near Glenview, by forest preserve police. The police car chased the other automobile and shots were exchanged. The fugitives finally abandoned their car and escaped. Blood on the floor of the car indicated that some of the men may have been wounded.

HEALTH RECORDS FOR 1931 SET BY U.S. AND CANADA

New York, Jan. 1.—[Special.]—The United States and Canada in 1931 had the best health records in the histories of the two countries, according to Dr. Louis I. Dublin, statistician of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company, who bases his statement on experiences of the company's industrial policyholders and holds that this crosssection of populations gives an accurate index for the two nations.

"The death rate for 1931 will either be the best on record or approximately equal to that of 1930, which represented the lowest mortality previously recorded," Dr. Dublin said today.

Miss Essie Freud, 20 Years a Teacher, Is Dead

Miss Essie Freud, 40 years old, 3273 Altgeld street, a teacher in the Chicago schools for more than twenty years, died of pneumonia in the Presbyterian hospital on Thursday night. At the time of her death she was a third grade teacher in the Langland Elementary school, 2230 Cortland street. Surviving her are her father, Adolph B. Freud, her mother, Annette, and Benjamin B. Freud, a brother. Funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon from the chapel at 3301 Fullerton avenue. Burial will be in Free Sons' cemetery.

Julius Rosenwald Passes Comfortable Day—Doctor

Julius Rosenwald, who is seriously ill at his home in Ravinia, passed a comfortable day yesterday, according to his physician, Dr. Herbert Pollack. The capitalist, who will be 70 years old next August, extended holiday greetings to members of the family and others in his household. He also read the newspapers and slept and ate well. It was indicated by Dr. Pollack that there had been no general change in the condition of Mr. Rosenwald.

Rites to Be Tomorrow for H. W. Miller, Dance Master

The funeral for Harry Walter Miller, dancing master in Chicago for the last 35 years, who died Thursday night in his home at 1067 Balmoral avenue, will be held at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow in the chapel at 200 East Erie street. Burial will be in Marengo, Ill. Mr. Miller was 56 years old.

DEPORT 1,000 IN 1931; SET RECORD IN CHICAGO AREA

More than 1,000 aliens were deported from the Chicago district during 1931, establishing an all time record, according to figures made public yesterday by Shirley D. Smith, district director of immigration. The number was 25 per cent more than last year's deportation.

The department's records, dating back to 1922, showed that the expulsions of foreign undesirables have been steadily increasing, particularly since 1926, when the local immigration force was increased. Mr. Smith now has a staff of 46 assistants as against 14 in 1925.

"The number of criminals among the shipments of aliens is becoming larger," Mr. Smith said. "This is due mainly to the coöperation of the Chicago police force and the state prison officials who turn over to us all deportable convicts when they are ready for release," he said.

In addition to the 1,000 undesirable aliens deported in 1931, some 600 aliens were shipped back to their homelands from this district voluntarily. These, in the main, were persons who were destitute, and who took advantage of the government's offer of free transportation back to their native lands, Mr. Smith said. The average cost to the government to deport an undesirable alien is $180, statistics showed.

FLOOD STRIKES INTO ALABAMA; TAKES 3 LIVES

Jackson, Miss., Jan. 1.—(AP)—A tornado and flood waters have combined to strike death, injuries and suffering to two states in the south.

The windstorm swept into the rural community of Robinson Springs, Ala., eleven miles from Montgomery, and killed three Negroes, injured fifteen others, and wrecked several houses.

Meanwhile, the Tallahatchie river continued to rise in the Mississippi delta country and a number of towns were threatened with evacuation.

The tornado struck yesterday. One Negro was blown about half a mile from his home. His body was found in a creek. Another was killed as his home collapsed, and the other was found dead in a swamp.

In the flood zone, the towns of Glendora, Asa, Stone, and Mimms face a great menace, with levees threatening to crumble on all sides. Swan Lake, Webb, and Sumner also were in great danger.

Batesville, further up the river, also expected its levees to crumble. Convicts continued to battle the flood. The town of Philipps was believed safe, but the levees at the Jones Fedric plantation were expected to go out. Families in north Laflore county were suffering from lack of food.

CHAS. V. BARRETT FUNERAL RITES WILL BE MONDAY

Funeral services for Charles V. Barrett, Republican leader and for 13 years a member of the board of review, will be held Monday morning at 10 o'clock at the family residence, 541 Hawthorne place, and afterwards at Our Lady of Mt. Carmel church, Belmont avenue near Broadway. The Very Rev. Msgr. Joseph Casey will read the burial service. Burial will be in Mount Carmel cemetery.

Messages of sorrow from all parts of the country poured in yesterday, and many of Chicago's civic, business and political leaders called at the Barrett home. Mr. Barrett's death came suddenly New Year's eve from a heart attack following an operation for appendicitis. For more than two decades he was an active west side leader and during the last twelve years was one of the influential figures in Cook county Republican politics.

Joyce Kilmer's Mother Is Dead of Pneumonia

New Brunswick, N. J., Jan. 1.—(AP)—Mrs. Annie Chilburn Kilmer, mother of Joyce Kilmer, whose poem, "Trees," was an outstanding piece of world war literature, died today of pneumonia at her home here. She had been engaged in writing a book inspired by the career of her son, who was killed in action in 1918. It was entitled "Flowers for His Grave, Culled by His Mother."

Mrs. Anna Lange, 71, of Waukegan, Taken by Death

Mrs. Anna Lange, 71 years old, 1690 Grand avenue, Waukegan, died late Thursday at the Lake county general hospital after a long illness. She is survived by one son, Harry A. Lange, an official of the Waukegan real estate board. Funeral services will be held at Mount Greenwood cemetery at 11 a. m. Monday.

PATERNAL AIDS TO U. S. FARMER COST MILLIONS

Big Sums Are Expended on Instruction.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 1.—[Special.]—A perfect example of federal paternalism, consisting of activities by the central government in what was originally conceived to the domain of state government, is that of the cooperative extension service of the department of agriculture.

This form of federal aid is directed to instruction of farmers in methods of farming and of farm women in domestic pursuits and to the inculcation in farm youth of interest in farm life. It employs more than 6,000 county agents and other instructors at a present annual cost of 25 millions of dollars, $9,570,000 of which is borne by the federal government and the remainder by states, counties and farm organizations.

This paternalistic venture is of now nearly twenty years' standing. It was initiated in the Smith-Lever act during the Wilson régime and was the outgrowth of coöperative work of the federal government and a number of cotton belt states in efforts to eradicate the boll weevil. It began with contributions of 1½ millions by the federal government and 3½ millions by states and grew by leaps and bounds as the agrarian politicians got successive bills through congress increasing federal allotments.

Texas' Share Largest.

The largest federal allotment, $438,441, goes to Texas which adds $637,796 to the amount. Illinois receives $261,030 and puts up $718,594 of which $126,556 is furnished by the state, $20,087 by counties and $571,949 by farmers' organizations.

On the average the states put up 1½ dollars for every dollar contributed by the federal government. As in other species of federal aid the federal dole constitutes an incentive to the states to embark in new activities or to increase expenditures on those already engaged in. Inasmuch, also, as it carries federal control with it the federal dole operates to direct the instruction furnished along lines dictated by Washington.

Theoretically the instruction furnished farmers in methods of crop and live stock raising is a paternalistic aid to agriculture not differing in principle from the paternalistic aids the central government gives to commerce, industry and labor. When it comes, however, to teaching farm women how to cook, make dresses and beautify the home, the federal government is furnishing an aid to one class that it does not furnish to others. No similar instruction is afforded city dwellers. The reason for the discrimination is that congress regards farm life a primitive state of existence which must be uplifted to a par with urban conditions.

Some Considered Politicians.

The 6,000 county agents, who receive compensation ranging from $1,300 to $5,000 a year, are selected by the extension service directors in the states who in turn are chosen by the trustees of the state college of agriculture with the approval of the federal department of agriculture. From time to time charges are heard that the majority of the county agents are not so much agricultural as political experts whose principal function it is to deliver the farm vote to the party in power. They are also accused of fomenting much of the radicalism in farming regions.

The latest complaint of this character emanates from a southern state. The trustees of its agricultural college are to be in Washington in a few days to protest to Secretary of Agriculture Arthur M. Hyde against the alleged political activities of the extension director who according to the indictment, is a carpetbagging Pennsylvania Republican who has filled the county agent jobs with Pennsylvania Republicans. The department denies the truth of the charge, asserting that the director is an Arkansas Democrat who has appointed Democrats mainly.

A few months ago Gov. Bilbo of Mississippi procured the removal of the extension director of that state and sought to have named instead a man who has been a Bilbo manager. The department refused approval and finally withheld the state's federal allotment of $300,000. That brought Bilbo to time and a director satisfactory to the department was appointed.

Sometimes counties compel a change in agents because of pernicious political activities or favoritism to relatives and friends of the agents in the dispensation of instruction and other favors. Of late much has been heard of counties discontinuing the service altogether in an effort to reduce staggering tax burdens. According to the department, however, that has happened in not more than half a dozen counties.

In his annual report Dr. W. C. Warburton of the extension service stated that agents gave 929,744 demonstrations in 1930 "that taught better practices and resulted in better living conditions." He said further that "the number of instances of the adoption of better practices by farmers and farm women reported by all extension agents in 1929 was 5,170,343 or 508,246 more than in 1928.

Teach Them How to Play.

Nothing is overlooked by paternalistic Uncle Sam. The extension service is now teaching "rural youths and adults how to play profitably." By the female demonstrators "increased attention was given to the selection of comfortable shoes and hosiery. To teach "the importance of color, line, design, and tastefulness in clothing fashion shows were held in several states." Mr. Warburton reports that "the discussion of color in the clothing helped farm women to realize the need for beauty in the home."

A 63 page document is crammed with description of the triumphs of the extension service." One woman," says Mr. Warburton, "discovered that she could save 15 minutes a day in washing her separator if she moved her dish pan to a more convenient position. Another, who made a study of lamp cleaning, saved 30 minutes a day by having members of the family bring down lamps in the morning and return them at night, and by improved methods of cleaning."

Specialists on Landscaping.

"Once the farm family becomes interested in beautifying the interior of the home," he goes on, "it soon asks for help in beautifying the exterior surroundings. Specialists in landscaping and forestry coöperated with specialists in home furnings and home management to develop this phase of the work. The reports showed that 112,533 home grounds were beautified."

Uncle Sam's cooks demonstrated the culinary art with such success on the farms "that 72,816 women balanced their family meals according to approved methods, 39,376 prepared better school lunches, 2,677 schools were induced to serve a hot dish or school lunch at noon, and 36,442 home makers adopted better practices in child feeding. A total of 206,243 home makers improved nutrition practices during the year."

Exhibits Sent to Fairs.

The federal government is expending $130,000 a year on exhibits at agricultural fairs. The most expensive ones are the animated type. By means of a cunningly concealed phonograph synchronized with mechanical movements a farmer and his son constructed an animated exhibit of papier maché and rubber to discuss the "beef cattle outlook."

EUROPE IN STRUGGLE TO GIVE 10,000,000 JOBLESS WORK TO DO

PARIS, Jan. 1.—(AP)—The chief industrial countries of Europe, faced with the tremendous problem of providing work or aid for at least 10,000,000 unemployed, have entered 1932 with extensive programs of national development and unemployment relief.

Figures gathered from authoritative sources in the chief European capitals place the number of unemployed in the five largest European countries at 9,533,700. Germany has 5,349,000 without work, Great Britain 2,506,700, Italy 878,000, Spain 500,000, and France 300,000.

In addition, the smaller countries of Europe have thousands of unemployed. Accurate figures are unavailable because of the lack of an official national check, in most cases the workless being cared for locally.

Russian officials declare there is no unemployment in that country.

FRENCH ARE TOLD TO EMPTY THEIR SOCKS AND SPEND

Labor Ministry Calls for Luxury Spree.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Jan. 1.—Trying to upset the habit of the proverbial French peasant in hoarding a woolen sock full of sou pieces, Minister of Labor Adolphe Landry today exhorted his fellow citizens to commence the new year right by spending their money.

Luxury articles and "frivolities" are particularly recommended to the thrifty investors, as this branch of French industry was hit the hardest by the depression and the American and British tariff barriers.

"Live Like a King."

"Buy apples, linens, shoes, hats," said the minister. "Take taxis. Go to the theater. Refurnish your house. Put your money in banks. Maintain a luxurious standard of living. A whole army of workers lives on this kind of trade and depends upon your purchases for their bread."

The recommendation to put money into banks at first glance seems to contradict the others, but it must be remembered that the conservative Frenchman regards a bank deposit as hectic speculation and even today pins his faith on the trusty old wool sock. Since the depression millions of dollars have been withdrawn from circulation and hoarded away in socks under mattresses.

The working classes are chiefly at fault in this respect, Minister Landry charges, taking a special rap at the pernicious custom of dropping ten sou pieces in bottles.

Every self-respecting family in the lower middle class has an empty wine bottle in which fifty centime pieces are collected. These little brass discs, which are about the size of a dime though only worth two cents, play about the same rôle in French trade. Wine bottles make handy savings banks because when they are full you have got exactly $40.

Ten Sou Pieces Gone.

"The result is that you can't find any ten sou pieces today and thousands of bottles of money, each representing $40, have been withdrawn from circulation," the labor minister said, recalling the recent petition of Paris merchants asking the government to mint more ten sou pieces because the supply of this handy coin is practically exhausted.

The sensational manifesto of the labor minister appeared in the form of a front page interview in a conservative semi-official afternoon newspaper—just the sort of a paper whose readers will most likely have a fit of apoplexy at such advice.

While Landry's statement hasn't the weight of an official declaration, it is apparently in harmony with the ideas of the rest of the Laval government. It is the first time since the crisis—probably the first time in French history—that a responsible official had publicly advised the nation to spend freely.

Landry justified his advice by declaring "that the traditional French thrift, which pulled the country through the post-war crisis, is no longer a virtue.

General Public Service Reduces Capital Stock

Stockholders of the General Public Service corporation at a special meeting have voted to reduce the capital of the corporation, represented by the outstanding shares of its common stock, to $1 per share. This reduction in the capital represented by the common stock does not affect the number of outstanding shares, the asset value, nor the provisions of the charter of the corporation respecting the rights and preferences of the preferred stock.

SALES INCREASE.

The Reo Motor Car company announces that commercial sales of its trucks in 37 states, comprising 60 per cent of its domestic vehicle market, for November were 51.34 per cent more than for November of last year.

NEW PRESIDENT OF A. OF C. TELLS PLANS FOR YEAR

Rossetter to Press War on Crime.

Chicago enters the New Year free of the ill-deserved reputation of being "the crime ridden city of the world." With this declaration George W. Rossetter, who becomes president of the Chicago Association of Commerce on Jan. 15, yesterday pledged his leadership toward preserving the city's present standing.

With this resolve the new administration faces the tremendous task of aiding business in the period of depression, he said. The new cabinet is now preparing a plan on which work will be pushed following installation of officers. Other major problems facing the association are the pre-World's Fair campaign and the entertainment of delegates to the Republican national convention and probably the Democratic convention.

Continue War on Crime.

"The vigorous campaign of 1931 against crime and gangsters has redeemed Chicago in the eyes of the world," Mr. Rossetter said. "The unjust reputation has been supplanted by the picture of the vigorous, militant city we know.

"The new officers of the association will work to present an even more correct concept. Every coöperation will be lent law enforcing officials. The crime fighting organization of the association, known popularly as the "Secret Six," will continue its work.

"The keynote which the association will sound in 1932 is vigilance. Vigilance fought crime to a standstill in 1931 and brought local government officials to work for public rather than private interest. To preserve these advantages there should be no letdown of vigilance."

Plan Fight on Depression.

Upon his nomination for the presidency Mr. Rossetter requested officers named with him to work on plans to combat depression. These are James B. Forgan Jr., vice president; Robert C. Foss, vice president, domestic commerce; Charles E. Herrick, vice president, foreign commerce; Joseph K. Brittain, vice president, industrial department and public improvements; John L. Coyne, vice president, convention bureau; George J. Crossman, secretary, and Lawrence B. Robbins, treasurer. Election of all is assured as there is no opposing ticket.

"Every one has a plan for ending the depression which he thinks will work," Mr. Rossetter said. "But ours is to be worked out with caution. Following the installation of the new cabinet, we will begin work immediately on preparation of a program. I would rather not discuss tentative measures until the plan is formulated. In can only say that our plan will be mobile rather than rigid so that it will meet changes in conditions."

Tells of Work for Fair.

In discussing the World's Fair Mr. Rossetter said, "The task before the association is to sell the fair to doubting communities. We know the fair is going to be a success, but we must work to convince the rest of the country and the world. The Republican convention, bringing delegates from every corner of the country, will work to down pessimism in other parts. The delegates after seeing the city and fair buildings will carry back our conviction that success is assured."

Mr. Rossetter said the association will work to aid local governments out of the present financial morass. Of his leadership he said he would aim toward teamwork with his cabinet backed by the "efficient staff of the association."

Active in Business Life.

Mr. Rossetter is president of the accounting firm which bears his name. He has been active for many years in business and civic life. He was born in Gilman, Ill., and has been a public accountant in Chicago since 1902. During the war he saw nine months' service in France as a machine gun officer.

PRISON TERMS OF 887 YEARS IMPOSED BY U. S.

1,000 Sent to Jail for Liquor Violations.

Penitentiary sentences totalling 887 years, eight months and seven days were imposed in the federal courts against 454 defendants during 1931, according to the annual report made yesterday by District Attorney Johnson's office.

Sixty-five of the defendants sentenced to the penitentiary were prohibition violators. More than 1,000 other defendants were sent to county jails in this district and fines totalling $464,420 were imposed for violation of the liquor laws, the report showed.

During the year, 694 temporary injunctions and 364 permanent injunctions were issued against places discovered selling liquor. Of the more notorious defendants convicted during the year Frank Nitti, Sam Guzik, Ralph Capone and State Representative Lawrence O'Brien started serving sentences in the penitentiary for income tax dodging.

The Circuit court of Appeals has confirmed convictions against Jack Guzik, business manager of the Capone syndicate, and Gene Oliver, county assessor, for evasion of income tax, and an appeal from a similar conviction is now pending in the case of Al Capone.

Practically all of the members of the Capone syndicate have been indicted during the last year for conspiracy to violate the prohibition law, the report indicated. Many of them are charged with substantive offenses. Their cases are scheduled to be brought to trial in January and February. Another "public enemy," Mops Volpe, has been ordered deported, but his case is still pending in the Circuit court of Appeals.

Central Public Service Reports Year's Earnings

Central Public Service corporation and subsidiaries, exclusive of the Canary Island properties, reported for the twelve months ended Oct. 31 consolidated net profit of $331,199 after depreciation, taxes, interest, amortization and subsidiary preferred dividends. During this period the company paid cash dividends on preferred stocks amounting $1,076,309 and stock dividends at the rate of 5 per cent on 2,111,621 class A shares, which, when converted at the stated value of $8.75 a share, amounts to $923,834. No comparison with the previous twelve months is available.

Swift & Co. Purchases Pacific Coast Properties

Swift & Co. has purchased the physical assets of the Western Meat Packing company of San Francisco and the Oakland Meat Packing company. Prices paid were not disclosed. The purchases are in line with Swift's policy of decentralizing its packing operations in order to adapt its distribution to present day requirements.

U. S. CONSUMES MORE MEAT AT LOWER PRICES

Meat consumed in the United States in the year 1931 was slightly more than in 1930. This was revealed yesterday by William Whitfield Woods, of Chicago, president of the Institute of American Meat Packers, in a review of the live stock and meat situation.

The estimate, Mr. Woods explained, is based on the volume of production under federal inspection, which represents about two-thirds of the total consumption.

The consumption of lamb last year was the heaviest on record, according to Mr. Woods. The aggregate consumption of beef and veal showed little change during 1931 as compared with the previous year, while the consumption of pork increased slightly and the consumption of lard increased about 10 per cent.

"Prices of both meats and live stock are at low levels," said Mr. Woods. "In the case of pork loins, for example, the price levels reached recently were the lowest in nearly twenty-five years."

CHICAGO BANKS EARN SMALLER PROFITS IN 1931

Statements Reveal Sound Position.

BY O. A. MATHER.

It was inevitable that Chicago's big banking institutions should suffer smaller earnings and larger losses last year than in 1930. Abnormally low interest rates hampered earnings, business depression brought its toll of losses and the drastic decline in bond prices necessitated large charge-offs and reserves.

Most of the big downtown banks issued preliminary reports yesterday. These statements in general show that earnings held up fairly well, considering depression. Furthermore, the statements show that the banks have charged off doubtful assets to a degree that placed them in sound position. The statements do muh to dispel the flood of disquieting rumors that have been circulated in recent months.

The Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company reported net earnings of $14,876,275, after reserves for taxes and interest, but before charge-offs. These earnings were equivalent to $19.83 a share on the $75,000,000 capital stock and to 10.27 per cent on invested capital of $144,811,241. Net earnings for 1930 after all charges were $14,580,680, equivalent to $20.77 a share on the stock and to 9.21 per cent on average invested capital of $169,136,360.

Explains Charge-Offs.

That the bank made heavy charge-offs is shown by the decline of $24,325,119 in invested capital. These charge-offs are explained by Arthur Reynolds, chairman of the board.

"During the year the directors removed as a separate item in the bank's statement the reserve for contingencies and applied it, together with $4,800,000 from undivided profits, against questionable paper," he says. "In addition to these amounts, excess reserves against current operations in the sum of $4,450,000 were used to write off doubtful assets.

"In view of the decline in the market value of securities, it was considered advisable to write down to $1 the 1,000,000 shares of Continental Chicago corporation common stock owned by the Continental Illinois company and originally purchased for $15,000,000. All other assets of the Continental Illinois company were charged down to market.

Sees Recovery.

"The policy of writing down securities and doubtful assets of the bank and company does not take into ac-

Receivers Are Named for Big Utilities Firm

Dover, Del., Jan. 1.—(AP)—Chancellor J. O. Wolcott disclosed late today that he appointed three receivers yesterday for the American Commonwealths Power corporation, large public utility system with executive offices in New York, St. Louis, and Grand Rapids, Mich.

The receivers were appointed, the chancellor said, with the consent of the corporation upon a petition filed by Daniel Hegerty of New York, a stockholder. Simultaneously with the filing of the bill of complaint yesterday, Chancellor Wolcott said, the corporation filed an answer admitting all its allegations, including those of insolvency and inability to meet maturing obligations.

Reduce Stock Value.

The legal action followed upon a special stockholders' meeting at Wilmington yesterday at which the stated value of the corporation's class A and class B stock was reduced from $10 to $5 a share. This action, officials said, enabled the company to transfer $11,000,000 from its capital to its surplus account, bringing the total surplus to $15,000,000.

Clark A. Southerland, Wilmington attorney who represented Hegerty, said the complaint alleged the corporation lacked sufficient cash to meet its maturing debts. With the courthouse closed for New Year's day the complete allegations of the complaint were not available.

The direct cause of the receivership petition was the company's inability to meet a $4,000,000 short term loan maturing Saturday.

Large banking interests in New York with representatives on the board of directors of American Commonwealths Power indicated an intention to take steps to protect bondholders affected by the action. Four directors sent in their resignations several days ago. They were Fred S. Burroughs and George E. Devendorf of the Chase Harris Forbes corporation; E. G. Diefenbach of G. E. Barrett & Co., and Herbert L. Nichols of Chicago.

Harris Groups Interested.

The Chase Harris Forbes corporation and G. E. Barrett & Co. have been interested in the system for some time. The petition was filed in a "friendly" effort to bring about a reorganization of the affairs of the $220,000,000 gas and electric system. Although earnings have been maintained, inability to finance capital requirements led to the action, which also included the American Community Power company, a principal subsidiary.

The receivership action against the latter concern will be terminated shortly, it was reported by interested persons. American Commonwealths Power, led by Frank T. Hulswit as its president, was incorporated in January, 1917. Mr. Hulswit used the Community Power and Light company, of which he had control, as the nucleus of the new system to build up following his loss of control and resignation from the board of the United Light and Power company.

Rapid Expansion.

Following incorportion, he rapidly completed transactions for the control of General Public Utilities, Bangor Gas Light company, Jacksonville Gas company, St. Augustine Gas and Electric Light, Savannah Gas company, Minneapolis Light, and others. He also in time acquired numerous others, including some in Canada. American Commonwealths Power also holds substantial interests in other utility organizations.

In a recent earnings statement for the twelve months ended August 31, American Commonwealths Power of Delaware reported a balance of earnings, after preferred dividends, amounting to $2,803,403, compared with $3,053,732 for the preceding twelve months. Total assets as of Dec. 31, 1930, were $200,194,036.

Western Electric sales in 1931 were approximately $229,000,000, which compares with $361,378,000 in 1930. During 1931 the company has operated upon the policy of spreading the available work among as many employés as posible, and the entire force is now working on shortened hours, with a maximum of five days per week. At the close of the year there were about 44,000 employés on the pay roll. Nearly half of that number are at the Hawthorne works.

Hear A. O. Smith May Enter Home Construction Field

BY SCRUTATOR.

One of the most encouraging signs of the times is the activity of some of the nation's leading industrials in the development of new products to stimulate business.

The refrigeration industry is a good illustration. The mechanical refrigerator, which began to come into its own about the time business started downhill, has not only sold itself in a big way to the public but has towed the ice business along with it.

Now comes word that the A. O. Smith corporation of Milwaukee is considering entrance into the field of small home construction on a broad scale.

Known for Foresight.

This is significant, for A. O. Smith corporation has earned the reputation of possessing an extraordinary foresight. Its management has repeatedly had the courage to forge ahead of contemporaries on new undertakings and make a big success of them.

"It is too early to make any announcement," R. F. Bell, president of the corporation, tells me. "This is only one of a number of projects that we are considering. Our plans are not yet definite. They may not be completed for weeks or months. In fact, the whole scheme may prove to be impracticable."

The project, however, is pretty well advanced. The corporation has been experimenting for some time on the building of welded steel and cement homes. Bids have been asked on the materials entering into the construction of several thousand of such dwellings as well as furnishings for them. Blue prints have been completed.

The idea behind the proposed plan is that a large corporation supplying its own materials, construction crews and staff of designers can put up houses at lower cost than the ordinary home builder.

Would Finance Purchaser.

Arrangements would be made to finance the purchaser over a period of several years. The corporation takes the stand that if building costs can be sufficiently reduced by applying the efficient methods of skyscraper construction to the erection of small homes a large potential demand would be uncovered.

Individuals who hold vacant lots purchased as an investment and who now pay heavy taxes on this nonincome producing property are regarded as potential purchasers for low cost houses.

In its present form the corporation's plan calls for the building of 15,000 or more such houses per year throughout the country in cities of 5,000 or more population, not more than one home to be constructed for each 5,000 of population. Each would be sold complete with furniture and fixtures ready for the owner or tenant to move in.

The A. O. Smith corporation developed an electric arc welding process for sealing bombs during the war. A few years ago it found a way to bend steel sheets and weld the seams to manufacture steel pipe.

ARMOUR & CO. IS HIT BY SLUMP IN MEAT PRICES

Deficit for 1931 Near 23 Millions.

Another sidelight on the drastic decline in meat prices and the consequent heavy losses incurred in the packing industry last year is furnished by the annual report of Armour & Co., made public last night. Price declines in various meat products ranged from 20 to 50 per cent and although tonnage sales were approximately the same as in 1930, dollar sales declined from about $900,000,000 to $668,000,000.

The decline in prices resulted in an inventory loss of more than $22,000,000, according to President T. G. Lee. In addition, considerable losses were sustained by the Armour subsidiary and associated enterprises. The decline in South American exchange rates also caused a loss of $3,000,000 in revaluation of current assets in South American properties.

Loses 17 Millions.

Report 1931 Deficit of Nearly 23 Millions.

$17,339,136, after depreciation and interest charges. The company paid dividends for one quarter on its own preferred stock before discounting such payments and it also paid the guaranteed dividends on the preferred stocks of Armour & Co., of Delaware and the North American Provision company. All told, dividend payments totaled $5,519,928 and a surplus adjustment charge applicable to prior years took $77,262.

These various items resulted in a final deficit of $22,936,326, with the result that surplus on Oct. 31 stood at $20,141,766, compared with $43,078,092 on Nov. 1, 1930. Net earnings for the preceding fiscal period were $4,741,026, which fell just short of dividends on the preferred stocks of Armour & Co., of Delaware and the North American Provision company. The final deficit for 1930, after paying preferred dividends of the three companies, was $4,060,576.

Slash Inventories.

Despite the poor earnings, Armour & Co., made some progress. Inventories on Oct. 31 totaled $68,086,007, compared with $112,214,954 on Nov. 1, 1930. Operating costs were reduced about 20 per cent. The company retired $5,082,000 of funded debts, $6,764,600 of preferred stock of subsidiary companies and $2,067,100 of Illinois preferred stock without additional financing. The company has no bank loans, while acceptances and accounts payable are $10,775,346 less than a year before. Current assets on Oct. 31 totaled $138,616,230, while current liabilities were only $13,724,177. Cash on hand was $33,208,706, an increase of $21,305,979.

"Current operating costs have been so adjusted that results for recent months have been on a more favorable basis," Mr. Lee says. "It is apparent that stabilization of commodity values and any substantial improvement in general business conditions should be favorably reflected in the earnings of the company."

KUPPENHEIMER HAS LOSS

The clothing industry also suffered from adverse conditions. The annual report of B. Kuppenheimer & Co., for the fiscal year ended Oct. 31, 1931, shows an operating loss of $138,314. In addition, dividends totaling $192,678 were paid, a contingent reserve of $300,000 was set up and $124,911 was paid in premium on preferred stock retired. These items resulted in a reduction of $755,904 in surplus, which now stands at $3,295,620. Net earnings for the year ended Nov. 1, 1930, were $278,969, equivalent after preferred dividends to $2.23 a share on 100,000 common shares outstanding.

On June 1, 1931, the company redeemed all of its outstanding preferred stock, which was 3,800 shares. The company also has acquired 28,000 shares of its common stock. Stockholders will vote at the annual meeting on Jan. 12 on a proposal to cancel the shares now held in the treasury and to reduce the capitalization from $500,000, represented by the $5 par value common stock, to $360,000, represented by 72,000 common shares. The balance sheet as of Oct. 31, 1931, shows current assets of $2,455,397 and current liabilities of only $171,562.

HEAR N. Y. CITY IS SEEKING NEW $90,000,000 LOAN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 1.—The city of New York is expected to enter the market in a few days for a loan estimated at from $90,000,000 to $100,000,000. Controller Berry has conferred with municipal bankers in the last few days on the advisability of marketing an issue of bonds instead of floating short term obligations. In the opinion of the bankers this decision must rest largely on the developments in the market in the next few days.

Flotation of a long term loan of this magnitude just now would not be considered. Bankers say the best that could be done would be an issue maturing serially in from one to five years. The current market quotation of a 5.25 per cent basis on long term bonds of the city is based on a relatively small amount of bonds, so that a large issue would require a maximum interest rate, possibly 6 per cent.

On a short term loan it is believed the city probably could borrow at 5½ per cent or even better if the market shows improvement. It borrowed $60,000,000 on Dec. 23 at 5½ per cent, which was the highest rate paid on a short term loan in many years. Of this loan $48,000,000 was offered to the public on a 5.25 per cent basis.

The city has a large amount of short term debt maturing this month, the largest amount, $32,500,000, on Jan. 20.

ALLOW PAYMENT OF INTEREST ON WABASH ISSUES

St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 1.—(AP)—On application of the receivers for the Wabash Railway company, Federal Judge C. B. Davis today authorized them to pay out of funds in their possession $269,776 interest due tomorrow on various underlying bonds and notes of the company.

Walter S. Franklin and Frank C. Nicodemus Jr., the receivers, stated in their application that payment of the interest would protect the collateral of the railroad securing the bonds and notes, and give the receivers reasonable time to procure adequate funds to pay the notes and meet futures installments on the bonds.

The application pointed out Lehigh Valley, American Refrigerator and New Jersey, Indiana and Illinois stock put up as collateral to secure a loan for $9,750,000 made by various banks, is of great intrinsic value and should be preserved under the receivership.

The Lehigh Valley stock was said to be 21 per cent of that stock outstanding and represented an investment of $24,726,199. Under a proposed redistribution the Wabash will get 53 per cent of American Refrigerator stock and share proportionally in an investment surplus of $9,969,507, and the New Jersey, Indiana and Illinois stock has a book value of $1,347,637.

CONCLUDE DEAL TO GIVE LOAN TO NEWFOUNDLAND

Decide on $2,200,000 Short Term Advance.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., Jan. 1.—Negotiations which have been pending for some weeks in connection with a temporary loan from a syndicate of Canadian banks consisting of the Bank of Montreal, Royal Bank of Canada, Canadian Bank of Commerce and Bank of Nova Scotia, for temporary accommodation for the government of New Foundland to meet immediate obligations, were satisfactorily concluded this afternoon. The amount of the temporary loan is $2,200,000 and is in the form of a temporary debenture for period of six months, issued in accordance with the provisions of the New Foundland audit act, rate of interest being 5½ per cent.

Robert J. Magor, who has been in Montreal in connection with this matter, returned to St. John's this morning and Sir Percy Thompson is expected to leave Montreal for St. John's on Sunday. The government's program of reorganization, combination of departments, and rigid economy in connection with the public service is being daily pressed forward. Further railway and postoffice reorganization under the direction of Mr. Magor is being undertaken in January.

Internal Trade Stable.

Internal trade conditions in New Foundland are stable. Newsprint and all mining activities except iron ore operations, are being carried on at capacity. Wabana Iron mines expect to reopen the middle of this month, when they are expected to operate at 50 per cent capacity.

The depression in iron ore activities is due to the present inability of Germany to pay for normal exports to Germany or New Foundland iron ore production. Considerable optimism has been current during recent weeks because of indications of improvement in the market value of fishery products, with indications of more successful operations during the coming year. Leading operators in the sealing industry are already making preparations for vigorous prosecution of northern and gulf seal fisheries in March.

To Call Meeting.

Sir Percy Thompson, who since his arrival in New Foundland has been the financial advisor of the government of New Foundland, is receiving official appointment as such. The prime minister stated that the New Foundland legislature would be called to meet in the month of February next, by which time Sir Percy Thompson and the others are expected to have ready for legislative consideration their second interim report.

The prime minister also stated that from the first of January the policy of the New Foundland government in the matter of conservation of gold reserve in the empire shall be in harmony with that already adopted in the United Kingdom and the Dominion of Canada and that as a natural incident of that policy the notes of the syndicate banks, namely the Bank of Montreal, Royal Bank of Canada, Canadian Bank of Commerce, the Bank of Nova Scotia, which syndicate is handling New Foundland's temporary financing, will be legal tender in New Foundland.

Argentina Collects More National Revenue in 1931

BUENOS AIRES, Jan. 1.—(AP)—Argentina's national revenue for 1931 amounted to 697,136,000 paper pesos, or 8,651,000 more than in 1930, according to official statistics published today. In 1931 the government obtained credits for only 123,108,000 pesos, compared with 578,495,000 in 1930. The debt services required 30,639,000 pesos and amortization of loans, 19,041,000.

Duluth-Superior Grain Receipts Drop Sharply

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Duluth, Minn., Jan. 1.—The Duluth-Superior harbor grain receipts and shipments will total about 120,000,000 bushels, according to preliminary estimates made this week in grain circles here. Northwest crop failures and absence of export demands sent the grain movement to its lowest level in many years. The last year in which grain movements were as small was in 1919. The only month in which there was a spurt was in October, when 9,767,000 bushels of grain was exported.

PRICES DESCEND.

Cocoa prices have descended to a new low record under the influence of liquidation and hedge selling against incoming African and Brazilian crops.

LIQUIDATION BY BANKS LED TO FALL IN STOCKS

Reserve Report Reveals Credit Reduction.

New York, Jan. 1.—(AP)—The fall in security prices during the latter part of 1931 is attributed, partly, in the monthly review of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, to an unusually heavy reduction of bank credit.

In the second week of December, the review points out, the total loans and investments of weekly reporting member banks of the federal reserve system declined to a volume of $2,500,000,000 smaller than a year previous, and the deposits of these banks showed an accompanying decline of about $3,000,000,000.

"Since September," it is stated, "the tendency toward credit reduction has been accelerated, as a decrease of investments has been added to the reduction in loans. This accelerated decline started with heavy withdrawals of deposits from banks, a considerable part of which represented the funds of foreign depositors, following the suspension of gold payments by Great Britain in September.

"The ensuing rise in money rates was accompanied by a decline in the prices of high grade securities, and this decline in security values, together with the loss of deposits, appears to have set in motion a cycle of credit reduction which continued after the immediate cause ceased to operate.

"Individual banks sold bonds or reduced their loans in order to strengthen their position. The result, however, was a further decline in the market value of investment securities and a loss of deposits by other banks, so that those banks also considered it necessary to strengthen their position by selling securities or reducing loans.

"This action, in turn, while strengthening for the time being the position of individual banks, merely passed the burden along to other banks and tended to perpetuate and make progressively larger the losses of deposits and the decline in the market value of bank assets for the banking system as a whole."

WALL STREET HEARS 'BOND POOL' WILL FUNCTION NEXT WEEK

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 1.—The "bond pool" that has been freely discussed in Wall street for about two weeks will be greatly enlarged and may begin to function Monday, according to the latest report in Wall street. The pool will start with resources of $100,000,000 it is said.

Little doubt exists in the street of the existence of the pool, and some bond people say definitely that they know all details of the plan and names of financial houses that are parties to the agreement. Official confirmation from any suggested participant in the pool is unobtainable.

The pool originally was nothing more than a loose jointed agreement among certain houses to support certain issues, it is understood, and so far the large banks have held aloof. On Monday, it is reported, several of the larger banks will put their financial strength behind the firms already active. The firms participating are some of the large trading houses that ordinarily take positions in the bond market.

On Monday, it is believed, the loose jointed agreement will take the form of a regular organized pool with some of the strongest banks at the head of it. So far it has not been necessary for the original pool to become active buyers of bonds. Rumors that a pool had been formed about ten days ago were sufficient to bring in enough buying of bonds so that the market stabilized itself without organized support.

IN SHOE TRADE.

Demand for shoes continues steady with the volume comparable with that of recent years, but at a considerably lower scale of prices.

CHICAGO BANKS EARN SMALLER PROFITS IN 1931

Statements Reveal Sound Position at Year-End.

count future recoveries or possible appreciation of securities. Recoveries on loans charged off by the bank during periods of business depression have always been substantial. Security prices increase with business recovery and there is every reason to expect a recurrence of this experience."

The First National bank and its affiliate, the First Union Trust and Savings bank, reported combined earnings of $4,890,000 after all charge-offs. This was equivalent to $19.56 a share on the $25,000,000 capital stock of the First National and to 6.8 per cent on invested capital of both banks. Net earnings for 1930 were $6,073,000, or $24.23 a share on capital stock and 8.3 per cent on invested capital.

The report, which is signed jointly by Frederick H. Rawson, chairman, and Melvin A. Traylor, president, recalls the absorption of the Foreman-State banks last June and estimates the bonus to be paid for deposits retained until next June will be about $1,400,000. This entire amount was charged out of last year's earnings.

Central Republic Reports.

The Central Republic Bank and Trust company reported net earnings from July 27 to Dec. 31, 1931, of $355,077 after all charges. The Central Trust Company of Illinois and the National Bank of the Republic merged in July to form the present bank. The earnings were equivalent to an annual rate of 14.11 per cent on $14,000,000 capital stock and to 7.29 per cent on invested capital. The report calls attention to the fact that lower deposits are largely the result of a withdrawal of more than $40,000,000 of public money which was on deposit when the banks merged.

The Harris Trust & Savings bank reported earnings of $1,121,469 after all charges. This was equivalent to $116.69 a share on the $5,000,000 capital stock and 7.96 per cent on average invested capital. Earnings in 1930 were $1,641,187, or $27.35 a share on capital stock and 12.26 per cent on invested capital.

The Northern Trust company reported net earnings of $759,873, equivalent to $25.32 a share on the $3,000,000 capital stock and to 6.16 per cent on invested capital. Net earnings for 1930 were $745,615, or $21.52 on capital stock and 6.05 per cent on invested capital.

LIMITS IMPORTS.

PARIS.—The official journal has published a government decree limiting imports of canned fish from the United States to 1,836 metric tons.

Lambert.

Will you please give me what information you may have on Lambert company? Thank you.—M. P.

Lambert company was incorporated in 1926, the outgrowth of a business started in 1884. Its principal product is "Listerine," an antiseptic. Others are tooth paste, shaving cream, throat tablets and medicated cigarets.

About one-third of gross income is expended for advertising, which has been unusually successful. Sales showed an increase from less than $2,000,000 in 1921, to more than $20,000,000 in 1930.

Net income has more than doubled in the last five years. In 1930 net income was $7,132,000 or $9.52 per share, against $7,079,000 or $10.13 per share on a smaller number of shares for 1929. For 1928 net was $4,447,000 and for 1927, $2,998,000.

For the first nine months of 1931 net profit was $5,361,000 or $7.16 per share, against $5,668,000 or $7.57 per share for the corresponding 1930 period. The full year's dividend of $8 per share was earned before the end of November, 1931. Sales for the first ten months of 1931 were less than 7% per cent under sales for the corresponding 1930 period.

On Dec. 31, 1930, current position was strong. Current assets were $7,513,000 and current liabilities were $1,571,000, a ratio of 4.8 to 1. Cash alone was $5,473,000. Working capital was $5,942,000, against $4,005,000 the year before. Earned surplus was $4,797,000.

For the five years through 1930 about 75 per cent of earnings was distributed in the form of dividends.

There are outstanding 743,996 shares of no par capital stock on a present annual dividend basis of $8 per share. There is no funded debt.

Portland General Electric.

Will you please advise me how you consider Portland General Electric first and refunding 4½s due 1960?—E. A. W.

Portland General Electric company furnishes Portland, Salem and more than 80 other towns in Oregon, and Vancouver, Wash., with electricity.

For the twelve months to June 30, 1931, net available for bond charges was $4,637,000, and bond charges were $2,248,000. For the preceding twelve months bond charges were earned about 2.15 times before depreciation. For the quarter ended Sept. 30, 1931, President Griffith stated that interest was earned approximately two times. On June 30, 1931, there were outstanding $6,749,000 first 5s, due 1935, $40,000,000 first 4½s due 1960, and $7,500,000 4 per cent notes due 1933.

The 4½s due 1960 are a business man's investment.

Diamond T Co. 1931 Truck Sales Increase Slightly

Sales of motor trucks in 1931 by Diamond T Motor Car company showed a slight increase over the 1930 total, according to announcement made yesterday by E. J. Bush, vice president. The gain, he adds, was largely due to the record made during the final seven months when the increase over the corresponding period in 1930 amounted to 32 per cent. Commenting upon the showing in the final seven months Mr. Bush states that in his opinion it "indicates definitely that business is now on the upgrade."

CANADA LISTS HOPEFUL FACTS AS YEAR BEGINS

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 1.—(AP)—Canada enters the new year "with a feeling of quiet confidence and optimism which was not apparent at the beginning of 1931," a statement by the department of trade and commerce tonight said.

"Although many of the indices," the statement said," are actually lower than at this time last year, the downward trend is generally slowing up and in many cases an upward movement is shown.

"Following are some of the favorable factors in Canada's industrial and economic life:

"Hydro-electric power turbines with a total capacity of 400,000 h. p. were completed and put into operation in 1931. Plants with combined capacity of 1,500,000 h. p., many of which will be completed in 1932, are under construction.

"Estimated gold production 2,679,728 ounces, an increase of 27 per cent over 1930.

"Estimated total mineral production $227,769,000.

"An unfavorable balance of trade of over $108,000,000 was shown for the first eleven months of 1930. For the same period of 1931 the unfavorable balance is only $36,000,000. Since June Canada's domestic exports have exceeded her imports.

"Government radio receiving licenses issued during the first eight months of the fiscal year number 520,913, an increase of 76,237 over the corresponding period in 1930.

"The Canadian wheat situation is in a better position than last year with an available quantity for export on Dec. 1 of 229,247,911 bushels, as compared with 259,154,484 bushels on the corresponding date last year.

"The wholesale price index has increased steadily during the last three months after a steady decline of twenty-four months.

"A notable increase in live stock numbers is shown at the end of 1931 as compared with the preceding year.

Hogs and lambs carried their strength into the new year yesterday, the comparatively small supplies of both species selling at the advances scored Thursday, the closing day of 1931.

Packing houses observed the holiday and did not slaughter, but most packers needed stock for today's kill and the clearance in all parts of the yards was fairly good. Only extremely heavy hogs and some medium grades of cattle exhibited weakness and these sagged a little toward the end of yesterday's session when a few hog buyers reported a saving of as much as 5@10c in some instances.

Extreme Top Steady.

The general average price for the whole day in the hog market was unchanged at $4.35, while the extreme top held steady at $4.65. There were spots where slight gains were noted in light and light butchers at the opening.

Light weights continued scarce and outside buyers found it a task to get 7,000 that suited the eastern trade out of the 18,000 offered yesterday. Small packers and city butchers were willing buyers as the new year opened and with larger houses a little more aggressive the holdover was cut down to 3,000 at the finish, mostly medium and weighty stock.

Hog Futures Quiet.

Little action was reported in the hog futures market. February heavy grades were offered at $5.25. March heavies were offered at $5.50 and March mediums were bid $5.00.

Recent advances in the cattle market attracted a few too many steers from nearby farms, mostly Illinois feed-lots, and buyers called a halt. The edge was off and occasional sales were considered slightly lower, but in view of the rise since a week ago, the loss yesterday amounted to little or nothing. Prevailing quotations are still 50@75c above last Tuesday's market, but buyers are not inclined to compete quite so briskly for the medium to good grades which comprised bulk of yesterday's arrivals. Nothing of high finish was offered and the highest price of the day, $8.75, was paid for some 1,149 lb. long yearlings. Changes in other classes of cattle were negligible.

Packers Willing Buyers.

Little effort was made to reduce the price of lambs yesterday and the comparatively small Friday supply went into packers' hands soon after the opening at the previous day's price gains. All interests paid up to $6.35 and only stock lacking finish had to go below the $6.00 line. The clearance was earlier than usual, despite the fact that packers were not operating their killing gangs yesterday. Aged and yearling sheep sold steady. Feeder lambs were quoted steady.

Receipts at Chicago for today are estimated at 300 cattle, 15,000 hogs and 1,000 sheep, against a holiday the previous Saturday and 204 cattle, 8,818 hogs and 6,390 sheep a year ago.

PICKANDS-MATHER ACQUIRE BUSINESS OF CHICAGO COMPANY

Pickands, Mather & Co. of Cleveland yesterday announced the acquisition of the pig iron and coke sales business of Pickands, Brown & Co. of Chicago, and the admission to firm partnership of four former executives of the latter concern.

The new partners of Pickands, Mather & Co. are C. P. Wheeler, former president and one of the early partners of the other firm; Seymour Wheeler, former vice president in charge of pig iron sales; Donald Boynton, former vice president in charge of coke sales, and Clifford D. Caldwell, president of the Interlake Iron corporation.

Under the consolidation Pickands, Mather & Co. will handle all the sales business of the Interlake Iron corporation and in addition will be merchant pig iron sales agents for the Youngstown Sheet and Tube company in Chicago and coke sales agents for the Milwaukee Coke and Gas company and for the North Shore Coke and Chemical company, Chicago.

JURY WEIGHS CASE AGAINST OIL PROMOTER

Oklahoma City, Okla., Jan. 1.—(AP)—A federal jury began with the new year to seek a decision on whether Seymour E. Jacobsen Cox, Texas oil promoter, and seven others are guilty of using the mails to defraud.

Although Judge Edgar S. Vaught gave the Universal Oil and Gas company mail fraud trial to a jury last night, deliberations did not begin until this morning.

In a final attack on the defendants District Attorney Herbert Hyde said that "all they did was take $700,000 of the people's money by practicing fraud and deceit."

Cox, who once served a federal prison sentence for mail fraud with Dr. Frederick A. Cook, the explorer, testified the company's properties still were valuable and blamed its troubles on economic conditions and misrepresentations of others.

Originally indicted in the cast, former Gov. J. C. Walton of Oklahoma; Richard E. Enright, former police commissioner of New York and others were freed by dismissal of charges. Several of the first 19 defendants pleaded guilty.

Besides Cox, allegedly the unofficial head of Universal, the present defendants are Mrs. Cox, T. A. White, W. W. Edwards, Hans Adolph Kroeger, John Standish, F. J. Lingemann, and James L. Woolson.

Judge Vaught told the jury that unless there was evidence of others in the alleged conspiracy besides Mr. and Mrs. Cox, the two might not be found guilty of conspiracy. Judge Vaught notified the jury this morning he would not receive a verdict before 5 o'clock this afternoon if one is reached before that time.

ESTIMATE 1931 U. S. BUILDING AT $4,312,893,019

American Builder and Building Age estimated yesterday that $4,312,839,019 was spent for construction in the United States during 1931. This was slightly more than half the average for the preceding five years.

The magazine estimated that 317,535 buildings were erected during the year. Cost of residential construction dropped 13 per cent, from $4.90 a square foot in 1929 to $4.27 in 1931, the magazine said, despite a "steadily progressing tendency to use more expensive equipment in dwellings of all types."

Value of different types of construction was given as follows: Residential, $1,764,605,797; commercial, $365,097,241; factories, $131,101,281; educational, $257,235,318; hospitals and institutions, $127,107,583; public, $192,680,775; religious and memorial, $61,171,878; social and recreational, $115,066,789, and public works and utilities, $1,298,772,357.

MEXICAN OIL.

MEXICO CITY.—Nearly 1,700,000,000 barrels of oil were produced in Mexico from 1901 to Nov. 1, 1931, having a commercial value estimated at close to 3,000,000,000 pesos.
